Bowdoin had all the breaks her way in the annual Bates-Bowdoin game last Saturday and Bates failed to win through a fluke, a fumble, and fate in general. Bowdoin played a steady game and took advantage of the mistakes of the Garnet players and won by a score of 13 to 3.

But as anyone who watched the game play by play will tell it, or as a neutral press has expressed it, "the teams were more evenly matched than the score would indicate." We would go even further than that and assert that Bates has a more powerful scoring machine, a dependable drop-kicker, the better line and as good a chance for the State Championship. But the numerous fumbles wrecked the Garnet hopes and the game did not show the Bates team as steady an organization as it should have been.

When it came to bucking the line, Captain DeWever of Bates was the whole show, and Davis excelled on end runs. Davis, the plucky little Bates back, was far superior in the punting duel with Captain Shumway of Bowdoin. Time after time, with the line holding like a wall, he would place a well directed kick way down the field in Bowdoin's territory. On the other hand, the Bowdoin ends clearly excelled their opponents. Thus it may be seen that mistakes, rather than lack of strength, prevented Bates from a win.

The use of the shift plays by the Bates team when within scoring distance of her opponents' goal line has been criticized and perhaps with reason. These plays in the Maine series thus far have never been good for more than a bare yard or two and more than once have checked what appeared to be an irresistible march down the field by the Garnet. At Brunswick, DeWever and Davis had been consistently plowing through the Bowdoin line and around her ends, but the new tactics probably lost a touchdown, and penalties took all the fight out of the Bates men for the time being. In general, however, the team was run with good generalship, and the catching and running back of punts by backfield men were especially good, being a great improvement over the Maine game.

Bowdoin could not complete a forward pass and had some intercepted. DeWever made a long run once with an intercepted pass and appeared to have an open field before him, but was finally downed by a more speedy man. On the other hand, Bates got away with a beauty of a pass once that took the ball to the Bowdoin 11-yard line and twice hurled the ball to the Bowdoin goal line, only to have it bound from the receiver's arms. Several Bates passes were also intercepted, and the overhead game was not a striking success for either side.

Bowdoin scored her first touchdown early in the game. A Bowdoin punt was caught on the Bates 17-yard line and DeWever on the first play proceeded to tear through the Bowdoin line for 5 yards, but fumbled and Chapman recovered on the 20-yard line. Talbot broke up the first play, a pass, but an end around play had the Bates players off their guard for the moment and netted 10 yards. From here the Bowdoin backs pushed the ball across by sheer weight directed against the center of the line.

The second Bowdoin score was a pure fluke. On a pass from DeWever to Davis in the backfield, a fumble was made and Chapman picked the ball out of mid-air and ran 63 yards for a touchdown. There was not a Bates man near him and no chance to get him. At that time the Bates backs had been gaining consistently and a touchdown appeared to be in sight. Several times it was just that way, Bates plowing down the field until a penalty, fumble, intercepted pass, or some such change of position occurred, and the march had to be repeated again. When this score was made in the second period there were many second string men in the Bates lineup.

The Bowdoin scoring ceased with these two freaks, and in the third period Bates came back with a great burst of speed and started down the field in a great drive, making four first downs in succession. Then a poor pass caused DeWever to fumble and Bowdoin recovered. Bowdoin punted and Connors in four charges made 13 yards. Bates could not gain and Shattuck dropped over a tally from the 25-yard line, a position from which he had failed to score earlier in the game.

Besides the six fumbles recorded to Captain DeWever, several Bates men seemed to be nervous and pulled off some queer plays. Once a Bates man tripped his own man running back a punt, and another time a Garnet line-man picked up a punt from Davis on Bowdoin's two yard line and gave Bowdoin 20 yards by carrying it over the line. One or two trick plays also had them guessing at times, but when they did get the idea of the play it was a different matter. Several times the Bowdoin backs were tackled for losses of more than ten yards, while Bates only lost once or twice on end runs.

Knight and Wiggin went into the game in spite of injuries and gave good accounts of themselves. Wiggin was laid out several times, but put up the plucky fight that he is noted for at all times. Hamilton at tackle showed that there has not been a player in the Maine series thus far that could in any way hold his own with him. Several new men were given a chance to go in. Some were decidedly weak, while others performed in a credible fashion. In the few plays that he was in the scrimmage, Lundholm at end made a pretty play in getting a man on a punt.

For Bowdoin, Chapman kept up his reputation of long runs and followed the ball well on fumbles. Peacock was a good ground gainer, and all the team who wore the black showed that they were playing the game of their lives, even if that game was only to wait for Bates to fumble and then attempt to score.

There was a good crowd of Bates people to the contest, extra cars having to be put on the special train after the crowd began to appear at the station. (Continued on Page Three)

BATES CHAPTER OF DELTA SIGMA RHO INITIATES NEW MEMBERS

President Clarence P. Quimby '10 Exemplifies The Initiation Ritual. Hon. Carl Milliken and Carroll Linwood Beedy Unable To Be Present

Chapter Now Consists of Forty Members Out Of A Possible Seventy

Bates is coming into her own in these days. Within a year and a half she has been recognized by two great honor societies: Phi Beta Kappa and Delta Sigma Rho. Her friends may take just pride in these distinctions, for Bates scholars and speakers have never taken an inferior place, when compared with those from any institutions.

The meaning and purpose of Delta Sigma Rho, the honorary forensic society, is in perfect accord with Bates' accepted standards of public speaking. "Sincere and effective public speaking" the motto and keynote of the Society strikes a responsive chord in alumni and students who have been trained under Bates coaches and have had the College's ideals instilled in them. This was effectually demonstrated to five men last Friday, when they were initiated into the Bates Chapter, at its regular fall meeting. The initiatory work was exemplified by the President, Clarence P. Quimby, '10, President of Westbrook Seminary. The initiation ritual, simple yet meaningful, brought home in a most impressive manner the object and purpose of all public speaking, particularly that engaged in by debaters and orators who plead the cause of some reform or measure for the betterment of society.

The initiates were: Professor John Murray Carroll '08, Head of the Department of Economics at Bates. Professor Carroll has rendered the College a large service in forensics, first as an intercollegiate debater and public speaker, then as a teacher of argumentation and the trainer of debating teams. He was member of the winning Sophomore team against the University of Maine in 1907, a member of the winning team against Clark in 1908, and of the winning team against Queen's University in 1909. He was also active in speaking contests and the winner of prizes.

Charles Cleveland Chayer, '17, has been active in forensics since the beginning of his college course. He was a member of the winning team against Tufts in Lewiston in 1915, and of the winning team against the same institution in 1916.

Perley Wise Lane, '17, winner of the Sophomore and Junior Declamation Prizes has also won recognition for himself and his Alma Mater in state and interstate oratorical contests. In 1915 he won first prize in the Maine State Peace Contest, and hence represented the state in the Interstate Contest at Clark. In 1916 he won the local and state Prohibition Prizes and was chosen to compete in the National Contest in Indianapolis in June.

Arthur Leonard Purinton, '17, scholarship man, winner of First Prize in the Freshman Declamations, has also been Sophomore Champion Debater and a member of the winning team against Tufts in 1916.

Don Hollowell Stimpson, '18, was a member of the 1916 team that debated Clark. He won the second prize in the local prohibition contest in that year, and represented the college as one of its speakers in the state contest.

Hon. Carl Elias Milliken, '97, Governor-elect of Maine, a member of Bates' first team, and Carroll Linwood Beedy, '03, one of the most distinguished orators ever graduated from the college, were detained from being present at this meeting. It was their hope that they too might take the initiatory work at this time.

The Bates Chapter now numbers 40 members of a possible 70 eligibles. Among the members are to be counted some of the most prominent and useful graduates of the College, all of whom did much to secure Bates' present great

HALLOWEEN PARTY AT RAND HALL LAST FRIDAY EVENING MUCH ENJOYED

ALL KINDS OF WEIRD COSTUMES DISPLAYED AT ANNUAL MASQUERADE

Adin Turner and Clara Fitts The Prize Winners

The Halloween Party given by the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. social committees is always one of the most enjoyable events of the year. The one held on Friday evening, October 27, was especially good, both because of the unusually fine costumes of the masqueraders and because of the excellent entertainment previously arranged by the committees in charge.

At 7.30 Thursday evening an exceptionally large crowd gathered in Fiske Room, Rand Hall, where more than an hour was spent reviewing the costumes. Prof. Hertell, as spokesman for the judges, then presented prizes to persons whom they considered the most, and the least, appropriately costumed. The former went to Miss Clara Fitts, '18, who impersonated a "perfect scarecrow," and the latter to Adin Turner, '17, who wore a long black coat and carried a cane.

Among other cleverly executed ideas were a walking breakfast-food box, two walking envelopes, a "dandy" Charlie Chaplin, a Turkish woman, and the customary number of devils, goblins, and specters. There were also several fine old-fashioned costumes.

After the prizes had been awarded and everyone had unmasked, the company sat on the floor in the dimly lighted room while Miss Evangeline Lawson, '18, told a real old-time ghost story. This was followed by an improvised Halloween song by Miss Doris Shapleigh, accompanied by mandolins and tin pans.

Following these exercises the crowd was directed to the gymnasium, where, for five cents a couple, many wonderful things were to be seen. Much merriment was caused by visits to the menagerie, which proved to be a full-length mirror covered by a curtain, in which could be seen any variety of animal desired by the spectator. In one corner of the room were shown the heads of Blue Beard's wives, while on the opposite side were the booths of the clairvoyants. A caged animal with the placard, "From the Wilds of Parker," proved to be an unassuming, peace-loving black cat.

During the whole evening pumpkin pie, doughnuts, sweet cider, popcorn balls, apples, and candy were on sale in the dining room and in Fiske Room, and were extremely well patronized.

It was with much reluctance, but in high spirits, that the party broke up and bade farewell to ghosts and goblins for another year.

reputation in forensics. The Chapter is well organized, with officers who are ambitious that it shall do service to encourage "sincere and effective public speaking." It has already compiled a complete record of the forensic history of the College since the beginning of intercollegiate debating, and now purposes to gather and preserve pictures of all the debating teams of the institution.

At the meeting last week several important items of business were presented and discussed. Refreshments of ice cream, crackers and punch were served, and a social period enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

The officers are: President: Clarence P. Quimby, '10, Portland. Vice President: Gordon L. Cave, '13, Seattle, Wash. Secretary-Treasurer: Editor, Harry W. Rowe, '12, Lewiston. Executive Committee: The Officers, and Louis B. Costello, '98, Lewiston, Frank B. Quimby, '18, Lewiston.

GAME AT WATERVILLE SATURDAY CLOSSES FOOTBALL SEASON FOR BATES

GARNET HAS GOOD CHANCE TO ANNEX THE STATE TITLE

Rally To Be Held In Hathorn Hall Friday Night

Next Saturday the Bates football season closes with the game at Waterville. Football togs will be discarded and the boards cleared for other sports. Yet Maine football history is now still in the making. The State championship is almost as much in doubt as at the beginning of the season. Three teams really have a chance to win or tie for the title. These issues will be decided at Waterville and Orono Saturday.

Our team returned from Brunswick last Saturday a much disappointed and dissatisfied bunch. A temporary slump had deprived them of victory and an excellent chance to cinch the title, while Maine was holding Colby to a no decision score. Fumbles and one of those intercepted passes, which proved so disastrous to many large college teams last week, were responsible. We feel that one team is capable of a much better exhibition.

At the beginning of the season Colby seemed to possess a heavy and experienced team. Her showing in the State series, however, has not been any better than that of the other Maine teams. A lucky win from Bowdoin and a scoreless tie with Maine have given her a slight percentage standing over the other competitors.

This week the Garnet players have been putting on the finishing touches. No active practice was held Monday, but Tuesday afternoon the regular weekly drill began. Yesterday scrimmaging was in order. Much attention has been given to the receiving of passes, and falling on the ball. The mistakes of last Saturday have been rehearsed and an attempt made to correct them.

Most of the men are in good condition. Wiggin, who was injured several times in the Bowdoin game, will undoubtedly be in the lineup. His fighting spirit is much in evidence in spite of handicaps. It is possible that Moulton's injury will keep him out of the contest. Unless further mishaps occur in practice these men will be the only exceptions.

Manager Green is attempting to make arrangements for a special train. Unless a sufficient number enlist for the trip this plan will not materialize. The defeat last Saturday should not dampen our enthusiasm. The football men are going with the determination to win, and we should not fail just before the crucial game. Let us sacrifice a little for the sake of the championship.

A rally will be held in Hathorn Hall Friday night, and a good list of speakers will be on the program.

SOPHOMORES WIN ANNUAL INTERCLASS CROSS COUNTRY RUN WITH 33 POINTS

GREGORY, JENKINS AND LANE LEAD HARRIERS ALL THE WAY AND FINISH IN ORDER

Fight For Individual Honors Gives Crowd Opportunity To See Exciting Finishes

The Sophomores won the annual interclass cross country run last Tuesday by a score of 33 points, with 1920 second with 40 points and 1918 third with 48 points. 1917 only finished one man. The race was a fast one and all the contestants finished in fine shape and then, just to keep them limbered up, Coach Ryan sent them all over the track for another half-mile after they had rested a bit.

The fight for individual honors was a great one and those who missed the race (Continued on Page Three)

THE ELECTION

Voters of Bates! On Tuesday, November 7, comes the national election. The faculty will excuse from college every man who desires to cast his ballot on that date. Never before, perhaps, in the history of our country has a presidential choice been characterized by issues of such grave import as those which cluster about the present election. Surely, never before has public opinion been less influenced by party ties and sectional prejudices. In this crisis of affairs which the people find themselves called upon to face, the right to vote has taken on an added significance. It remains no longer a privilege merely; it has become a duty—a sacred trust which every citizen is under moral obligation to discharge to the best of his knowledge and ability. Therefore, we, as college men, should be particularly interested in casting what, for many of us, will be our first vote. Men of Bates! There is no law that says you must go to the polls next Tuesday and cast your ballots. But you ought to go, and when you vote (and we assume that every Bates man who has the opportunity will vote) forget pride and prejudice and all the pettiness of party feeling and cast your ballot for the man who in your best judgment is most qualified to direct the affairs of this nation during the next four years.

COLBY NEXT

Next Saturday brings to a close the football season and incidentally decides the championship for the Maine Series. As far as the race for the State title is concerned, both Maine and Bowdoin are out of the running. The issue rests with Bates and Colby. Should Colby win Saturday's game she will have an undisputed claim to the championship. On the other hand, if Bates defeats Colby, Bates will claim the title and the event of either a Maine or Bowdoin victory at Orono will make no difference in the validity of this claim, for Bates will have defeated one team at least that has humbled Bowdoin and the Garnet's victory over the Blue two weeks ago will prevent any dispute from the University of Maine in regard to the title. Therefore, although the game between Maine and Bowdoin will probably be one of the best in years, nevertheless the contest between Bates and Colby will be by far the more important of the two and the football interest of the State will center at Waterville next Saturday rather than at Orono.

Last week Bowdoin came across with the unexpected and everything from stage-fright to overconfidence has been called upon to account for the result. We will not attempt to explain it. Others may offer what reasons they will; but for us it is sufficient to know that Bates failed to show the brand of football she is capable of. Next Saturday we meet Colby in the deciding game of the season. There will be a different story from that of last Saturday. When the final whistle blows, both teams will know that they have been playing football. "Eleven men that won't be beaten can't be beaten."

THAT CROSS COUNTRY TITLE

Among our many college duties the importance of our studies has long been regarded as paramount, yet we need not neglect the attention due to the other factors that go to make up the complex known as college life. Among these interests, athletics may well be used for expression of that quality often called college spirit, which may mean to some nearly anything, but is after all the partial, at least, expression of an ideal. Soon Bates students, faculty and alumni will have an opportunity to pour out through this channel of athletics some of this spirit, earnestness, idealism. Nay, even more than an opportunity with a preference allowed, it is a duty of vital and gripping intensity. We ask the consideration of every Bates man or woman who really wants to show this spirit.

The annual cross-country run of the M. I. A. A. will be held on the Bates course, finishing at Gareelon Field, Friday, November 10. Each college in the state will compete, the winning team being state champions. This is the one track event of the fall that has any intercollegiate rivalry. The winners of this race are prominent contestants for the New England title. The two strongest teams this year appear to be Bates and Maine. The team from the State university has won the state title every year thus far and last year both the New England and the National Championship. Several of these runners are now competing. Bates was second in the state race last year. A week ago Maine won a dual race from Bates by the score of 25 to 30 with one of our best men injured. We have a team of well trained veterans whose strength has been steadily improving.

With this statement of the issue, Bates men, consider what this race means. To the contestants themselves it is the culmination of a long period of hard training, the one chance to show ability, determination and loyalty. A victory means the conquering of the National Champions. What does the race mean to you, who are not on the team, who cannot represent the college, yet would show loyalty equal to any man's? It should open up an avenue for the pent-up feelings which may never find expression in physical contest. When men from a squad of 20 go out to battle with men from a squad of 200 men and you realize that those men fighting against odds are your runners, your college mates, your representatives, does it not stir your blood and rouse your spirit? Here is the opportunity for the determination and the pluck that you would wish to typify Bates to have material expression. Would you go no further than to note the results in the paper next morning? To you who have no active part in the event, can the renown of the victory or the intensity of the battle mean nothing? Then Bates itself means nothing and your college spirit is as nothing.

If this does appeal to you as a duty and a pleasure intermingled, as a chance for a direct expression of your spirit, what then can you do? Men on the team, justify our confidence in you and uphold the honor of the college resting on your shoulders by the faithfulness of your training and the concentration of your mental and physical powers for the trial. Do not let the spectators see you finish with a burst of energy that should have put you in the lead earlier in the race, or falter with victory in your grasp. Remember that this race is your expression of your college spirit and your ideal. Success alone will uphold the self esteem of a team whose ability is as unquestioned as ours. Victory alone will compensate for the experienced training of Coach Ryan, and justify our confidence in you. Can you achieve it? We believe so, and with that anticipation more confidently await the issue.

College men, if you appreciate your team, value your college or take pride in your spirit, help. Show some consideration for the men on the team before the race, encourage them, discuss the event among yourselves, appear in force at the finish line to cheer. The race is to be held here at home. Come out on Gareelon Field and show the representatives of the other colleges how we support our teams. Did any of the faculty ever realize that oftentimes nothing helps a conscientious athlete more than the kindly interest of an instructor? The presence of an instructor to encourage a man at the start and congratulate him at the finish shows that both are Bates men of the same fundamental character, with the same practical ideal. The alumni may have little chance to see the race, but they can talk about it once in a while, mayhap show some special interest and be proud of the men fighting for their Alma Mater.

In fact, there is an opportunity for everyone to directly or indirectly show his or her interest, and more than interest, spirit. If you really want to express your ideal of "fight," pluck, determination or call it what you will, here is the stage set for you. The outcome rests with you, Bates men. Use the opportunity as best you may and when the test comes "may the best man win."

OBSERVANT CITIZEN

Freshman caps come off Saturday and will be placed away as sacred relics of early days in college. This doesn't mean that anybody from 1920 should take upon himself the responsibility of running the college, but simply that just a little greenness has worn off since college opened and freshmen can now be at large with no means of identification other than the general lack of college maturity in looks and conduct. Even after November 4 a few freshmen, owing either to sentiment or backwardness in discarding old associations will continue to wear the lid of garnet bands.

Dr. Jordan settled the side-door pullman question Wednesday night at Y. M. C. A. Hereafter you top freights at your own risk. Prexy Chase isn't here to plead cases.

Caverly and Thompson, assistants in chemistry, played tennis last week to decide which is the better chemist.

Senior Bible Study is working miracles in Parker Hall. Religious discussions often last all night and so intensely interested are some men that they are to take upon themselves personally the task of verifying the principles brought out in the lessons for discussion. They will report next Monday night at six-thirty.

Presidential election is also causing a big stir among Bates politicians. This however is a different matter to settle. Most of us know nothing, the rest know less. Next Tuesday ought to decide whether or not we pay more for board.

Five profs were in Parker Hall Monday night. It is good to see the faculty mixing with the boys. We need to come into close relationship with these men of mature mind and wide experience.

Good Bates men and women keep right on cheering though the team is losing. They consider profitable such a trip as the one to Brunswick even though we were beaten. We still believe in our team. Saturday was a day of fumbling all over the country.

Bates news in the Lewiston Journal were looming pretty spicy at one time.

At the psychological moment board will go up.

The faculty is sort of a Dunn and Bradstreet, rating every student for just what he is worth.

Monday's chapel was a good one. Mr. Andrews always talks to us, not at us.

You'll live just as long if you go to Waterville Saturday.

We can hand our Student Council something for its promptness in obtaining the freshman caps and for action in securing Bates Buttons. By the way, wouldn't it be a good plan to have the constitution of the Student Council read before the student assembly in order that we may know what to expect from the body of men which we elect to represent us.

The rumor is spreading that the price of board at the Commons will be raised soon. Can we wonder with the wholesale price of potatoes $1.75 a bushel and flour $12 per barrel?

Capt. DeWever has developed into quite an orator. One senior girl has been heard to remark that "Buck was just great." It was a good speech and made us feel that the team would fight to the last ditch for the college, and it did.

Every voter in college should consider it his duty to cast his ballot for the candidate of his choice.

From the student's view-point teachers' conventions are a great institution.

Prof. Gould's classes in History and Government should by this time have in mind at least six of the important issues in the presidential campaign.

We are with you just the same, "Buck," and we don't doubt for a minute that the team will return from Waterville victorious.

Several good citizens of Lewiston have been much concerned over the mental condition of the Seniors who go stalking about the college campus indefinitely rehearsing the refrain of the "Recessional." If said Seniors are mad, there's a reason. They are expecting a true "Moniesque" written lesson which has all the qualifications for the noble work of producing maniacs.

Found on the tennis courts! Several pairs of eyes (mostly feminine). These eyes were cast out of the window during Latin class and neglected to return. Caution! Don't cast said eyes out of the window. They might become transfixed on the tennis courts, don't you know, and it is hard work to remove obstructions.

If anyone wishes to know the meaning of the title of Holman Day's book, "The Ramrodders," apply to a certain Senior girl who is well acquainted with life in the lumber camps.

A townsman was reclining on the greensward next to Hathorn Hall, the Latin Room, and the tennis court. As it happened, a Latin recitation was going on. The townsman then obtained the following information which he has been busy spreading abroad: "The minister is not always the most religious who prays loudest. Still there is such a thing as holy (wholly) noise."

We wonder if the young lady who volunteered the enlightening information in Education class that exceptions break rules knew this from experience. Is that young lady an exception?

The Senior girl who made that awful blunder Bates Night has our sincere sympathy. We wonder why it was that she went to the Empire Theater rather than to the Union Square. Was it because she was of such a modest and retiring disposition that she did not have the courage to inquire whether or not the celebration was to be at the Empire?

FIRST MUNICIPAL CONCERT OPENS TOMORROW EVENING

An Opportunity Will Be Given To Hear
World's Greatest Musical Artists

College Students Should Be Much Interested

Tomorrow evening the opening concert of the Municipal Concert Course is given at City Hall. We wonder how many students have given this series of concerts any thought and have planned to attend. There are four concerts in the series and they should interest everyone. It is a large part of any person's general education to hear and to learn to appreciate the World's best music. Moreover, the price has been so arranged by Mayor Brann that it is within the reach of everyone who appreciates such things enough to invest a small amount. A two dollar ticket entitles attendance at the four concerts, presenting eight of the world's leading artists.

The concert to-morrow evening will be given by the following artists: Miss Sophie Braslau, dramatic contralto of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and John Barnes Wells, tenor.

Miss Braslau possesses a wonderful contralto voice. She sings the old songs of France and the lovely airs of Italy; also the modern songs of France and the best songs by American and English composers.

John Barnes Wells needs no introduction, for he is known in all the best musical centers of the land. He is a graduate of Syracuse University, where he took a prominent part in all musical affairs. He is considered to be one of the greatest Ballad singers in the world.

The second concert comes Nov. 24, and should prove to be of even greater excellence than the first. The artists for this concert are: Mr. Efreim Zimbalist and Monsieur J. Saucier.

Efreim Zimbalist, as many know, is one of the greatest violinists in the world today. His choice of selections is always most attractive and exhibits admirably this great artist's beauty of tone, fine phrasing and graceful ability.

Monsieur J. Saucier is a product of Canada, and is called today, "Canada's sweetest singer."

On December 15 the third concert in the course will be held, and the artist is Miss Mabel Garrison, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera House. Miss Garrison possesses a soprano voice of wonderful range and sweetness of tone, and is sure to captivate her audience. She has lately had the honor of joint recitals with the famous tenor, Caruso.

The fourth and last Concert in the course comes January 26, and should attract everybody, as it is to be given by two young college graduates who have made a distinct place for themselves in the musical world.

Mr. Reinald Werrenrath, baritone, is one of the most satisfactory singers now before the public. He has a fine voice, well controlled, and sings a wide variety of music. He will give several vocal duets with the second artist of the evening, Mr. Lambert Murphy. Mr. Murphy has a tenor voice of unusual quality and is considered one of the foremost concert singers of the day.

It will be interesting for Bates students to learn that both these young artists were ardent glee club men while in college.

The city of Lewiston has gone to much expense in giving this wonderful opportunity to hear the world's best music as interpreted by the great artists of the concert stage. This resumé may attract music lovers among us and stimulate interest in the musical concerts.

Tickets will be obtained any day at the city clerk's office, City Hall, two dollars for the entire course and seat reserved.

GLEE CLUB

The first cut in the Glee Club was made Monday night. A further cut of three or four men will be made in November. The men chosen to continue the work until that time are as follows: first tenors, John L. Sherman, '17, Dyke L. Quackenbush, '18, W. G. Jenkins, '20, L. G. Tracy, '20; second tenors, Francis D. Murray, '17, Robert J. Dyer, '18, Robert A. Adams, '20, Olin B. Tracy, '20, and Evan A. Woodward, '20; baritones, P. W. Lane, '17, Earl B. Renwick, '18, Carl Smith, '19, Kenneth R. Steady, '18, and James May, '20; basses, Donald W. Hopkins, '18, Harold L. Stillman, '19, Murray H. Watson, '19, E. F. Ireland, '20, and Milton Wilder, '20; pianist, Ernest F. Upham, '17.

The writer overheard comments from the grandstand which indicated that the Bates band had improved, and surely the Bates cheering was evident. The feminine contingent was a source of envy from across the field. The co-eds never looked prettier, Bates never supported her team better and, take it all in all, the game should in no way lessen the number of tickets that will be bought for the Waterville trip Saturday. In fact it ought to be an incentive for every man who really wants to see the potential strength of our team as evidenced last week to be fully used in a deciding contest to board the train for Colby.

The Game In Brief

The first period was uneventful except for the Bowdoin touchdown which came after Bates had been rushing the ball about as far as Bowdoin. After that the line plunges of both fullbacks were alternated by punts, those of Davis being far superior. The period ended with Bates' ball on Bowdoin's 23-yard line.

At the beginning of the second period Shattuck dropped back for a field goal, but it fell short. Shumway's punt was poor and Bates appeared ready for a score, but penalties deprived them of a chance. A Bates pass was intercepted and Bowdoin began to make consistent gains. Then DeWever intercepted a pass and made a long run to the center of the field. Bates was gaining well when Chapman made his long run after a fumble and made the second Bowdoin tally. Then the game saw-sawed, but generally in Bowdoin's territory. Davis did some fine punting that was nullified by the bad blunder of a Bates lineman.

Bates opened up the second half with a great fight, taking the ball from her own 15-yard line to Bowdoin's 13. Davis and DeWever did this by line plunging and end runs. Then a forward pass worked, but Bowdoin recovered a fumble and punted. Connors made 13 yards in four rushes and Shattuck kicked a goal from the field. Bates showed great superiority in this period.

Davis intercepted a Bowdoin pass and after an exchange of punts, Bates completed a pass. Penalties to Bates for holding and to Bowdoin for slugging were meted out. Both teams began to be second teams rather than first teams as the substitutes began to go in. Bowdoin gained some big distances through right tackle in this last few minutes after the Bates line had been shaken up completely. The game ended with a string of substitutes going on and coming off the field.

The summary:

missed one of the most sensational finishes in cross country seen for many a day. There were twenty men to start with Lane '18, leading during the first two laps. When the men came in sight across the campus, Gregory, Jenkins and Lane were seen to have a big lead over the rest of the runners, Gregory and Jenkins being quite near with Gregory increasing a small lead. Gregory had 50 yards lead when he started on the last lap around the track. Jenkins then began to pick up and in a great burst of speed nearly caught up with the leader. He was the more exhausted of the two, however, and in the last 30 yards, Gregory uncoiled a sprint of his own and won by a good margin.

There were several other individual finishes that furnished excitement. O. Smith '19 came in an easy fourth and appeared to be in fine condition. He was declared ineligible for competition, however, so his class lost his score which would have reduced their total considerably. Several men appeared to have a new lease of life when they struck the oval and spurred with worthy courage. Several men who had not been out for cross country participated in order that their classes might have full teams and did creditable work.

The men finished as follows: 1, Gregory '19; 2, Jenkins '20; 3, Lane '18; 4, White '19; 5, DeWolfe '18; 6, Turner '20; 7, Larkum '19; 8, Baker '19; 9, Olson '20; 10, Kneeland '18; 11, Woodward '20; 12, Buker '20; 13, Lawson '19; 14, L. Baker '18; 15, House '17; 16, Townsend '18; 17, Larson '19; 18, Wilson '20; 19, Hayes '20.

REGULAR Y. W. C. A. MEETING HELD WEDNESDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 25

Miss Bennett Described Experiences In Florida Mission School

The Y. W. C. A. meeting Wednesday evening, Oct. 25, was conducted by Barbara Gould. Ethel Bennett was the speaker. At the opening of the meeting Lillian Leathers rendered a pleasing mandolin solo.

Miss Bennett gave a very interesting account of her experiences in a mission school for the colored in Orange Park, Florida. She described the attractive campus with its well kept lawns, its large trees, rosebushes and fountains. At one end is the girls' dormitory which is about as large as Rand Hall. The assembly halls and the boys' workshop are nearby. At the other end of the campus stands the boys' dormitory. It is very interesting, she said, to see the seventy students assemble for chapel exercises. The younger girls have tight little braids all over their heads, each tied with a ribbon. Some are showily dressed and bedecked with jewels, but they soon learn to dress with better taste.

The students have less social life than we have in our schools, but certain evenings the boys gather with the girls on the broad piazza of the girls' dormitory. They enter into the singing and enjoy it as only a negro can. All who listen enjoy it equally as well and can testify to the richness of the negro's voice.

She told of the pathetic case of a seventeen year old boy, six feet tall, who was still in the fifth grade. She also told of the fine type represented by Ruth Cassey, who was of college bred parents and who had high ideals and Christian standards.

Miss Bennett, in closing, gave assurance that the majority had a capacity for education equal to that of the average white child.

1904—Miss Abby Louise Barker is teaching English in the High School, Greenfield, Mass., for the second year.

1908—Miss Eleanor P. Sands is instructor in voice culture at Northfield Seminary, Northfield, Mass.

LOCALS

A number of the Bates faculty attended the teachers' convention at Portland on Friday and Saturday of last week. Professor Hertell addressed the departmental section of modern language teachers on "A Teachers' Course in College." Professor Coleman was honored by being elected to the presidency of the Maine Council of Teachers of English.

Incidental to the convention, a Bates banquet was held at Riverton at which one hundred and twelve alumni were present. Dr. Jordan, Dr. MacDonald, Professor Knapp, Dean Buswell, Miss Craighead, and Mr. Rial were among the speakers at this banquet.

Sophomore declamations have already begun. The prize division will speak on Saturday, November 11.

Charles Edgecomb, '18, was in Portland Saturday evening where he gave a reading before the Ivy Lodge of Rebekahs of that city.

"Monte" Moore and Carl Fuller, both of 1914, visited friends on the campus last Saturday.

Burton Irish, '18, accompanied by a number of friends, made the trip to the Bowdoin game Saturday in his touring car.

Donald Clifford of Deering was the week end guest of Elton Knight, '18.

"Ducky" Bright, '16, and "Diek" Eoothby, '16, were dinner guests at the Commons Sunday.

Secretary Harry W. Rowe of the Y. M. C. A. was in attendance last week at the Maine State Sunday School Convention in Waterville. While there he spoke at a United Baptist rally on "The Educational Goal," and "The Five Year Program."

William Neville, '18, was in Bangor Saturday, where he officiated at the football game between Maine Central Institute and Bangor High School.

Henry Johnson, '16, visited friends on the campus last week.

Charles Stetson, '20, spent Sunday at his home in Richmond.

Conrad Coady, '17, who has been confined to the C. M. G. Hospital with a severe cold, is improving rapidly.

C. P. Quimby, Bates '10, was the Sunday guest of his brother, Brooks Quimby, '18.

The Military Science Club meeting, which was to have been held last Thursday evening, was postponed on account of the rally.

Geology laboratory work began last Tuesday. Uncertain weather has put an end to the field trips.

Miss Ellen Aikens, '17, and Mildred Soule, '20, were entertained in Portland Saturday night by Miss Jordan and Miss Wayne, who returned with them Sunday and visited at the college until Monday afternoon.

Miss Alfreda Haskell, '18, entertained her room-mate, Miss Marieta Shibbes, at her home in Oxford over Sunday.

Miss Ruth Lewis, '17, remained in Brunswick after the game Saturday and visited relatives there until Monday morning.

The Misses Doris Ingersoll, '18, Myrtle McIntyre, '18, Eleanor Hayes, '19, and Hattie Crockett, '20, spent the week end at their respective homes.

Miss Grace Kennedy, a sister of Frank Kennedy, '17, is visiting friends in the city and on the campus this week.

Training for the hockey girls begins to-morrow and is to last two weeks. It will pay the Quality Shop to keep on hand a good supply of vanilla ice cream until after the interclass games.

Regular Bible classes for the young women met as usual Sunday evening. Senior girls are especially enthusiastic over the excellent course under Dr. Tubbs, and the attendance is exceptionally good. Dr. Jordan is also giving the Juniors a most interesting and instructive course.

The Cheney House Seniors held an informal spread in Miss Ethel Bennett's room last Saturday evening. Miss Grace Kennedy, who is visiting here this week, was the guest of the occasion.

The monthly meeting of the Philhellenic Club is to be held this evening. This club continues to grow quite rapidly, several new members having been added this fall.

FIRST MEETING OF DEUTSCHER VEREIN HELD ON DAY EVENING

The Deutscher Verein opened its season last Monday evening with an interesting session. President Thompson presided, and Instructor Higgins gave a talk on his work last year at Mercersburg Academy, and especially of the work of the German society.

Mr. Higgins said that last year he was in the heart of a German-American section. In many homes German was the spoken language. The language was not good German but mere colloquial "Pennsylvania Dutch,"—a mixture of English and German. The Germans of that region have considerable trouble in pronouncing English words, and persist in arranging the words in the German order, which of course is very awkward in English.

The German society at the Academy, he said, is similar in name and purpose to the Deutscher Verein at Bates. Those who take the advanced courses are men who speak the language at home to a large extent. The meetings of the society are conducted entirely in German. Papers of interest along various lines are read. A characteristic feature of the program is the staging of short sketches of their own original production. These are generally of a humorous nature, and are very well presented in the native tongue.

The speaker said that certain ideas from this manner of procedure might be adopted by the society here. He then illustrated some of the idiomatic expressions prevalent among the people of the district.

As far as the German-American people themselves are concerned, they are very specialistic in their ideas. A broad education, with knowledge of many subjects, is not a characteristic. The German nation itself is a nation of specialists. Experts are available for all departments.

In conclusion Mr. Higgins said that they are the most hospitable people that could be found in any section of the country, and add much to the versatility of the nation.

Considerable business was transacted after this part of the program. Dyer, Pendelow and Pedbereznak were elected members from the Senior class, and Moulton from the Junior class. Kenneth Wilson and Donald Hopkins were elected members of the executive committee from their respective classes. The new members were then initiated by performing various prescribed stunts. This was the most amusing part of the program and comprised mental as well as physical tests.

Refreshments of German pretzels, fancy crackers and sweet cider were served. The next meeting will come Monday evening to compensate for the lateness in opening the season.

LOST AND FOUND!

The attention of the student body in general, and that of the Freshman in particular, is called to the work of the Lost & Found Bureau. Only through the coöperation of the student body can this department be successful. Students are requested to report their losses and "finds" to representatives of the bureau or at the Y. M. C. A. Office. These members are: Baker '18, Boutelle '18 and Alkasin '19 (Parker), and Gould '19 (Roger Williams). A list of lost articles on hand at the office will be posted on the library bulletin board every Wednesday afternoon.
