GALA PROGRAM COMPLETED FOR BACK-TO-BATES NIGHT

Record Crowd Expected to Enjoy Well Ordered Program Including Speeches by Pres. Gray and Coach Morey, And Music, Songs, Cheers, and Refreshments.

Under the capable direction of a committee composed of Harry Rowe '12, and Elmer Campbell '27 representing the alumni, and Russell Chapman '31, Ben Chick '31, and Gilbert Clap-perton '32 of the undergraduate body. a program for "Back-to-Bates Night" on the eve of the Bowdoin game next Friday night has been arranged which gives promise of making that night one that will stand out in the memory of

The program will start at 8 o'clock in Alumni Gymnasium with group singing led by a well known Portland man whose name is being withheld, and from then on, there will be something interesting every minute of the time. The speakers of the evening will be President Gray, Coach Dave Morey, and a prominent member of the alumni. Fine Entertainment Planned

The rejuvenated Bates band will be there to play an accompaniment to the singing and to furnish some snappy music. The band this year is reputed to be the best in years, and they promise to be at their best next Friday evening. In addition a fine entertainment has been arranged with a variety of numbers which are guaranteed to keep every bers which are guaranteed to keep every man on the edge of his seat. There will be plenty of opportunity for some of the alumni who have not "loosened-up" since the last "Back-to-Bates Night" to forget their dignity, and to cheer for the great team that played the highly touted University of Maine team to a standstill in a hard-fought game last Saturday, and returned home with the proverbial bacon. The cheering will proverbial bacon. The cheering will be led by the varsity cheer leaders under the direction of Howard Thomas

Cider, doughnuts, peanuts, and coffee will be served during the refresh-ment period by members of the Varsity It is expected that every Bates man will be there to do justice to the opportunity for a fine wholesome evening of fellowship, and to give visible evidence of the fact that he is rooting for the fighting Bobcat football team that has shown itself an aggressive, courageous unit against every team that it has met.

For Men Only The rally will be sponsored by the Varsity Club and the Alumni Association. As instituted last year, the rally will again be exclusive for men.

Not only will enthusiasm be aroused for the battle royal with Bowdoin on Garcelon Field the next day, but it is also expected that cheers will be given for Coach Thompson's Cross-country team which earlier in the day will have met the University of Maine harriers for the championship of the State.

Last year's success perhaps is a certain indication of what the success of next Friday night will be.

New System to Supplement Work of Bates Debate League in Schools

Another forward step has been ini tiated this year in Bates debating This step takes the form of a "junior varsity" squad to supplement the varsity" squad to supplement the work of the Bates Interscholastic Debate League and provides a training ground for varsity competition.

Chain Store is Subject
A system has been devised whereby groups of six Bates debaters will go to different parts of the state and debate both sides of the question to be used later in the interscholastic debates This year the question is concerned with the value of the chain store to the American people. Friday. Orimer Bugbee, Dorothy McDonald, and Shirley Cave on the affirmative, and Eva Sonstroem. Francis Carroll and Lawrence Parker, on the negative will go to Livermore Falls to debate this question before an audience composed to a large extent of invited high school teams. This will give these teams an opportunity to see and hear how a debate should be conducted and what can be expected of them in their interscholastic debates. At the same time this experience will be valuable to the Bates debaters themselves, making them more familiar with the question and more practiced in the art of debating. question before an audience composed debating.

Unemployment is Topic of Very Interesting Talk At Last Y Meeting

A small group of fellows met in the Y Room last Wednesday evening to get to the bottom of the unemployment problem. Buell Gallagher, Assistant Secretary of the New England Student Y. M. C. A. who studied at the London School of Economics was secured by the college association to lead the discus-

His discussion centered about the questions of ethical implications of unemployment for Christians. Unemploy-ment was found to be a human rather than a theoretical problem. Hunger, clothes, disease, shelter and the right to enjoy some of the roses of life are vital to the existence of all men. Thus when a man is "laid off" he is forced outside the organization of society and is deprived of his right of existence. One of the principles of Christianity is that an abundant life shall be available to all men. Therefore the Christian has a direct interest in a problem which nullifies the abundant life.

Mr. Gallagher clearly traced the growth of certain economic conditions which have resulted in the acute unemployment situation. More machinery replacing hand labor, increased production of goods, since employees receiving wages from industry—result there is no one to buy increased productive capacity—lessened sales, lessened production, more unemployment. It is one indication that the present capitalistic

Traces Background of Unemployment

system of economics is not working. Several propositions were considered as a remedy for unemployment. 1. Expand foreign trade and so bring sales equal to production. 2. Kill off overpopulation through war and so have smaller number of people among which to distribute goods. 3. Birth control as a preventive of over-population. 4. A fundamental reorganization of our economic society with goods produced for use rather than profits, a more equal distribution of the nations income, and the introduction of social insurance against unemployment, sickness, and old age. Each proposition was discussed in the light of its relation to Christian ethics. Professors Myhrman and Car-

To Be Given on Tuesday Evenings—To Cover Fifteen Weeks

University extension courses will be presented this season by several Bates professors. The courses are given on Tuesday evenings and will cover a space of 15 weeks.

Professor Robinson is giving a course in the development of the Little Theatre movement in Europe and America, beginning with the origin of the Little Theatre groups and the duties of the members of the groups. Studies will be made of choosing and casting a play, stage business and rehearsals, settings, costuming, and light-ing. Scenes from various plays will be read and produced to exemplify the theory of the course. Professor Robinson will close the course with practice work in make-up.

Courses in American Literature Prof. Robert Berkelman will present course in American literature on Tuesday evenings in the Little Theatre. The course will include fifteen lectures on outstanding writers of the nineteenth the discussion of such an involved subject gained for them the admiration of the entire audience.

Score in Second Period

The break which led to the Bates score occurred in the second period. Chamberlain, standing on the Maine 45-yard line, punted off-side on the four-yard line. The kick was extra fine and undoubtedly was the play which placed Bates in a position to score. Bagley, Maine quarterback, standing well behind the goal-line, prepared to kick out of danger. The pass came back a little high and wide but still within reach of the punter. He got his hands on the ball but could not hold it, and it landed behind him. turned quickly and scooped up the ball, but as soon as he had taken a few steps he was smothered by a rush of Bates players, led by Sam Kenison who, as usual, knew what was going on in the ball game. This was the lone score but it was all that was needed to give Bates the victory.

Maine Threatens in First Maine's best bid for a score came in the first period when Bates getting away to the usual slow start, was pushed back about forty yards on three first downs before making a stand to stop Maine. After this first flurry both lines became as stone walls and neither team could gain ground. By using every bit of "football sense" possible the Bobeats were able to keep the play in enemy territory all through the second and third periods. The defensive play of both teams in these periods was remarkable. The punting of Chamberlain who is not known series of lectures before the Hawthorne Class and the Auburn Art and Literature Club. Rain Makes Slippery Field Slows Up Backfields Fumbles Costly

Hampered by the mud, a potentially-powerful Freshman football team and a plucky but lighter eleven from the Eastern Maine Conference Seminary battled through four scoreless periods, Friday afternoon, on Garcelon Field. A drizzling rain made the ball slippery, ruining the attack of both backfields, as each had been intent on stressing an aerial game. Several fumbles were costly to both teams, and for the greater part of the game the ball was in mid-field. Mitchell and McDermott, visiting ends, were exceptionally fast in getting down under punts, often smothering the Bates receiver before he could move. Pelkey, at quarter, also played a great game for E. M. C. S., running the ball back twenty-five yards on the first punt of the game.

BACK-TO-BATES

This Friday night occurs the annual nations. Back-to-Bates Night, an affair which seems to be becoming increasingly popular with both alumni and undergraduates. This should be considered one of the best of the Bates traditions. It is absolutely the only time at which a large number of alumni and students can get to-gether and exchange views on everything from the weather to "what we're going to do to Bowdoin to-morrow". And when we consider that both "old grads" and "undergrads" are a vital part of the college, it is easy to see why such a get-together is essential.

Last year there was introduced an innovation. The rally itself was made a "stag" affair. The dire prophecies of many of us were unfulfilled, and the affair was a huge success. Whether it fifty-one debates with teams of other was because of its being held in the gym, or because of the refreshments, or because of the temporary "freedom" of some of the alumni (and perhaps some of the undergrads?) it is hard to say. But at any rate it proved itself popular enough to be established as a permanent feature of the Back-to-Bates celebration.

Last year one might have looked for the faults which would naturally occur in any affair of this sort when it is in the experimental stage. But an outsider would have no reason to think that it was not a regular custom at Bates and run off according to long-established precedents. This year, the personnel of the committee in charge contains many of the names of those who France. and for that last year, reason, if for no other, the rally should be "bigger and better than ever"

The Student does not flatter itself that its alumni circulation is very large. but if this issue happens to be brought to the notice of any Bates men of former years, we hope that you will take this as an expression of the invitation which the Bates men of the present are extending to you to come back on Friday night, renew old acquaintances and make new ones; and then see the team beat Bowdoin on the next afternoon. We undergraduates hear a lot about the Alumni, but you seem always to be a more or less vague force so that we speak of you in words like, "The Alumni think this", or "The Alumni don't like that". But it is very seldom that we see any of you until we, as graduates, are about to join your ranks. Why not come up Friday night and let us take a look at you? We'll try to give you a good time, and what is lacking Friday night will be made up on Saturday.

INTERNATIONALISM

In order that the above title may not scare away many of those who listened for an hour and a half to the discussion of the American and German teams in the Chapel last Monday night, may we say at once that this is not to be a continuance of the debate or even of the open forum.

The debate with the German team however, seems to offer a splendid of them when they did come and did opportunity to outline briefly just what so; that it was a wet day and the Bates between Americans and people of other

Bates has, of course, been noted for the large number of missionaries located in all parts of the world which she can number among her graduates. It is unnecessary to enlarge upon the work that these good men and women are doing to help approach the ideal of "world brotherhood", for their work is well-known. Bates, perhaps, is no more outstanding in this field than are some other institutions, but she can certainly be proud of her record.

The next influence is the matter of international debating, and on this ground, Bates stands supreme over all other colleges and universities in the United States. Whether or not the idea of international debating was original with Bates, the fact remains that by means of a debate with Kings College of Canada in 1912, she started the practice, and ever since then has been a driving force in the movement nations is surpassed by few, if any, colleges in the country. In this list are included debates with teams from Canada, England, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand, Scotland, and finally, Germany. Two other contests, with the University of Porto Rico and with the University of the Philippines, while not strictly international, performed a similar function. Here indeed is a force working for good will relied is a force working for good-will which is perhaps best exemplified by Monday night's discussion. There could have been no one in the audience who did not leave with a more sympathetic understanding of the difficulties with which Germany is beset.

Another attempt to increase the good-will between the United States and a foreign nation may be seen in the degree which Bates College recently conferred upon Ambassador Claudel of

A suggestion has been made by which Bates might continue this work along a slightly different line. For some time, a number of larger universities have made a practice of exchanging students with foreign institutions, or establishing a sort of scholarship fund through which the expenses of one or more students from other countries might be paid. It was suggested that while Bates College itself might feel that it could not afford to do it, it might not be a bad idea for any campus organization which had a sizeable surplus in its treasury and which had any reason to be at all interested in that work, to do something like that.

Frankly, we must say that we have not inquired into the practicability of the suggestion, but, offhand, it would seem that to add to missionary work and international debating the establishment of an exchange fund, or some-thing like that, for a foreign student, would be a wonderful way for Bates to continue to add her "mite" to the great cause of internationalism and world peace.

"Bates got the breaks", "If it had been a dry day", "—didn't make one first down". How often we have heard those remarks—even here at home—since last Saturday! We are among those with "school spirit" who maintain that the better team won at Orono. To the above remarks we answer there were breaks on both sides, but the Garnet team was in a better position to take advantage

BEAVES of 油 MEMORY

By VALERY BURATI

William Henry Hartshorn

Monie Hartshorn died, sitting in his chair in Room 14 of Hathorn Hall on the morning of February 24, 1926. Students coming to their early English Literature class found him sitting in the shadows with a smile upon his face, and realized that he was dead.

students bore the body through the quiet air of winter to his home, and when chapel filled at the next hour for the morning services, a hush as placid as his features were in death, had fallen over the assemblage.

A few moments before he had fed his squirrels and had left his home in cheerful mood.

Death came gracefully to him, softly as the sunlight came through the haze of the morning frost. The sun was still low in the East and the white sheen of snow was upon the fields and the woods. The stems of the ivy vine outside the room fringed the windows with an Arctic lace.

Monie's book was open upon his desk. The pages was turned to Robert Browning's "A Grammarian's Funeral'', which ends:

Here-here's his place, where meteors shoot, clouds form, Lightnings are loosened, Stars come and go! Let joy break with the storm, Peace let the dew send!

Lofty designs must close in like effects; Loftily lying, Leave him—still loftier than the world suspects,

Living and dying. Students who now climb those peculiar stairs of Hathorn Hall to Room 14 scarcely know that their study chamber is hallowed with more sadness and beauty than an old man's memory. No one knows whether in his last moments of flickering consciousness, Monie heard the ringing of Hathorn bell above him, faintly and far away, and realized that it was also ringing his requiem. His cheeks that morning, in the cold were as ruddy as ever when he crossed the campus from his home. His eyes were as brilliant in their plump setting of a Shakesperian face as they had ever been since he had taught the devotees of poetry and prose.

In his classes the brilliant student was humble, and humbled. Monie would ask questions, the brilliant student would answer until he was in a dilemma, and would then sit down in confusion while Monie looked on slyly, condescending and pitifully in his umorous way.

The smallest incidents of campus life were known to him. How he learned them no one knows, but he referred to them in his classes. He was an expert gardener and never thinned his beets and carrots. "Your enemies will do that for you," he would say.

One days a student fell asleep in Monie's classroom. At the end of the period he was still sleeping. So Monie motioned to the class to go out quietly. He tip-toed out after them and closed the door, while the student slept, and slept on.

He had been the favorite English pupil of President Chase, so when Monie graduated from Bates in 1886, President Chase made him teacher of English while he himself taught Psychology.

As the leaves fall in the autumn, these memories fall from the tree that is Bates. Forgotten after years the pale leaf flows again with sap and color drawn from reverie.

This is a leaf that the soft wind rustles. For a moment the ruddy Shakespere-like face, with its merry and profound eyes, its plump cheeks and drooping mustache. lives again. For a moment too that upturned face smiles with the composure of death, and the students gasp in the doorway. Then the wind comes again and the

for the kind of weather; and that although the first downs were five to none against us, it isn't the number of men that is left on bases, but the number of runs, that counts, which is another way of repeating the title of the editorial.

Saturday's game was only one of three in the State Series, and perhaps it is a little too early to begin "count ing chickens", and even if we should lose the next two games, which is extremely doubtful, let no one get the idea that we didn't deserve to win this game, for we most certainly did, and for some very good reasons. Some say it was because Bates had the better line; some, because the Bates punting was better; some, because Bates had more team-work; some, because the Bates team was the more dependable; and some, because Bates played the right kind of football for the kind of day. Whatever the cause, or causes, were, we can say that we won and hold part Bates College has played in the development of better understanding game, you know—was the better chosen no "upset".

THE WEEK IN CHAPEL

By ELDEN DUSTIN

The vigorous crispness of fall mornings seems to challenge the physical in us and to demand of us a complement of bodily vigor to match the style of the season. With this introduction Dr. Sawyer asks and answers the question, "Why the emphasis on athletics? Why play football, run cross-country, or take part in any of the athletic programs of college?" Although super-Although super ficial answers might be "for play, and for enjoyment", the real answers go much deeper.

There is a well established biological reason why we like to play. In man's long struggle through the ages his very existence has depended on competition, which, refined for the needs of modern life, has become the trials and contests of the large category "play". And then the vital correlation between physical and mental fitness is unquestionable, but this in the long run is not the most important influence of physical well-being in life.
Sound physical fitness furnishes good foundation for sound morality. Of course the factor of the will must be considered, for man may be moral and yet weak physically, but this does not destroy the argument. It is just as much a duty for an individual to preserve physical fitness as it is for him to preserve the laws of the State and morality. Herbert Spenser in "four categories in education" p the development of sound physical and mental health first. Paul the Apostle must have been thinking of this same relationship between morality and physical fitness when he said "And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things."

The outstanding temptations of mankind are expressed in the Biblical accounts of the temptations of Jesus. The temptations to turn stones into bread, to cast himself down from the temple exulting in a specially endowed privilege of God, and to worship the Devil and thus gain possession of the world are symbolical of the temptations of pleasure, pride, and power.

It is not difficult to see the evils of the first and last of these temptations. Pleasure for the enjoyment alone takes time from more valuable things. The strife and bloodshed of history show the evils of a lust for power. So pre-valent is it that a good test of character is-"would you rather help an in-dividual or rule him?"

It is not so easy to analyze the temptation of pride. Fride hardens our hearts against the troubles of our fellow men, and makes us claim privileges others do not enjoy. Pride is one of the most anti-social characteristics. It makes us indifferent to society about us; it is probably the foundation of the indifference so prevalent in the world today. It is at odds with "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself", and Jesus' proposition, "Blessed are the meek".

"We can turn our pride to good effect", Dr. Britan concluded. we find our pride in doing things for God, and in the words of his servant say 'If I boast I boast only in Thee'.'

J. Stanley Durkee, Bates '97, now pastor of the Plymouth church Brooklyn, was the chapel speaker Thursday morning. As a representative of the older generation he challenged the younger generation with all the new knowledge of the modern world to equal the contributions of his contemporaries, and pointed out that all progress in the future must be in accordance with the old and tried philosophy Many recent discoveries, principally in the field of physics, have transformed the world. Among these keys to the future are the discovery of X-ray, the electron, radio-activity, and wireless communication. A telescope is beng built which will enable us to see the moon as if it were only 100 miles away. The theories of Einstein have reversed old concepts. The physicists tell us hat matter can be destroyed, and that if all the matter in one individual was compressed to a maximum, the result would be a bit of stuff about the size of a pin-head. The face of the earth is being trans formed; engineering projects will bring water to the Sahara and restore its fertility, use the waters of the Jordan River for purposes of irrigation, supply the Dead Sea with water from the Mediterranean and utilize the power from the artificial river between the seas to bring electricity to the Holy Land. This spirit of discovery, inquiry, and construction has had its expression in the field of religion. There were never more doubts and substitutes in religion than there are today. There is the "Superman" of Nietzsche, and the "Supreme Whole" of Dewey—philosophies which exalt the human. "But the words of the old Bible are still true. The Saviorhood of Jesus still holds. If we take Him as the supreme guide of our lives we can achieve the most in this new and wonderful world."

Verrible Sarivialities

During the past two months we have noticed a foreign car running about Lewiston. This would not have been surprising in the summer as many European tourists visit our shores inth that season to explore the scenic beau-gr ties of New England. As late as this ar it seemed extraordinary and we con W fess that we worried least its owner he be stranded here on account of funds du and would be unable to return to dearth old Lunnon for the winter season. We only hope that the ca owner saw fit to place his money on Ju the right side and will be able to pay De his passage back. There is one fear Ve yet, however. This same car seems to have developed engine trouble, for it th was only able to proceed back to Lewis-wa ton by painful stages. We hope that ev all the profits from the game will not whave to go for mechanics service. But cli if even now there should not be enoughtw for transportation of the car across the th water, we suggest that each Bates stu-gadent contribute a nickel to buy Maine W plates for the Packard. TEMPTATIONS, UPWARDS

Dear Li'l Helen Gone: All last year I perused your majestic A brain children. But I never gathered gr courage to communicate with you. Let me tell you that you are just the ideal sh woman as far as I am concerned.

F'resample, we agree on quite a few points, and agreement is a good quality for a boy and a girl to have. For one thing, I never attend the Chase Hall dances unless my precious (STEWD) aunt accompanies me as chaperone. And I also commend the action of the library management in separating ye eds from ye co-eds; or is it ye co-eds from ye eds? I, for one, really believe that this very thing will increase the student body of Bates next semester to overflowin' capacity. Espeshaillay the courses given (tsktsk, I sed "Given," and such (tsitish, 1 see diver, and such tuition) by Professors Quimby, Leonard, and espeshailly Madame Jeelbert.

I, myself, have already paid a dollar to the Registrar to transfer to the AB. courses, because of the Temptation Upwards offered by the new library policy. Whereas before I spent hours in a laboratory digging in a test tube, I now spend afternoons upstairs in the library hunting for "Napoleon et les femmes", in the French Book Shelves on the roof. Also, another Temptation Upward induced me to make the Debatng Squad to spend time in that the debating room adjoining the "Roof Garden", and I am taking education so I can become a Bates English Instructor and have my office upstairs in Coram.

So you see, Helen, that we agree on the library policy. You yourself have by probably perceived the idea that any record can now achieve over night metals and the state of popularity by wandering down into the catacombs and hunt for back copies of Government Documents for Pa Gould and Brooks Quimby, not to mention those very interesting and illuminating books, formerly of the Divinity School library, which are now lieing (or is it laying, or again lieing?) dust covered on the top shelf of the last stack on the left before the entrance to the men's len down in the toombs.

Sure thing, Helen, we should co-operate, for a smaller and purer, 99 44/100% pure BA RAH RAH TE RAH RAH RAH S RAH RAH, me and you being the other 66/100%, what

WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

W. A. A. NEWS

Next week is the week. It marks the close of the fall season and the grand finale in hockey, tennis, and archery. On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, weather permitting, will be held the hockey games, and sometime during the week the tournaments for the archers and tennis players will take place. The hockey games promise the most excitement. Captains have been elected for each class and have been very busy working up the team play of the newly selected class teams. The captains are: Senior, Flossie York, Junior, Edith Lerrigo, Sophomore, Deborah Thompson, and Freshman, Verna Brackett.

All four classes are united in a hope that we will have better weather than was enjoyed at the Maine game. However, whatever the weather, the games will be worth seeing! The sister classes will oppose each other in the two opening games on Monday; Tuesday the Senior-Frosh and the Junior-Soph games will hold the field, and on Wednesday the two hardest battles, namely the Senior-Junior and the Soph-Frosh, will end the season in a pair of exciting, closely-contested, hard-fought

Now is the time to begin thinking of what sport to choose for the indoor season which starts after the Garnet season which starts after the Garnet and Black hockey game on the morning of November 11. This year the indoor programs unlike those of former years, will include volley-ball and games classes during regular class periods so that any girl may work for W. A. A. points. In some cases in the past when volley-ball periods were in the morning, many girls who were unable to get the periods in then were forced to take games which receives no W. A. A.

During the indoor season, a girl is required to take only one sport for Physical Education, and that for three hours a week. This eliminates the extra W. A. A. period. The season lasts till Christmas, after which the regular winter season commences.

The University of Maine is having a College Play Day November 22. W. A. A. has been invited to send six delegates. The invitation has been accepted and W. A. A. will choose the delegates

Friday afternoon, Mrs. Gray is going to have an "October tea" The guests are to be the co-eds who have birthdays in October, and Mrs. Britan, Mrs. Gould, Miss Metcalfe, and Mrs. Seward, the faculty women who were born in this month.

This kind of a tea is an innovation this year. Mrs. Gray plans to enter-tain all the girls and faculty women in groups such as this during their birthday month. Matters of special interest to the girls of each month will be discussed. It will be a splendid opportunity for the girls to meet or to get better acquainted with the faculty women, and many thanks are due Mrs. Gray.

Later in the year, one act plays will be presented at the meetings and an honorary guest will be invited every week. When the organization has been successfully started, the Director plans to invite Professor Gilbert and Sister Francoise from the French Convent in Lewiston.

The charter members are as follows Augusta Cohen, director and secretary; Marian Blake, Marjorie Briggs, Bernice Burnham, Gertrude Diggery, Emily Finn. Priscilla Goodwin, Jeannette Gottesfeld, Muriel Gower, Katherine LaMontaigne, Dorothy Sullivan, and Mildred Vining.

WOMEN PRESENT GIFTS TO Y. W.

The Y. W. meeting Wednesday evening in Rand Hall Gym opened with a grand march. Following this the girls divided into two groups, one to clog, while the other group played games.

After an hour spent in frolic all were called to one side of the room by Gladys

Underwood, and the gifts for the nev Y. W. room were presented. Although each girls' dormitory bought their gifts separately, the color blue predominated throughout, and all the furnishings har-monized well. From Whittier House came a pillow, a table runner, and a picture; from Cheney, a couch cover and a waste-basket; a table lamp from Milliken, and a floor lamp from Rand; and from Frye Street a pair of brass candle-sticks with blue and gold candles. The town girls did their bit toward furnishing the room in presenting a picture. Although the gift from Chase House was not brought to the shower it is coming soon.

After the packages had been opened amid exclamations of "Ahs" and "Ohs", the girls learned a new song the girls learned a new song and ended the meeting with "Day is Done".

SERIES SIDELIGHTS

Many of the leading exponents and closest observers of the Bates-Maine fiasco, (Prexy Gray inclusive), pronounced it the "cleanest" state series game they had ever witnessed. In view of the sea of mud in which the rival elevens were floundering, the statement, though true, sounds as strikingly para doxical as the late Sarah Bernhardt's philosophy of life: "If I thought that I had to live forever I would commit suicide."

Some enterprising journalist likened Alumni Field on Saturday to an aquarium. But he neglected to name the fish—was it the wriggling players, the shivering spectators—or those who bought tickets and then didn't go to the game, expecting it to be a bigger flop than the proverbial swish of a whale's tail? We incline toward the

And then there was the vociferous Bates rooter whose stentorian voice rose above the din of Garnet cheerers when Maine failed to gain, calling to the Orono coach, "Hey, Brice, put in Rudy Vallee". "This was the most unkindest cut of all", but experience has proven that our bespectacled crosscountry manager is a fearless spokes

Shapiro, though battered and groggy refused to relinquish the pivot berth for a substitute. Izzy wanted to win. As the bus left the campus Friday an admirer hollered to him to bring home the bacon.

"Yeah," shot back Izzy, "I don't eat it but I'll bring it home."

The way the official announcer attributed tackles to Fuller makes us believe he must have been affiliated with a certain brush company last summer. Johnny certainly got his share, but Carnie and Mandelstam were also spearing the men in his vicinity. There is glory enough for all.

"Just taking a little spin," mur-mured Romansky as he pivoted giddily several times before hitting the line. "It's not for Long, though", grumbled Captain Red, as he threw him for a loss on the fourth down, to give Bates the ball in mid-field. Which is one of the many reasons why Bates didn't need first downs to win.

It is a Bear of another color next week. But reputation, size, or record means nothing to the Bobcats who "never turn a hair". In fact, a Polar Bear is a rarity—in recent years a good one has been the exception—so that his pelt for the trophy room is doubly desirable.

"Poor Colby" was the cry when Roundy's men bowed to Tufts and Springfield. But the ailing veterans "got better" in time for the series, and now we're all wondering (especially Bowdoin) who first phrased those historic words, "O, the old gray mule—she ain't what she used to be!"

Some day the Bates' backfield may McCluskev: rhb, McCarthy: fb. Ray McCluskey. Shades of Notre Dame, Knute Rockne, and the good ol' fightin'

The Maine Campus, in its pre-game write-up, spoke of Bunny Bornstein as a "line-plunger". We have visions of reading something like this next Sunday morning, if this is true.
"Then Bornstein, enwrapping the pigskin in his massive arms, catapaulted head foremost into the Bowdoin line. By the sheer impact of his charge the Black and White line was borne back at least four yards, and when the pack was finally disentangled it was found that Brown, the Bowdoin tackle. had been injured in stopping the mighty half-back's rush."

"We want a touchdown," was the war-cry from the Maine cheering sector. But the Garnet supporters sat back and grinned. With them it was a case of safety first.

It is quite possible that the Bates' boys will play hosts to visitors from Brunswick, Friday night. All because Bowdoin was painted as well as whiteyear. However, it will take more than one hack-saw to make any impression on our goal posts.

Saturday we'll get a real glimpse of that famous "Warner system". And we wouldn't be surprised, since the Bears are so enthusiastic over the name, to see them incorporating it in the words of a song that runs something like this, "I don't Warner get up, I don't Warner get up, etc.'

BOBCATS SHARPEN CLAWS IN PREPARATION FOR BOWDOIN

Foster, Ricker, and Morrell Offer Bowdoin Threat But Well Balanced Strength of Garnet Players More Than Overshadows This Individual Strength

By EVERETT CUSHMAN

All of the color and appeal of the national fall pastime will be introduced on Garcelon Field, Saturday, when Coach Morey's bobcats, last year's champions, and victors over Maine's mighty gridiron machine in the State series opener last week, dig in their toes to oppose Paul Bower's reputedly inspired crew of leather-luggers from Bowdoin, in what, from a Garnet view-point, is the greatest objective game on the schedule

Play Conservative Football

At Orono, last week, the Bates team displayed a conservative brand of football that, while less spectacular, proved to be far more effective than the flashy, deceptive style of the Maine aggregation. Because of its adeptness at analysing the plays of opposing teams, because of the seeming impregnability of its line, and largely because of the fact that it will be playing before what is expected to be one of the largest hosts of alumni and well-wishers ever to back a Garnet team. Bates will undoubtedly rule a slight favorite. How-ever, the Polar Bear has already smoothed out its ruffled fur where the muddy hoofs of the Colby Mule left their print last week, and down Brunsway there are plenty of supporters who think it can maintain its complacent sleekness over the week-end, lespite the sharp claws of an inspired Bobcat.

Coach Morey won at Maine last week under conditions that made it impossi-ble for him to open up with any kind of an offense, so that the Garnet attack is still a mystery to the sharp-eyed scouts. On the other hand Bowdoin, with a weaker line, has resorted to a reckless, open-field type of a game this season, concentrating its efforts chiefly on paving the way for "Sid" Foster to break loose for some long distance jaunts around end, varying its attack with an occasional charge through the line by the brilliant "Git" Ricker. For this reason its offense, unless radically changed in the next few days, is well known to the Bobcat group who have been drilled against it all the past week.

Garnet Outweighed

Man for man, the Garnet will be outweighed, but this should prove to be a little enough handicap in view of its showing against the exceptionally heavy Maine line. Fuller and Shapiro, two of the lightest men of the Bates forward rank, have proved bulwarks of stone all the season, while Long, Carnie, and Berry have repeatedly crashed through opposing lines to smother plays in embryo. They will be pushed to the limit by the Gargantuan "Doc" Brown, not to mention Olson, Milliken, and Follock, but ought to be in command of the situation at all times.

At end, Bowser is fortunate in possessing both Crimmins and Souther, who are fast, heady, and dependable candidates for all state honors. Whether either of them can outshine the sensa tional, smashing tactics of Kenison is a matter of conjecture, but both are either Mandelstam or Italia who will occupy the right wing for Bates. However, at Maine, Mandelstam was the recipient of much favorable comment because of his savage tackling and his ability to spill Maine plays.

Must Stop Foster

In the backfield the Brunswickians rate far superior in scoring strength, though Brown and Chamberlain will be able to hit the Bear's line for many fine gains. Bates must stop Foster, who has been running berserk around end all the year, and brace itself against the savage thrusts of Ricker and Morrell. As for punting, Chamberlain has shown himself adept at this particular phase of football, and Morey is resting much easier since the husky fullback's performance against the Bricomen. formance against the Bricemen.

The rumor is prevalent that the Bobcats will open up a bewildering passing attack in ease their backs fail to run the ball for consistent gains.

BATES-MAINE

The final period started off as it Maine intended to score or die in the attempt, but it was of no use. Maine managed to get Bates as far back as the ten-yard line after a fumble, but Chamberlain punted out of danger and the rest of the period was all Bates.

The game ended with Bates deep in the Maine territory, and neither team able to gain ground by carrying the ball.

The affair was featured by the fact that Bates won without making a single first down. The alertness of the Bates team is shown by the fact that despite the inability to make first downs the play, for the most part, was confined to the Maine end of the field. The defensive work of both lines was far better than could be expected under the conditions. The Bates line from end to end proved practically impreg-nable, the work of Long, Shapiro, and Berry in opposing Calderwood, Fickett and Davis was the feature of the line play. Fuller, Carnie, and Kenison continually broke through to spoil the Maine plays. Abe Mandelstam, playing his first major game for Bates, proved to be able to uphold his assignment without trouble. ment without trouble.

Backfields Hindered

The backfield play of both teams was hindered by the condition of the field Romansky, Moran, and Blocklinger did the best ball carrying for Maine, while Bagley's punting was an important part of the Maine attack. The defensive work of Chamberlain and Farrell was the feature of the Bates backfield.

Bates Harriers Favored To Win Over Pale Blue

Bobcats Out to Hold Title At Dual Meet Friday-Bates is Strong

With two overwhelming victories to their credit, the Bates Cross-country team will journey to Maine this week-end to defend their State title and, it seems certain, to annex its sixth con-secutive dual meet victory in the last two years.

Chances Favor Bobcats

The Bobcat runners are out to win and the chances are in their favor. However, Maine is strong and will give the titleholders a battle right to finish. Two weeks ago the Pale Blue hill and dalers opened up against the Conn. Aggies team and grabbed off a 19-42 walkaway. Since then the run-ners have been practicing for the Bates meet this coming Friday.

The Garnet clad "hill rompers" have trounced both Northeastern and Spring-field, thus acquiring a jump as far as this season's experience goes. It may be of importance to note that Spring-field took over the Connecticut aggregation in the same fashion that Maine did. Thus by comparative scores Bates will be a potent favorite.

Duo-trio Struggle

The foremost struggle will be the race for first between the Bates duo and the Maine trio. The Bates duo is composed of Captain Viles and Norman Whitten, winner of the recent dual meet. Opposed to this pair Maine's three first rate men are co-captains Brooks and Gunning, and Booth, a flashy sophomore find. Brooks and Gunning are men with plenty of fight and stamina, but lack speed. On the other hand Viles and Whitten have both stamina and speed, backed up by considerable experience and are out to pull a Lindsey-Richardson act on the Stein boys.

Rest of Team Forced The Maine trio will be backed up by Fuller, Perkins, and Mank. These men will be forced to the limit to keep the Bates runners, Hayes, Hobbs, Chapman, Furtwengler and Jones from finishing as a group in front of them. It is more than probable that either Hayes or Hobbs will help upset Maine's trio. In last year's dual meet with Maine four of the five just named placed ahead of Maine's third runner. The Bates team seems to pack more perience and speed than the Pale Blue, and the State title should not change
