BATES WINS OVER OXFORD IN GREAT DEBATE

Football Men off for Wesleyan Where they Open Season Tomorrow

Captain Scott's Line Ready for Battle as Time Draws Near

They're off. By the time that you will be reading this, Captain Arthur Scott and his crew of fleet pig-skin chasers will be on their way for Wesleyan for the opening of the season. But that isn't all that is going to Wesleyan, for with the team will go the hopes of victory of every student in Bates.

The championship prospects for this year are brighter than ever. With only "Old Reliable" John and last year's captain, "Bill" Guiney not answering the call due to graduation, Bates' possibilities for copping the State championship bunting are Ivory Soap percent to the good.

Competition for the varsity eleven is keen. With such a large amount of first class material to work with, the Bates' mentors will find it difficult to select their championship choice. When a coach has fifty-five promising candidates to select from, what he is he to do?

Capt. Scott and "Bla-bla" Peterson are at present the shining illuminaries for the tackle position. Both are in tip-top form and their playing will well be deserved to be watched. "Herm" Woodman, "Joe" Hickey, and Heinie Bergman are also being polished up for the tackle position, and all have given a good account of themselves.

There are enough ends, and first-class ones too, to make up an eleven. Guy Rowe, All-Maine end for last year, Cy Tarbell, Gus Canty, Earl Hutchinson, and Heinie again will furnish the fire-works on the wing positions. Johnny Daker is also meeting with approval for a berth at the end of the line. John is a good tackler, fast on his feet, and clever in evading would-be tacklers.

Undoubtedly the one who occupies centers' berth will have a new pair of side-partners. Peterson, who played guard last year, and Aspasian, who is ineligible this year, will not be seen

612 STUDENTS NOW REGISTERED

Largest Enrollment in History

According to all reports from the registrars office this year will be a banner one in the number of students enrolled. For the last three years the student body has been steadily growing until it has at present reached what is probably its greatest capacity until facilities are materially enlarged. Three years ago the student body numbered 527; two years ago 555 and last year it was 587. This year the grand total is 612 and of these the new students number 200.

While the number of Freshmen is slightly under that of last year the quality is thereby improved. The college authorities realizing that only a limited number of plebes could be handled, effected a process of selection. By the appearance of the newcomers thus far it would seem that the move was a wise one and will build a better college than would mere numbers.

FACULTY CHANGES

Bates students returning to college this fall found several new additions to the faculty awaiting them. Miss Dora Roberts, a former Bates graduate is now house mother at Rand Hall, and supervisor of the dining hall. Mr. McGown is filling the position of Y. M. C. A. secretary on the men's side of the campus. Miss Mildred L. Francis, taking up the duties of our former gym teacher Miss Davies, has already won the hearts of the girls and Miss Margaret Steeves, of Lewiston, a graduate of the C. M. G. hospital, has been appointed the first full-time nurse the college has had.

CITY HALL "PACKED"

Vote Stands 1,135 to 178

Bates 1135; Oxford 178! That tells the story of last night's debate, the greatest forensic contest in the history of Bates.

The Oxford team was comprised of three real gentlemen who presented their case in a very pleasing way. J. D. Woodruff, the third visiting speaker, received one of the most enthusiastic ovations ever accorded a debater in this city. His sincerity of purpose and appeal to the emotions made a deep impression on the audience which filled City Hall to the doors. He was an orator in the real sense of the word.

The Bates men appealing to cold logic and reason put their case across in convincing style and were rightly accorded the verdict of the audience.

The question: Resolved, That this assembly approves the French Occupation of the Ruhr District. Bates upheld the affirmative.

The Oxford team is lead by C. H. O. Scaife who obtained his education at one of the two co-educational schools in England; Harpenden School. During the war he was in the army for a few months as an under-age recruit, but was discharged because this fact became known. Mr. Scaife studied for the English Literature Honours School at King's College London before going to Oxford.

In 1923 he won the Newdigate Prize and was also awarded his Honours degree in the History School at Oxford. Mr. Scaife is a liberalist in politics. In arts a classist. Last term he was Junior librarian and this year is a probable candidate for the presidency of the Oxford-Union Society.

G. A. Gardiner has been educated at Harrow School and like Scaife has had somewhat of a military career, having been 2nd Lieutenant in the Coldstream Guards. Mr. Gardiner is a prominent figure in the new political Reform Club, being president of that society. Besides being in the lime light of politics Gardiner is a very brilliant law student having already obtained his Bachelor of Arts in Law; it is understood that he will take his place at the English bar soon.

G. D. Woodruff the third member of the Oxford team is a native of Kent. Mr. Woodruff's father's mother's family, the Winthrops, were prominent among the settlers of New England, John Winthrop being one of the early governors of the Plymouth colony. Woodruff obtained his education under the Benedictine Monks at Dounside, in Bath, England. During the latter part of the war he served under the Foreign Office and Admiralty in Holland. He has as full a list of achievements as either Mr. Scaife or Mr. Gardiner; having won the Lothian Prize in 1921 and a First Class in the Final History School in 1923. Woodruff has been, and is at the present time, an active supporter of ex-Premier Asquith.

NOTICE!

Coach Cutts announced last night that beginning Tuesday secret football practise will be strictly enforced. Neither students nor towns people will be allowed on the field during practise.

First Chapel Exercises Stir Up Old Bates Spirit for Coming Year

"Prexy" Delivers Fine Message to All Classes - Other Speakers

NEW INFIRMARY WELL EQUIPPED

Will Be of Much Service To College

The college infirmary, which heretofore has occupied rooms on the first floor of Parker Hall, is now located in its new quarters at 148 Nichols Street, on the corner of Nichols St. and Campus Avenue.

Four spacious rooms will provide adequate accommodations for all who may require medical attention. The clinic, completely outfitted, is situated on the first floor, as is also the diet kitchen, where the patients' food is to be prepared.

In a college of six hundred students, coming from various parts of the United States, there is bound to be a certain amount of sickness. Contagious diseases, also, must be expected to appear, but the college authorities, with the new infirmary, any one of whose rooms may be isolated, feel certain that the amount of sickness in the college will be reduced to a minimum.

FRESHMAN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Sometime in the early part of October the Freshman Tennis Tournament will be held. The winner of this tournament will be presented with a silver cup donated by the Boston Bates Club. It is a trophy which carries not a little honor with it, and is well worth trying for.

This tournament also gives Captain "Wally" Fairbanks a chance to look over prospects for the Varsity team, which lost two of its players last spring by graduation. These two vacancies in the team will probably be filled by Freshmen, so start getting into form now!

FRESHMAN RECEPTIONS

Following the Wednesday evening "stag" party under the auspices of the "Y. M." the two campus "Y's" united Saturday night in Chase Hall in the annual reception. The class of '27 was royally welcomed and made to feel at home.

President Gray, Mr. McGown, Wesley Gilpatrick and Miss Vardis Brown were the speakers of the evening and served admirably in that capacity.

CONFIDENCE

in the store with whom you are dealing is an important consideration. We are always looking for new business—why not trade with us—our line is equal to the best.

DREW'S RELIABLE JEWELRY STORE

Established 1861
73 Lisbon Street

An unusually inspiring first chapel exercise was arranged by the faculty to welcome the incoming class of 1927 and the returning upper classes on the first day of Bates' 59th year. The entire faculty contributed to the affair by sitting on the platform clad in academic caps and gowns. The size of this group was itself quite a revelation, for it filled to overflowing a platform once considered quite capable of seating more faculty than Bates College would ever have need of.

President Gray presided and introduced the speakers. Dean Pomeroy was first, and selected the not unfamiliar but still pleasant topic "Bates spirit." His remarks were directed more particularly to the members of the Freshman class. He extended to them the greetings both of the faculty and of the student body, and advised them to fall into the Bates step and the Bates method of doing things in as short an order as possible.

He was followed by Dean Lena Niles, who seems to give great promise of beating Dean Pomeroy out for the cup which is to be awarded the faculty member possessing the most unpretentious platform voice. Miss Niles welcomed the women of the Freshman group and like Dean Pomeroy emphasized Bates spirit and the desirability of getting some of it at once.

The Rev. Milo E. Pearson, always a popular speaker, particularly so with young people, was then introduced. His talk stressed the great worth of a college education and the innumerable ways in which that great value is manifest in the lives of college men and college graduates. He, also, welcomed the Freshmen, his greeting being in behalf of the churches of Lewiston-Auburn.

PRES. COOLIDGE LAUDS GARNET DEBATING PLANS

In Letter Sent to Pres. Gray

The White House once again recognizes Bates as an important factor in promoting "true understanding between the English speaking peoples."

The following letter was received recently by President Gray:

My dear Doctor Gray:
Thank you for calling to my attention the fact that the debate between the Oxford Union and Bates College is to be held next week. I think these international debating bouts, bringing together the representatives of the universities of both sides of the Atlantic, constitute one of the surest modes of promoting permanent amity and true understanding between the English speaking peoples.

Most sincerely your,
(Signed) CALVIN COOLIDGE

ANNOUNCEMENTS

All Freshmen interested in taking an active part in the college weekly are invited to leave their names in the "Student" box on the right hand side of the entrance to Coram Library. News assignments will be posted on the library bulletin board each Monday noon.

The "Student" for the men of the college—both those on and off campus—will be found in the College Book Store. Papers for the co-eds living on campus are delivered each Friday evening at the respective dormitories. Town girls will always find their papers in the college library on Saturday morning.

Next week we will publish an interesting collection of "First Impressions of Bates as given by a number of our new friends in '27. The editor promises a treat in this feature. They will be printed anonymously.

Watch this space for future announcements.

TO THE CLASS OF '27

Now the Bates Student adds its welcome to the many you have already received. It wants each and everyone of you to make the most of your opportunities and to get the most out of your college that is possible,—but you won't get much unless you give much.

Prepare yourselves for service to your Alma Mater. The more you serve her, the more truly will she serve you.

Why did you come to college? No two of you would answer that question alike. But no matter what your individual answers might be, all have come with the idea of benefiting yourselves in some way or another. You realize that a college education means something in the world at large, and you are determined to achieve it. That is a worthy object. In bettering yourselves individually you will inevitably better the world collectively. Make the most, then, of your opportunities.

Get in touch as soon as possible with the various college activities. Keep posted on what Bates is doing. Learn what Bates has done and what Bates plans to do. Be able to talk intelligently on the wonderful records of Bates in athletics, in debating, and in scholarship.

Don't place Bates second, in your esteem, to any college in the land.

Be a Bates booster all the time, in all places, and in all respects. Be a Bates asset, not a liability.

Talk Bates success and live Bates success. Endeavor to the utmost of your ability to develop into an all-round Bates man or woman. Don't bury yourselves so deeply in your books that you can't get time for outside activities. On the other hand, don't take such an interest in outside activities that you never get a chance to "crack" a book. Try and hit the happy medium. It will pay.

Get acquainted with the "profs." When you really know them you can't help but like them. Even the bursar isn't grabbing money all the time, and when he isn't he's really a first-rate sort of chap. Honest he is!

Then there's the registrar. Let us tell you at the outset, you can't put anything over on her. She's the girl who will "cut" you if you try to get funny. Look out!

Moreover, remember that as Bates men and women you have certain obligations to live up to and never fail to do your bit towards helping to make a "bigger, better, busier Bates!"

INITIATION

Tonight, with a banquet, closes the formal initiation week of the Freshmen men. The events of the week have been run off in good shape and our new friends of '27 are perhaps a little wiser to the ways of the college world. As usual, we have seen aspiring young freshmen campaign for the coveted position of president of the entering class; in the parade we have all had fun watching the antics of upperclassmen as well as freshmen; in the sprouts we have seen much promising material turn up; and thoughts of the "hot oven" have warmed spectators and participants alike.

We trust that with the close of these proceedings the Freshmen do not forget that they are still Freshmen. Their initiation has only just begun in the truest sense of the word. They have a great deal to learn. And the upperclassmen are always ready to deal with the "wise" freshmen at the discretion of the ever alert Student Council.

Just remember freshmen you are still on trial and this week's activities does not end your real initiation.

JOTTINGS

A COLUMN OF COMMENT

On Being a Freshman

The college campus looks good to all of us, and every one and every thing in Lewiston smiles welcome, but we who are members of "the upper form" try though we may, cannot approach to the realm of joy that is the province of those who are just entering upon their college career as freshmen. For us, the warm elation that comes when friend meets friend after months of parting, or when the traveler returns home after a summer of wandering and beholds again familiar faces in familiar halls. For them, a glorious never-dying anticipation—a never-satiated passion for the discovery of newer, more wondrous things—the things they have dreamed for months—the things that are only to be found at a small New England college. Our feelings of being back again for another year—our rediscoveries of old scenes, old haunts, conjuring up reminiscences, are indeed sweet—but they are not comparable to the joys that were ours in the years gone by, when we stood tensely upon tiptoe, and looked out upon the world through the happy eyes of freshmen.

Some of those joys come back to us, as we sit in reverie before the great fireplace in Chase Hall, and watch the warm red flames eat through the dry crackling logs, and hear noisy laughing freshmen all about us. It is not so long ago, that we were "freshies" too, entering upon our first glorious year of academic life. A thousand and one memories come, of our initiation week, and of the sophomore-freshman banquet that brought it to a well-earned close, of opening chapel, of our first classes, and our joys as we found in our professors, the minds of gentlemen scholars but the hearts of loyal friends. Other memories come—of first nights downtown in the company of new found friends, and of the lights, the restaurants, the theatres, and even the old figure 8. How much they meant to us in those days; We seized upon each one of these now familiar things, as upon a new discovery, and we lived to the fullest during those first few weeks, ever drinking in the added inspiration of new and more unusual experiences. We felt glad to find ourselves in a college town that was yet a college city, with all the atmosphere and most of the advantages we had read about in books. It was not many days before we came to feel that we too were a part of it all, that we had been welcomed, as it were, into the inner circle of our alma mater, and were close enough to her heart to sense the measured beats. We knew that when we witnessed our first football game on Garcelon field and saw a plucky team bravely, yes heroically against odds, and emerge victorious over a rival college—and found that we were cheering ourselves hoarse, throwing our hats five feet into the air to the music of the college band.

Autumn passed and with it the football season—Winter came, with social events, hockey, and a magic ice carnival—to say nothing of long nights when we found ourselves marooned in our chosen dormitories and came to find ourselves through intimacy, as we talked things over with the aid of our books and pipes. The winter passed, as did the dreaded half-year examinations. Co-education established, many found added joys with the advent of spring and the approach of summer, to say nothing of the charm of outdoor sports and the bracing effect of the incomparable Maine climate. We ended our freshman year reluctantly, hating to leave at Commencement time, but determined to come back again the following September. And we did. As Sophomores, we had a fine time intimidating the new freshmen but even then we felt that we were missing something that they alone were getting. So it is now as we review it all, knowing that this is our last year at Bates, and that we leave this coming June with a thousand memories and regrets swelling up in our hearts, that we heave a sigh and wish that we too, were freshmen.

PRESIDENT GRAY'S CHAPEL ADDRESS

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1923

Pres. Gray, speaking at first chapel at Bates College, Thursday, discussed the goal of college.

"Some think of it simply as a bread and butter proposition," said he, "the sole purpose of which is to provide the necessary preparation for earning a livelihood in one of the professions.

"For others it is a cloistered retreat where youth absorbed in books loses contact with the real world and upon graduation faces an inevitable and painful period of readjustment.

"There are not a few persons to whom the very name 'college' is anathema. Now it is a business man who is certain that these institutions, if not actually breeding places of Bolshevism, are responsible for every unsound economic theory and now it is a preacher who makes a blanket indictment against all higher education because he thinks the doctrine of evolution incompatible with orthodoxy. Then there is the 'country-club' idea of college—four years of congenial friendships amid most delightful associations, where one can major in athletics or dramatics, minor in winter carnivals, junior proms and cheering sections, the whole being mildly, and perhaps perceptibly, tinctured with enough arts or sciences to merit a bachelor's degree.

"A year ago today, I pointed out that the primary, if not almost the sole, business of the college is to teach its students how to use their minds; in other words, we are here to learn to think, and I went on to say that real thinking means three things, thinking thru, thinking straight and thinking right. This is a statement in which the college ideal is set forth in terms of method. Today it is my task to lay before you the college ideal not so much in terms of method as in terms of the larger end or, as a philosopher might put it, to give you the theology of a college education. We must ever keep in mind the ultimate goal. We learn how to think not so much for the sake of thinking but rather in order that we may live on higher levels, not apart from our fellow men but in their behalf. Real thinking must bear fruit in real living.

"There are three essential elements in real living which it is the business of Christian education to develop in the individual student to the highest possible degree.

"The first element is perspective in relation to truth. Nothing is more noble or appealing than the patient, tireless pursuit of truth for its own sake. But noble as this pursuit is, there is constant danger of losing one's sense of proportion, of emphasizing the importance of the particular phase of the truth we are seeking to the exclusion of other kinds of truth quite as valuable, and of even reaching the place where we mistake our own little segment for the whole round circle of truth. * * * Distortion begets intolerance, and intolerance bigotry, and so it goes.

"The second element in real living is appreciation in relation to beauty. No college training is adequate that fails to inculcate in the student a genuine love for the beautiful. Our Puritan inheritance has made it difficult to give due recognition to the part which the fine arts play in the development of society as well as in the development of the individual. But reaction has set in and, as in every extreme swing of the pendulum, society is returning to a more moderate position.

"The third element in real living is passion in relation to goodness. No education is worthy of the name "Christian" that fails to emphasize the importance of the possession of the highest ethical standards on the part of the student. It is not enough instinctively to recognize the difference between right and wrong, between good and evil; college training must give us the will to do the one and shun the other. We cannot be satisfied with less than a passion for that which is noblest and purest and best.

"It is not the business of the college to give courses in honesty or purity. You cannot teach virtue with the aid of a textbook any more than you can make people good by legislation. But it is the business of a college, in preparing its students for real living, to provide them with that sort of atmosphere in which right thinking and right acting will be both natural and easy of accomplishment. This institution can not fulfill its highest ideals if it does not produce in its sons and daughters a real passion for righteousness.

CAMPUS NOTES

ARTHUR W. POLLISTER, Editor

By far the most important political event upon the Campus thus far this year has been the campaign for President of the Freshmen class. This has brought two names into prominence, those of Mr. Graves and Mr. Glazier. Mr. Graves may perhaps have found inspiration in the thought that his classmates must appreciate the fact that what is good enough for the Class of 1924 certainly ought to be satisfactory to the Class of 1927. Mr. Glazier favored a policy of drastic reform in the dormitories. There also seems to have been another candidate in the background, a strangely afflicted individual by the name of Skidmore.

Warren Gould is speculating successfully in foreign securities. He is at present disposing of German banknotes of various denominations for the exorbitant sum of ten cents each. We shall soon expect to hear the name of Gould mentioned with that of Stinnes. Warren is said to have become aware of this great business opportunity through an Esperantist correspondence.

"Cece" Holmes, whom we of the class of '24 remember well, is now instructor of English at New Haven High School.

Both of our young friends of the Graves family strenuously deny relationship. Neither Sam or Percy desire to establish a family tree upon which both are perched. Sam does not, however, deny that other rumor to the effect that he has found a new interest in Milliken House. He is a strenuous objector to freshman rules insofar as they apply to co-eds. We wonder why!

CROSS COUNTRY

Practise Began Monday by Coach

Cross Country training was started in earnest Monday when Coach Jenkins met his charges for the first time. The first day was limited to setting up exercises and a short run to limber up. About fifteen men reported to the Coach and more are expected to turn out later in the week.

This year the material for a championship team looks quite promising. In Captain Cyk McGinley who took first place in the Maine Intercollegiate X Country meet, Bates has a fighting leader. Holt, Hurley, Ward, Dorr, Hodgkins, Archibald, Corey, and Burdill, members of last years track team are the veterans who have turned out. Among the most promising freshmen material are, Bob Batten, brother of last years X country Capt., Ray Batten, G. McGinley and Cahill. With this splendid start already made we can look forward to a fast and plucky team to represent the Garnet in the hill and dale event.

"FROSH" GET HOT WELCOME

But Sophs Get Wet in Tug-of-War

THE FRESHMEN-SOPHOMORE BASEBALL GAME

The Freshmen initiation week started with a bang when the Sophomores beat the yearlings 7 to 6 in baseball. The contest lasted for eight innings, altho scheduled for seven innings. Baker, the freshman pitcher proved almost too much for the Sophomores. Untimely errors on the part of the sophomores allowed the freshmen to pile up a lead of two runs in the first three innings. Leonardi started the rally for the Sophs in the fourth inning. The Sophomores then began the rally that tied the score in that inning. Leonardi starred again in the fifth when he spectacularly caught a hard liner off the bat of Bryant, the freshmen first baseman. The score at the end of the seventh was five to five. In the eighth the pinch hitting of Karkos and the timely hitting of Brown and Young netted two runs.

Score by innings:

Sophs.	0	0	0	4	0	1	0	2
Freshies.	0	0	2	2	0	1	0	1

THE PUSH-BALL CONTEST

The Push-ball game was the second feature of initiation week. This game was a rather one sided affair for the Sophs. The freshmen, who were held scoreless thruout the contest did not even push the ball into the danger zone. The work of Giddings as captain, Leighton and June Stanley stood out for the Sophs. The final score was 1 to 0 in favor of the Sophs. Fairbanks and Corey were referees and Joie Cogan acted as timekeeper.

THE TUG-OF-WAR

The Tug-of-War true to existing traditions was a "wet affair." At first it seemed that the sophomores were going to get the wet end of it, but that was only for a minute. The Freshmen were thoroughly soaked in their second attempt to pull the Sophs across the line.

The "classic" of the day's struggle was the intra-class affair among the freshmen. The two opposing teams were captained by Mr. J. Percy Graves (affectionately called Percy by the upperclassmen) and Mr. Glazier, both candidates for the time honored office of class president. The team captained by Graves pulled Glaziers' team through an extremely wet mud-puddle. Glazier not to be outdone rallied his fleeting forces and in the second try reversed matters. The result of the day was: Freshmen wet 100%.

THE NIGHT-SHIRT PARADE

The very pinnacle of the initiation was reached Wednesday night when the freshmen "en masse" paraded thru the streets of Lewiston, headed by the Hon. J. Percy Graves, holding a placard announcing his candidacy for President. Although archaic hen fruit and ancient tomatoes were absent, sufficient water bags made the success of the parade a surety.

Headed by a makeshift band, pushing a wagon and carrying a ladder, the freshmen marched, single file, down College street. Seammon, a freshman, pushed a baby cart in the parade.

As the Freshmen neared Lisbon Street, the sound of the cannon (in charge of artilleryman "Red" Mennealy) spurred them on at double time in a fantastic serpentine. On hands and knees in front of Music Hall was one of the many stunts done by the Freshmen in the parade.

As College and Sabattus Streets the Parade was halted to enable the yearlings to make speeches under the gentle (?) persuasion of more water bags. Snow, Hodgkins and Mr. Nikoladas were among the speakers. The latter cheered the noble class of '26" in his own language (Greek).

The parade ended in front of Parker hall where the Freshmen knelt and cheered for "26." Under a deluge of water from every available window of the hall they gave three groans for the lowly class of "27."

On Thursday at 3.00 o'clock the freshmen appeared on the Garcelon field wearing their caps and ready to

WITH THE CO-EDS

LAURA WARREN, Editor

Every up-to-date organization or institution has some means by which its members can express their views and exchange ideas. The Bates Student offers an opportunity for such. Every underclass girl is expected to be on the alert for any news which would be of interest to Bates people. A box just inside the Library door will receive your contributions. We welcome you, Freshmen girls to our columns.

Seniors Entertain

Rand Hall was the scene of festivities Sunday afternoon when the Senior girls opened their rooms in welcome to their Freshmen sisters.

As part of the plan of making the girls of 1927 feel really at home, they were most cordially received and entertained at Rand. Refreshments were served in the various rooms in the course of the afternoon.

Both Seniors and Freshmen had a profitable and delightful time.

Call outs for Hockey for all the classes will be given the last of this week. Everyone out on the field with her class. With a continuance of good weather and under the direction of one new coach Miss Frances, the Hockey season ought to be the best ever.

Miss Gladys Hall '21 who is to be connected with the Lewiston Branch of Red Cross Work this winter was a recent visitor on campus.

Y. W. C. A.

The first Y. W. meeting of the year was held in Rand Hall reception room Wednesday evening. Louise Bryant lead the devotions and Helen Lovelace spoke on Fellowship.

The reopening of college finds us meeting many old and new faces. Miss Agnes Waddell formerly of the class of '26 has entered the Russell Sage Institution of N. Y. Miss Catherine Lynch of the class of '24 has returned after spending two years at St. Elizabeth's College. Miss Elsie Murry and Catherine Stone who have been absent a year have entered the Junior class. Miss Margaret Mahan who attended Mount Holyoke College last year has entered the Junior class.

FOOTBALL MEN OFF FOR WESLEYAN

in their familiar positions at guard. However, prospects are plentiful and promising. "Reggie" Ray, who tips the beam around the double century mark, Lawrence Dow, "Bob" Chandler, Charlie Diehl, and Mattor have all shown Coach Cutts their wares at the guard position.

"Hap" Price, who has been varsity center for the past two years, is again holding down his old position in the center of the line. Competition is given to "Hap" in the persons of Wesly Gilpatrick, George Chase, and "Bill" Eld, who comes to us from Worcester Academy and who held down the pivot job on W. A.'s unbeaten team of last year.

The mathematics of the game is being dictated by the Kempton-Moulton duet. "Fido" and "Doc" were used in the signal-barker's capacity last year, and the coaches have little to worry about this position.

There is an abundance of backfield material out for the team with several 1922 lettermen in the list. Prominent among these are "Ev" Woodman, "Butch" Fellows, Kenny, "Joe" Folsom, "Don" Cobb, another member of Worcester Academy's last year team, and Charlie Ray. Rutsky, who had little opportunity to play last year because of a bad ankle, is also causing no small amount of worry to the other aspirants for a backfield berth.

"Butch" Fellows will undoubtedly do the kicking this year, and he has also demonstraed his ability at passing.

And so, let us all work together for the best season that Bates has enjoyed for many a season.

participate in the "Sprouts." Many interesting stunts as well as a universal paddling were enjoyed by the on-lookers. This ended the initiation week with the exception of the annual Freshmen-Sophomore banquet scheduled for Friday evening.

WEDDING BELLS CHIME FOR PROFS

Baird and Woodward Fall Before Cupid's Darts

It was one morning last spring when Congressman Upshaw, speaking in Chapel, said, "Next Saturday I'm coming back and deliver a speech that will marry off every unmarried member of the faculty. It rather looks as though he made good his word. Suffice it to say, where there were four bachelors among the faculty, there are now but two.

Professor Baird was the first to succumb to the wiles of the fairer sex. On Monday night of June 25, the ceremony was performed at the manse of the State Street Congregational church in Portland. Dr. Henry Stiles, pastor of that church officiated.

The bride is the oldest daughter of Judge William B. Peirce of Dexter, formerly mayor of Bangor and district attorney of Penobscot county, also prominent in State fraternal and political affairs. The bride's mother was, before her marriage, Miss Mary Robinson of Bangor. Miss Pierce prepared at Bangor High School, later graduating from Simmons in the class of '22. While there she was both active and popular in undergraduate clubs and an officer of the student government. For the last year she has taught domestic arts at Jordan High.

Two doors down from the simple but cozy rooms of Professor and Mrs. Baird, in the Lempert apartments on Wood Street, live another newly married couple. Mr. Evan A. Woodward, instructor in English, was the second member of our faculty to throw off the shackles of bachelordom. Miss Beatrice L. Weeks and Mr. Woodward were married in Marlborough, Mass. on the evening of Sept. 1.

The bride, who is a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College, class of 1921, has been assistant to the director of college publicity since her graduation.

Mr. Woodward came to us after graduating from Dartmouth in 1922, and since then has shown an amount of pep and enthusiasm which has made him very popular both with the students and the faculty.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

A CHARACTER BUILDING FOOTBALL TEAM

The first of the Wednesday evening "Y" meetings will be held in Chase Hall at 6:45, October 3.

Coach Oliver Cutts will be the speaker, and will address the men on the above subject; one dealing with practical Christianity in a way that will appeal to every red-blooded man on the campus. Plan to be present.

During the opening days of college "Y" service facilities have been much in evidence. But though outside evidences have been removed, the service still remains. Call at the "Y" office if you need help.

The drive among the freshman class for new members is to be launched soon. 100% membership is expected.

The faculty at Trinity college prefers the non-collegiate title "Mr." instead of the collegiate salutation "Prof" or "Professor." It is natural for the students of the institution to use the latter salute, but it is now known that among the faculty members themselves the conventional "Mr." is employed. It is just a preference and they are satisfied with just plain "Mr."

No, dearie; you don't have to wash dishes now-a-days to get a rough chap on your hand.

COUNT RUMFORD
1753-1814

Born Benjamin Thompson in Massachusetts. Charged with being a Tory, went to England, and became Under-Secretary of the Colonies. Later, in Bavaria reorganized the military department and was made Count Rumford. Returned to England and engaged in scientific research. Founded the Rumford professorship at Harvard.

He watched the pot as it boiled

Thousands of people had watched the boiling pot, but Count Rumford wondered why it boiled. He did more than wonder; by scientific research he found out for himself.

And Rumford laid the foundation of the greatest generalization the human mind has yet conceived—the law of the conservation of energy.

Scientists in the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company are devoting their lives to pure research, carrying on the work of Rumford and other pioneers of modern science. By methodical investigation, the frontier of scientific knowledge is being pushed steadily forward.

The General Electric Company, by continuous scientific research, has developed new and better ways of making electricity of use to mankind.

SPORT NOTES
 JOHN F. O'CONNOR, Editor
 The stage is set! To-morrow afternoon the curtain rises on the first act of "The Bates Football Schedule," at Middletown, Conn. when the Garnet warriors face the eleven from Wesleyan University.

Let's listen for the Hathorn Bell to-morrow night.
 It surely looks good to see 60 candidates for the football team going through calisthenics and grass drill. But it's hard work, and these men should be given every consideration for quiet evenings for study and rest. Co-operation by the undergraduate body is a great factor in team success.

"Scutt" Sampson, "Jim" Stonier, and "Old Reliable" John Davis are assisting coaches Cutts and Wiggin in getting the team in shape. Such interest by the Alumni should be an incentive for undergraduate loyalty, if such is needed.
 The remarks made by Coaches Cutts Jenkins, and Woodward after chapel Monday morning should be strictly adhered to.

If the football coaches want to close the gates on practice they are fully justified in doing so. Crowding around signal practice and scrimmage is an irritation to the players and coaches, and prevents an opportunity for their best work.

The freshmen especially should heed the words of coach Jenkins. The running game is a sport where many have met success who have never dreamed of having ability in this field. Let's have two championship teams this fall.
 Don't forget that first home game, October 6.

And it's not too early to think of "bumming" one's way to Boston, to see the Tufts game at Medford.

ARTHUR SCOTT

The Bates football team will take the field this year under the leadership of Captain Arthur Scott of Gardiner, Maine. "Scottie," as he is more commonly called, has all the qualities of a good leader despite his calm unassuming disposition off the field. His previous three years as a Garnet linesman have proved his ability and confidence. Though quiet as we have previous said, "Scottie" has a strong sense of discipline, and is a firm believer in strict training. He is not the flashy type of player who attempts to furnish the high light and spectacular thrills of a game, but rather he gives 100% attention and every ounce of strength that is in him for every second that he is on the gridiron. His fairness toward all the fellows assures him of the co-operation of every man on the squad.

In addition to his football achievements "Scottie" has been a member of the championship hockey team for the past two years, is a member of the Varsity Club, President of the Rifle Club, and President of the Parker Hall association. Here's wishing luck to Captain Scott for a successful season and a State championship.

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE
 Sept. 29 Wesleyan at Middletown
 Oct. 6 M. A. C. at Lewiston
 Oct. 13 Tufts at Medford
 Oct. 20 Maine at Lewiston
 Oct. 26 Bowdoin at Brunswick
 Nov. 3 Trinity at Lewiston
 Nov. 10 Colby at Waterville
 Nov. 14 U. of N. H. at Lewiston

This year's schedule is one of the best in years. The entire undergraduate body should see at least six games,—four at home and one at Waterville and one at Brunswick. Many also will see the Tufts game.
