The power of Judah, and fear the God that so signally favors it.

The name of joy. A name that gives joy, or "bring honor to Jehovah in the eyes of men who have slain." By allowing their enemies to continue in their presence and not to take them away, the Lord has made it possible for them to remove them from the land of their enemies.

The Lord calls on him to pray for blessings preceding its destruction.

The Court of the prison.  Court of the morning watch. The exiles were allowed to assemble there to breast the storm of the day, while the general body was convened in the Court of the morning watch. They were allowed to have their meetings in the Court of the morning watch, but not in the Court of the gates.

Notes and Hints.

The kingdom of Sardinia and Naples, which has prospered.)

The church was or- ganized Aug. 19, 1828, by Elders E. Place and William Scott, of Dover. The first meeting was held on September 2, 1828, in a meeting-house which was later erected, and where the Morning Star was then printed, and then to Eld. John Buzzell's in Parsons. The arrangements will be under the care of Pres. Durgin and Profs. Dunn and Houghton.

The second beast, elder etc. The text is also read with great interest. He was considered by the preachers of his denomination as a child, as loving as a true Christian.

T. F. Fairbank. A house of prayer was called for at Pine Hill Cemetery where Eld. B. T. Fairbank is buried.

In 1839, at ^a Convention held in Utica and the vicinity.

LENE of the Catholic strongly rests upon its power over the conscience of generations. The Church, with all its varied conditions and forms, has ever been, and in proportion as the excellence of the institutions of religion is advanced, will ever remain, the Church of the world. "The" Church is the same, whatever form it may take, or whatever its relation to the world may be. The Church is a moral and spiritual force, which has the power to bind and to free, to heal and to destroy, to advance to greater power and usefulness.

The English Ritual Question. - The most prosperous that have the most sense of the sacredness of death, the most sense of the immortality of the soul, the most comprehension of the religious obligation of interment, the most sense of the dignity of consecration, the most regard for the Church in the presence of others—such exist in the Established Church. It is to be supposed that there are a great many in this Church who do not know, or with whom has risen and has passed away, in proportion as the excellence of the institutions of religion is advanced, the Church of the world. A new school which makes its appearance in the society, is worth the consideration of all persons who are desirous of elevating themselves in the scale of intelligence. It is called "The New School," and the author of it is a man of great talent and ability. He has been long a居民 of this city, and has taught in several schools, and is well known for his ability to instruct. The New School is founded on the principle that education is the duty of every individual, and that it is not the privilege of a few to be educated, but that all should have the opportunity. The school is open to all, regardless of race, sex, or color. It is conducted in a manner that makes it accessible to all, and the instruction given is of the highest quality. The New School is a great improvement on the old schools, and it is hoped that it will lay the foundation for a better future.

Literary Miscellany.

Thomas More was the eldest son of Sir John More, a judge of the King's bench, who was a man of birth and rank. He was born on the 7th of February, 1478, probably at Chelsea, where he could throw aside the cares of state, was a dearer place to the customs of the age exacted from the cares of state, was a dearer place to the cares of state, was a dearer place to the cares of state.

But the time was not long before that house of this great man. His home was at last forced by a sense of justice and humanity, which shows a truly philanthropic and tender flowers are plucked first. NEW STRAWBERRIES.

VARIETY FOR P]- THE LAND- OWNER.

The low prices that have prevailed for the last few years have caused many growers to seriously consider the question of what is the most profitable kind of strawberry that can be grown. The usual market prices range from 25 to 30 cents per quart, or 40 to 50 cents per pint, and in some localities they even run up to $1 per dollar. To meet this competition, the growers have tried every device, and even made experiments in forms and varieties, without success. However, the formation of a regular market for strawberries during the past season, has given them a new opportunity to test the merits of this fruit. In the season, they are again entering into competition with their usual varieties, and the results of these new varieties are only now becoming known. The demand is increasing daily, and the prices are rising. The demand is increasing daily, and the prices are rising.

SAUCED STRAWBERRIES.

A variety of these berries, which are now becoming quite popular, and have the advantage of being easily grown, is the sauced strawberry. This variety is far from being a natural beauty, though its name might incline some persons to think otherwise. It is said to be a fruit which grows very well in the cooler climates, and which is especially suited to the American soil. It is said to be a fruit that has merit greatly in flavor and appearance. The fine quality, which, together with its beauty, makes it perfectly suitable for market.

TEMPERANCE.

The death of Mr. A. H. Stoddard, of the American Temperance Union, has been announced. He was the founder of the Union, and one of the most active and influential members of the organization. He was a man of great ability, and was well known for his work in the cause of temperance. His death is a great loss to the cause of temperance, and will be mourned by all who knew him.

THE MORNING STAR, APRIL 10, 1878.

New Stawberries.

VARIETY FOR P.

strawberries, which are now becoming quite popular, and have the advantage of being easily grown, is the sauced strawberry. This variety is far from being a natural beauty, though its name might incline some persons to think otherwise. It is said to be a fruit which grows very well in the cooler climates, and which is especially suited to the American soil. It is said to be a fruit that has merit greatly in flavor and appearance. The fine quality, which, together with its beauty, makes it perfectly suitable for market.

TEMPERANCE.

The death of Mr. A. H. Stoddard, of the American Temperance Union, has been announced. He was the founder of the Union, and one of the most active and influential members of the organization. He was a man of great ability, and was well known for his work in the cause of temperance. His death is a great loss to the cause of temperance, and will be mourned by all who knew him.

The Louisiana Situation.

The state of the iron trade in England is rather light supply, and small lots can be at $2 10 @ $2 15 per bu. We quote: Pea, Northern H...
