The editorial opinion of The Student is heartily in accord with the principles of Mr. Dunham's letter, printed in the Open Forum column this week.

Reorganization Of Societies

A problem which has confronted college administration including that of Bates, for some years, has been the over-crowding of societies and social functions on campus.

OPEN FORUM

To The Editor of The Student. If in 1861 a nation engrossed in economic pursuits could not exist half-slave and half-free, how can a college in 1931 absorb in the quest of truth continue to be at once a champion of the past and a prophet of the future?

Summer occupations of Bates students are many and widely varied, but here is a new one—"tree sitting" of a most useful sort. Tree surgery has been the summer work of Otis B. Tibbetts, '32, since 1927.

Some policemen are so ignorant. For instance, one turned in a riot call to subdue four hundred Ohio Wesleyan University sophomore and freshman women, because he couldn't tell the difference between lip-stick on the girls faces and blood.

Works in eastern States

Tibbetts has worked in Ohio, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and most of the New England states. His most difficult and dangerous assignment was at an estate at Pride's Crossing while he was working on the North Shore of Massachusetts, last summer.

Bates Harriers To Defend Title in New Englands

Bates will defend her lone New England championship in Boston next Monday when her harriers compete in the 19th annual N. E. Intercollegiate A. A. cross-country run over the Franklin Park course. Eight other colleges will be represented: Bowdoin, Holy Cross, M. O. I., Northeastern, Rhode Island, Tufts, Maine, and New Hampshire.

Although graduation left only two veterans, Bates has an outside chance to repeat. Possibilities for a successful season were dimmed after losing state honors to Maine, two weeks ago, but the intrepid Bobcat hill and dalers once again asserted themselves by a perfect score against Northeastern last week, Maine, with a strong victory over Connecticut, Aggies, and the state championship behind her, sees nothing but New England laurels. The real favorite, however, is New Hampshire. This is the team the winner must beat, for Paul Sweet's men, second last year with several veterans reinforced by two promising freshmen, point with pride to a victory over Northeastern and especially to a fine showing against a strong Harvard team placing third, eighth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth.

Individual honors will probably be divided among Whitten, second last year, and Jellison of Bates, De Moulpied of New Hampshire, Booth of Maine, and Gilman of M. I. T. Dave De Moulpied was fifth a year ago. Not alone is he the only man to finish this year within a stone's throw of Fox and Halliwell, Harvard's great runners, but he forced them close to a record. Power in his team will be added by Anders, Noyes, and two sophomores who deserve close scrutiny: Raduazo, freshman winner in 1930, and Blood. From Maine come Booth, Gunning, Earle, Austin, and Osgood. The first gave Whitten and Jellison a scare recently and lost to them by inches. Bates' hopes lie in the ability of new men to collect three more places down in the scoring. She will rely on Adams, N. E. quarter mile champ, Furtwengler, a veteran, Carpenter, a marathoner, Norman Cole, and Raymond, a promising sophomore. Greenleaf of Northeastern is one whose running will probably figure in the first ten.

Parker Mann—Editor

Poor little Bowdoin (and when we say little, we mean just that) has taken another one on the chin to further the claim that they are experiencing one of the most disastrous seasons in history.

"Oh To Be King For A Day" sang the members of the Bowdoin backfield as they turned to watch the flying heels of the fleet "Brud" cross the goal-line.

It took so long for the Bates section to finish cheering the injured Bakanowsky that before the first was completed a second was in order as the scrappy little halfback had to be carried from the field.

Bowdoin's backfield behind a more powerful line might have gone places with Ricker and Gatchell doing the lugging. It seems to be the fate of the Polar Bears to have ball carriers who are never given an opportunity to display their ability. Foster, Johnson, and Chapman of recent Bowdoin teams are examples of men who have had to make their own gains without proper support.

Of course there is no foundation for the theory, but from the appearances of the wide open space on the Bowdoin side of the field it might be possible that some of the boys deserted their Alma Mater to see Colby and Maine fight it out at Waterville. It would seem that the proper time for support and encouragement would be when one's team is battling away against odds of all sorts.

Charlie Bilodeau, Bowdoin's outstanding lineman, played himself out during the afternoon. He was helped from the field before the whistle for the half, came back for the third period and finally had to retire late in the game.

A year ago, it will be remembered, that Bowdoin rose to supreme heights in its battle with Maine to subdue the heavier and favored Bricemen. If Bowdoin should beat Maine Saturday, which is possible but highly improbable and if Bates should beat Colby, there would emerge a tie for the title, Bates and Maine sharing the honor. But without too much guessing the crown for this year will rest in Orono.

The impromptu massed offerings of the combined Bates and Bowdoin bands at the state track meet at Orono last spring seems to have established a tradition or what. With some evident forethought, the two organizations took their places side by side and proceeded to entertain the spectators with two lively numbers.

Through his three contributions against Bowdoin, Brud King hopped into a tie with Peabody of Colby for the lead in scoring honors in the State, each having counted four touchdowns. Davan of Colby and Robertshaw of Maine are next in line with eighteen points each.

Of the twenty-one players of the four Maine colleges who have broken into the scoring column this season, there are eight Bates men.

Colby is not alone in wondering who this gentleman Robertshaw is and where he has been keeping himself. Coach Fred Bruce up at Orono seems to have played his ace card at a most opportune time, as there were certain intrepid souls who before Saturday's melee had dared to favor Colby over Maine.

Cheer up, Freshmen! If you ever leave Bates for any reason whatsoever, there will be opportunities for you to boast about yourselves as athletes etc. as you take your old school and its directors for a panning in your sports columns. Our departed "Modest Morris" must have a ghost writer or perhaps he has been sporting in some correspondence school.

Northeastern may stop pitting its cross country teams against Bates in the future. Two perfect scores in successive years should be enough to discourage even the most hardy. If the tie for first place counts as much as an individual win, as it should, there will be four new wearers of the cross-country "B" as a result of last Saturday's race.

It is interesting to know that Dr. Mabee's effective paraphrase of the Gospel account of the Good Samaritan, namely, "The Freshman Who Fell Among Critics" was recently published in The Vermont Cynic.

Coburn Classical To Tackle Frosh Team On Friday

A strong Coburn Classical football team invades Garcelon field Friday afternoon to engage the Bobkittens in what promises to be one of the hardest games on the Frosh schedule.

The Coburn aggregation is coached this year by Larry Gates, Bates '29, who has enjoyed remarkable success since taking over the reins at the Waterville school. Starting in as a powerful and high scoring unit, the team has coasted through its schedule, meeting with but one defeat, that at the hands of the University of Maine freshmen last Friday.

The frosh are out to chalk up their third straight victory of the season to mark the official end of the football battles on Garcelon field this season.

Frosh Harriers Lose to Gorham Last Wednesday

The Frosh harrier squad will be represented in the New England Intercollegiate Cross-country race at Franklin Field, Boston, next Monday. A yearling team has accompanied the varsity squad for the last few years, and two years ago Corydon Jordan won individual honors in leading the freshman squads home.

The team will be chosen from those men who showed up most favorably in a dual run against the sophomores this week. Last year the Bobkittens finished in sixth place, but are expected to make a better showing on Monday with runners of such calibre as Oids, Winston, Boston, and Malloy.

HUSKIES BOW TO BATES HARRIERS

Greenleaf, Northeastern captain and star, absent.—Coach Thompson's men finish in group.—Whitten and Jellison set pace

Finishing hand in hand, eight Bates cross-country runners made a perfect score, 15-55, against a Northeastern team over the five-mile Poie Hill course last Saturday forenoon. The victory was the first team-victory for Bates this season, although Whitten and Jellison have finished in the first two places in every race run by the Garnet harriers thus far.

The eight Bates runners to finish the run, which owing to rains a few days previous, was made over a boggy, wet course, were Norman Whitten, Russell Jellison, Paul Carpenter, Norman Cole, Willis Furtwengler, Sumner Raymond, Raymond Butler, and Arnold Adams. Morang, first Northeastern man finished ninth, followed by Rodham finished eleventh. Northeastern then placed men in twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth places with other Bates and visiting runners strung out behind.

By placing a team in a tie for first place, Bates repeated a feat it performed against the same team, Northeastern, in Boston last year, when the New England championship team finished arm in arm over the Franklin Park course.

Bates leading runners, Whitten and Jellison, were not at all pressed to complete the race, finished in slow time, at least three minutes behind the time of the Bates-Maine meet a week ago.

The Northeastern team, however, was greatly handicapped by the loss of its captain, Bob Greenleaf, who was expected to give Jellison and Whitten a run, and who, if he had been in the race, would probably have prevented Bates from finishing in a solid line for first place.

Coach Thompson will now turn his men toward Boston, where the New England cross country intercollegiate championships will be run in Franklin Park. Bates is defending champion in this race, but is not expected to win again, although it is

Frosh Gridsters Defeat Bucksport By Touchdown

Bates Freshman gridsters defeated a plucky team from Bucksport Seminary, the Friday afternoon, by a score of 6-0. The game was not particularly spectacular and no real battle developed until late in the final quarter when the visitors, nearing the Freshman goalposts, worked gamely to score but were not successful. Most of the game was played in Bucksport territory, with the Frosh threatening continually.

The single score of the game came in the second period when the yearlings, starting a march on the Bucksport 23 yard-line, ended their attack when Pricher, left half-back, skirted left end for the deciding score. Stone's attempt at a placement kick for the extra point was blocked. Pricher, taking the ball on the 33 yard line, shook off three tacklers and whirled to the 10 yard stripe before being downed. Quarterback Valicenti then went for a gain of seven yards, and Pricher, on the next play took the ball over for the score.

Many Seniors to Don Gridiron Togs For Last Time

The Colby game on Armistice Day will mark the final appearance of fourteen seniors who will don Garnet togs for the last time. Of this group there are five men who are playing their third year of varsity football.

Pete Valicenti and Norm McDonald have alternated in coiling signals for the first team since their initial appearance on the squad as sophomores. Last year Valicenti was an almost unanimous choice for quarter-back on the All-Maine team.

Three others, Sid Farrell, Ray McCluskey, and Cal Chamberlain, all backfield men, have also played varsity football since their sophomore year. Ferrell and McCluskey both gained positions on the mythical All-Maine team of 1930.

Ted Brown, Ben White, and Abe Mandelstam are playing their second year of Bates football. White was honored in his first year of football by gaining one of the tackle positions on the 1929 All-Maine aggregation.

Bobcat Eleven Faces Colby Armistice Day

Although Maine nearly has the State Series pennant in its grasp for the current year and may have it away in moth balls by Armistice Day nevertheless the Bobcat and the Mule will forget the Armistice for a few hours, November 11, and the battle between these two strong teams may be the hardest fought of the State Series. For the past two years this game has been the climax of the State Series and though it may not have such importance this year, pending the outcome of the Bowdoin-Maine game, the records of both teams against the other Maine colleges seems to point toward a close score and an even contest.

Colby shows late season power

The closeness of the games between the two colleges for several years and also the fact that this is the final game for both teams has made it assume the position of the major struggle on the schedule of each team. Colby had a rather dismal season up to the beginning of the State games being defeated by Brown, Springfield and Tufts and winning only from a weak Vermont team. Starting with the Series the Roundymen showed its usual late season power and has been a threat to all its opponents.

Bates has pursued winning ways for the most of the season winning from Arnold, Norwich, Rhode Island and Bowdoin and losing to Harvard and the U. of M. The records of both teams in the State Series are much the same both winning from Bowdoin and losing to the school along the Penobscot.

Comparisons are said to be odious and especially so comparative scores, but still they are the staff of life to any sports writer and so here goes. Colby broke through for its first win of the season over the University of Vermont. This was a close game and the Mule won by a touchdown. Bates walloped Norwich by a 34-0 score and then the Cadets took over the Vermont team last Saturday by a 24-6 score.

Bobcat Eleven Faces Colby Armistice Day

By Frank H. Byron

Although Maine nearly has the State Series pennant in its grasp for the current year and may have it away in moth balls by Armistice Day nevertheless the Bobcat and the Mule will forget the Armistice for a few hours, November 11, and the battle between these two strong teams may be the hardest fought of the State Series. For the past two years this game has been the climax of the State Series and though it may not have such importance this year, pending the outcome of the Bowdoin-Maine game, the records of both teams against the other Maine colleges seems to point toward a close score and an even contest.

Bowdoin games show nothing

Nothing much can be garnered from the performances of either team against Bowdoin. The comparative scores 32-6 in the Colby-Bowdoin game and 30-0 in the Bates-Bowdoin game do not seem to point to an edge for either team. But one touchdown more or less against this weakest Bowdoin team in years did not mean a great deal in either game as any spectator can say. In fact the Bowdoin line in both games seemed to be a department of the Yale Dartmouth theory of "What is a defense anyway?" and carried it to still another extreme and might ask "What is an offense?"

A little more can be drawn from the performances of both teams against Maine. Maine's victory over the Bobcat was not as decisive as the Maine victory over Colby. Although the Bear flashed a nice attack against Bates during the first half to get the margin of victory, the Bobcat came back in the second period and for the most of the remainder of the game had an edge on the Maine team. The Garnet line showed well against Maine for most of the game and during the second half stopped the Pale Blue attack so completely that they did not get a single first down. In fact Bates led in the number of first downs, 11 to 8.

On the other hand Maine was pretty well the master of Colby throughout the game at Waterville although a great passing attack in the final period gave the Mule a well-earned touchdown for their only score. Maine put on several sustained offenses and seemed to have little trouble in grinding out the necessary yardage through the Colby frontier. Colby fans however answer that the difference was in the fact that Gil Robertson was not in the Bates game to vent his dynamite on the Bates line. Be it as it may Maine got 17 first downs to nine for Colby and the Colby line did not seem to measure up to the Colby forward wall of the previous years.

Both teams seemed to come through their recent games in fairly good shape although "Paddy" Davan was injured in the Colby-Maine game and his team slowed up considerably when he left the game. According to latest reports Davan will be in there for the Bates struggle, in good condition.
