Pres. Phillips Crowns Ruth Stillman Queen Of "Winter Wonderland" Week End

"Formal" Highlights Carnival Week End

One of the highlights of the Winter Carnival is the Carnival Hop which will take place the night of January 26th. As a part of "Winter Wonderland", the theme of the dance will be "Snowbound", carried through by the decoration of Alumni Gym in the form of a ski lodge, and with dances named for various ski resorts.

The Queen of Winter Carnival will make her entrance just before the grand march. Following this she will make the awards of the week end.

Co-chairmen for the Hop are Joyce Baldwin and John Margarones. Committees are: decorations, Helen Hochstuhl; tickets and programs, Marjorie Lorenz and Jean Cutts; refreshments, Muriel Ulrich; and chaperones, Barbara Stebbins.

Among the chaperones will be President and Mrs. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Moore, Dean Clark, and Miss Walmsley.

The music will be supplied by Carl Broggi's eleven piece orchestra and his soloist.

The theme last year was quite different depicting the circus, with a big tent and bright lights. "Nautical but Nice" was the 1944 theme with mermaids and fishnets.

President Reports "State Of The Nation"

The state of our school nation was the subject of President Charles Phillips' talk in chapel on Monday. Recalling the rumors that went the rounds of the student body last year as to Bates' chances as a training school for midshipmen, the President promised to squelch the rumors that seemed to be holding sway on campus this year. Chief among these is that the present large class of freshmen, which is largely composed of women will be flunked out to make room for returning veterans and ex-Bates students.

President Phillips denied this vehemently. He admitted that the applications for this coming semester and for next fall from both men and women was overwhelming, and that they were forced to turn away many promising applicants, but that their first responsibility lay with their veterans who had already begun their work at Bates, and this includes the members of the V-12 unit, many of whom are anxious to return, and with the students who are already here.

One hundred twenty men are to be admitted in February. Of these the larger percentage is former Bates men and V12 men, with a handful of new veterans. There will be no change in the present living quarters this year. These men will be quartered in the remaining rooms in Parker and John Bertram Halls and in the newly renovated Roger Williams Hall.

Frolic Ends With Hunt At Thorncrag

There will be an open house at Thorncrag tomorrow afternoon to put the finishing touches to a week end of Winter Carnival fun and frolic. A "Hare and Hound Race" on the way up will start things off at a running pace. The race will probably begin about two o'clock, and the cabin will welcome weary hikers from two-thirty until five.

Professor and Mrs. Ingles, together with Professor and Mrs. Kimball, will serve as chaperones.

When the hunted hares and hunting hounds finally bring the chase to a halt, members of the Outing Club will be waiting to serve cocoa and doughnuts to hunter and hunted alike.

Warmer clothes are in order for this event. Thorncrag always seems to be one of the most popular although coldest spots of Carnival.

Reporter Sums Up Triumphs And Defeats

After losing to Portland YMCA, the Bates basketball team defeated New Hampshire University, lost to Maine, and then bounced back to defeat Colby in a hard fought contest.

The Portland "Y" came here with a strong line-up including a couple of former Colby stars, John Lomac and Jerry Lee, and defeated a smaller Bates club, 71-41.

For Bates tiny Glenn Fleischer and Guy Sandulli were most effective. Fleischer got the range in the second half for a game total of 16 points to make him high scorer for the game.

Bates Beats N. H. In Overtime

In one of the wildest games played in the Bates gym for a long while the Bobcats defeated N. H. in an overtime game, 55-53. The game was a rough one indeed, being marked by forty-seven fouls. The game was evenly fought through the first half as Sandulli, Fleischer and Arnold kept Bates right in the ball game. The score at half time was Bates 24, N.H. 23.

Second Half Terrific

Tension increased as the game approached the 15 minute mark with the lead changing hands several times. With 3 minutes remaining N. H. led 39-36. Bates overcame this lead but a pair of fouls put N. H. back into the lead, 45-43 with 25 seconds remaining to play. With 20 seconds remaining to play, Berry took a pop shot and missed—and it was N. H.'s ball. The crowd was going crazy and it was beginning to look bad for the Bobcats but an intercepted pass by Sandulli and a basket tied the ball game and sent it into an overtime period. During the overtime the lead changed hands several times, but 5 points in a row put the Bob-

Dartmouth Joins In Main Debate

The Bates varsity debating squad will meet with Dartmouth for the main exhibition debate of this season on February 4th. This debate will be presented in the Little Theatre at eight o'clock with the topic, "Resolved: That the House approve of Pres. Truman's National Health Act." Representing Bates and taking a negative stand will be Barbara Miller and Jane Blossom. Dartmouth on the affirmative will be represented by David Swirsky of Brookline, Mass., and Richard Wilson of Barry, Vt. Both of these men are U. S. Marines in training at Dartmouth College. An open forum will be held following the debate in which the audience is invited to participate. This will be the biggest event of the semester in the field of debating on the campus.

January 23rd, two members of the Bates varsity debating squad went to Brunswick to meet with the Bowdoin debaters. The Bates representatives were Jean Harrington and Ruth Stillman. They took the affirmative stand on the subject of Compulsory Military Training. Taking the negative for Bowdoin were Frederic Woodruff, Jr., and James Longley, Jr.

This same debate was presented for the Debate Clinic held on this campus Saturday, December 1. It was presented at that time as an example of good debating.

Station WGAN in Portland will carry a debate program on January 30th at 4:45 p. m. This program will be a feature of the regular Bowdoin-on-the-Air broadcast. Debating for Bates will be Barbara Carter and Carolyn Booth. They will take the negative on the issue: Resolved, That Pres. Truman's National Health Act is a Good Plan. Bowdoin debaters will be on the affirmative.

It's over now. Yes, to the relief of the directors, skaters, costumers, and lighting committee, the annual ice review for carnival is over. Before we talk about the finished product, let's take a look behind the scenes. No doubt anyone who has been in the vicinity of the ice rink within the past weeks has seen groups of perseverant skaters marching around or waving their arms. Several amusing incidents happened during this time. To begin with the night of try-outs there were no lights up. Someone came to the rescue with a flashlight, and as Nancy Gannon stood focusing a beam of light on the victim, Lois Foster asked them to do a three, a spiral, and a pivot. It was good practice in spotlight skating anyway.

The next day a rehearsal of the military was held. Sunday there was to be another. The ice melted. There was no time to waste, so Nancy and Lois got busy on the phone and notified their group of twenty-four that there would be a meeting in Rand Gym (without skates of course). For several days until the usual Maine cold return-

Bates-On-The-Air

Bates-on-the-Air featured this Tuesday, January 22nd, a quiz program patterned after the "Battle of the Sexes" broadcast. The program was produced by June Klane and Rhone Isaacson. Quizmasters were Miss Isaacson and Robert Touse. Taking the fort for the women were Muriel Stewart, Madeleine Richard, and Fern Dworkin. Battling for the men were Richard Ravenal, Frank Stringfellow, and Donald Cobb. June Klane announced and Marthe Cloutier was the technician. A feature of the program was a set of questions about Bates and Bates faculty.

Next week Bates-on-the-Air will present at the usual time, 10:15, a series of book reviews by Ted Hunter. These book reviews are a feature of the Book-of-the-Month Club.

Stu-G Holds Banquets Next Tuesday Evening

The Women's Student Government will hold its annual banquet on Tuesday evening, February 5. In Rand, the time will be 6:15; in John Bertram, the time will be 6:20. The decorations follow the theme of "Hearts and Flowers"—red hearts, white doilies, red and white carnations, red candles.

Dr. Myhrman will speak in Rand Hall and Dr. Wright, Dean Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Sampson, Mr. and Mrs. Ross, and Mrs. Myhrman have been invited as guests.

Prof. Bertocci will be the speaker in John Bertram Hall with President and Mrs. Phillips as guests.

Dinner music will provide atmosphere and a soloist is to sing in each hall. Eleanor Daley '49, in Rand, and Ruth Asker '46 in J. B.

The committee, headed by Jane Scheuermann '46, consists of Marjorie Harvey '47, Rella Sinnamon '48, and Florence Nagano '49.

Court of Six Seniors Reigns with Queen Over Carnival Antics

Before a throng of loyal and cheering subjects Ruth Stillman was crowned 1946 Carnival Queen by President Phillips last night. Attired in the regal robes of white and wearing the crown which marked her supremacy, the newly-crowned queen read her proclamation banishing all care for the week end and ordering play and fun to be the rulers of the "Winter Wonderland" celebrations.

Preceding the queen was her gala court consisting of Martha Cloutier, Muriel Stewart, Suzanne Davidson, Ruth Asker, Jeannette Packard, and Patricia Wilson. These attendants skated in on white ice skates and wore costumes of blue ski sweaters and bright red skirts. Lining up before the throne they waited there until the queen had been taken around the rink in order to be viewed by her subject-spectators. After the coronation and proclamation they joined the Queen on her icy throne to view the concluding number in the skating review.

The queen entered the rink on a litter borne by four male attendants. They were William Sawyers, Raymond Hobbs, Robert Bailey, and Parker Hoy. Before making an appearance, the approach of the royal party was heralded by trumpeter Brenton Dodge. The crown which the Queen wore was carried in by Carol Ann Phillips, daughter of the president.

Tonight at the Carnival Hop the queen and her court will put in another appearance where the law of the evening will be to dance away all worry of studies and the like.

Publicity Heads Meet At Conn. College

This school was represented at the first post-war conference of the American College Publicity Association in New England by Miss Pauline Beal, who is now re-establishing our News Bureau Office. The meeting was held on the campus of Connecticut College in New London, Conn., on January 15-19 and was attended by publicity heads of all the New England colleges.

The opening session on Friday heard three speakers: Ward E. Duffey, managing editor of the Hartford Times, about using newspapers as a medium of presentation, Marguerite Tuttle on using direct mail, and Robert E. Hudson, associate director of education in the Columbia Broadcasting system.

Then Dr. Robert Brooks, deputy administrator for information in the OPA, told how his office tried to keep the country informed about the various and changing rules and regulations through the use of mail, radio, and pamphlets.

The closing session Miss Beal attended was a round table for new entrants in the field where Alice B. Vosburgh, director of publicity in Smith College laid down instructions and requirements for setting up an office, making filing and clipping systems, and getting and writing material for feature

Our Headline World...

As after most wars so after this one. The period of disillusionment has begun to set in, perhaps a little quicker this time than in the past. Eras of disillusionment, emotional let downs, lost hopes and fear of the future are not new to our world. But perhaps our fast living has intensified it for us.

Actually we are living in a "headline world". Newspaper headlines, movie news headlines set our pattern of thinking for us. Most of us get our information, our view of today's world from a glance at the morning paper. The headlines for the past three months have been screaming strikes, civil war, violence and human suffering. Basing our feelings on these we immediately cringe, curl up inside and despair on there being no hope for the world.

And yet, what makes us so different five months after the war's end? For six years we read worse headlines. Mass bombings, extermination of entire towns, starvation and yet, we gritted our teeth, worked on and not once allowed ourselves to fall into thinking we wouldn't come out of it on top and well. What gets us down now? Is it the fact that we are now fighting is not a definite "enemy" classified under the heading Germany, Japan, or Italy, or the fact that we are better tuned to war atmosphere, or that our propaganda has failed? Why can't we fight in peace with the same commendable spirit we showed in war?

The answer is, after all, not difficult. It can be found in each citizen of the world. We must each, down fathomly deep within ourselves wipe out the fear of the future, a fear which expresses itself overtly in prejudices, hatred and violence. We can look tomorrow's headline in the face and say "Yes" instead of solemnly shaking our heads in defeat. We did it in war, let's do it in peace which deserves our efforts infinitely more. Well, remember the late President Roosevelt's words, "the only thing we have to fear is fear itself".

Wait A Minute...

Mark Twain once said of New England weather, "If you don't like it, wait a minute." Judging from our own experiences here in Lewiston, that great American humorist never spoke a truer word.

One doesn't have to attain the sage years of the "oldest inhabitant" to remember snow and green leaves at the annual Spring concert, or balmy days the first of December when suits and jackets were the costume of the day. Even, now, one doesn't know whether to plan on wearing rubber boots and a raincoat or ear-muffs and an extra-heavy coat to the formal tonight. As for tomorrow, there is still time for the all-college ski at Pole Hill to turn into an all-college swim. It could happen here.

And, then, there are those days of rare beauty when nature and the weather seem to smile on Maine as no place else on earth. Then, it is the snow clings white on the ivy climbing on the Chapel walls and the whole campus sparkles like a mass of tiny diamonds. Then it is the June sun shines warmly on Mt. David and the trees make shadow patterns on the grass. Then, it is easy to forget that Maine weather is temperamental. At least it is much easier to forgive.

A student from Boston once remarked that "Maine weather is a challenge". Well, perhaps it is. And, if so, then perhaps it goes about as far as anything else toward explaining that phenomenon known as "Maine Character". That is, the hardy, simple, solid character of the people in the poems of Frost, Robinson, and Coffin. Theirs is the ability to take in stride, whatever may come, to take it with a laconic bit of humor and a shrug of the shoulders.

Perhaps they have learned the lesson, that everything changes in time if one only "waits a minute".

Wonderland Theme Challenges Sculptors

Snow sculpturing was introduced to Carnival in 1930 when it was hailed as a great innovation. Due to misunderstanding or lack of ideas, it was distinctly a co-ed affair that first year.

"Frye won with a model of Hawthorn Hall that was not only beautifully proportioned, but also exact in every detail even to the class bell on top — to call the gnomes to their classes with Prof. Jack Frost at the magic hour of midnight, we guess."

"Cheney was second with a modeled likeness of a jungle inmate. Whittier and Chase Houses vied for third place with moulded forms of the feline mascot that Bates has made so famous. The former had rather the edge on Chase in shaping the bobcat that conformed not so much to type but rather to the peculiar characteristics of our individual Bobcat," the judges decided.

Last year, 1945, the sculptors followed the circus theme for the most part. Smith Hall N won first honors for their likeness of a sailor reading in a boat. The other sections of Smith Hall exhibited a PT boat and a Navy nurse. Chase House made a snake charmer; Cheney, a seal and balanced ball; Hacker, a kangaroo; Wilson, "Dumbo"; Frye, a couching lion; Mitchell, a "coke" and hot dog; Rand and Milliken, a "fat lady"; Whittier, a camel; and the Town Girls, a pink elephant.

Special Choruses Sing For Judges At Contest

Feeling that there was a definite dearth of Bates songs President Phillips suggested some sort of a song contest which would bring out that talent on the campus. Outing Club quickly caught up the idea and incorporated it into the Winter Carnival activities. Working on the competitive idea, a leader was appointed in each dormitory to spark the talent. The leaders are: Chase, Judy Barenberg; Cheney, Emilie Stelhi; Frye, Elma Beach; Hacker, Vesta Starrett; Milliken, Alice Weber; Mitchell, Phyllis Webber; Smith (South), Barbara Mallett; Smith (middle), Joan Greenberg; Smith (north), Mary Skelton; Rand, Pauline Tilton; Whittier, Mary Jane Hammond; Wilson, Sally Ann Gove; Parker, George Rowan; J. Bertram, Richard Thompson.

The songs were presented at the Chase Hall Open House last night at ten o'clock. Each dormitory had a special chorus of not less than ten nor more than twenty to sing the song for final judging. Songs ranged all the way from the "Bates Boogie Blues" to a solemn hymn.

The judges were President Phillips, Professor Seldon T. Crafts, Miss Betty Beal, Charles MacArthur, and Ruth Asker. The winning dormitory will be awarded the prize tonight at the Carnival Hop by the Queen.

New Stu-Council Revives Activity

After two years of non-existence because of the lack of civilian men on campus, the Student Council has been revived and strengthened. The reorganized Council consists now of eight elected members, two representatives from each year's class. Dave Brigham has been elected president.

The first important project of Stu-C was Freshman Stunt Night, the substitute evil for Hell-Week. Held last Saturday night in the Alumni Gym, the show was a great success, featuring an old-fashioned minstrel show of the deep South, a skit, "If Men Played Bridge as Women Do," a faculty vs. student volley ball game, a mystic show put on by Bill Stringfellow, and a Gay Nineties Review. Henry Santos was musical leader. George Rowan sang "Dark Town Strutters Ball". And the show was conceived and engineered by John Driscoll and Bob Alward.

Stu-C has also reorganized the Bates cheer-leading squad. Under Stu-C tryouts have been held and a squad of seven, five girls and two boys under Wes Baker, have been chosen to lead the vocal support of our teams.

In cooperation with Stu-G, the Student Council has arranged for buses to go to certain out-of-town basketball games. Last Tuesday's Bowdoin trip was the first of these excursions.

Under Ron Reicker, intra-mural volleyball and basketball have been tentatively organized. In fact the first volleyball game of the E Parker-Bertram-W. Parker competition will be played sometime next week. It is hoped to start the basketball soon too.

Stu-C has, in order to clear away certain conflicts that have arisen concerning office holders in major

Refreshments, Square Dancing Warm Skaters

Singing, dancing, and refreshments greeted the revelers at Chase Hall open house last night from 9:30 to 11:30 o'clock.

Cocoa and doughnuts were waiting for the spectators and participants of the skating show. Members of the refreshment committee were Jane Brown, Carol Hobbs, Sonya Bianchi, Jane Brackett, Nancy Parson, and Pat Durgin.

There was square dancing directed by Miss Durfee. Joyce Lord and Marcia Wilson did the calling with Janice Dunn at the piano.

Henry Santos and Marion Dodge entertained with piano and accordion solos, respectively. The entertainment was followed by the song contest under the direction of Charles MacArthur and Ruth Asker. The award for the best song will be given tonight at the Carnival Hop.

Chairmen of the event were Jinx Prince and Francis Disnard. Chaperones were the Buschmanns, Harms, Myhrmans, and D'Alfonso.

Students Learn To Know "Prof" Through Carnival

Dr. William Sawyer is an outstanding professor on the Bates campus. In the classroom and the lab he does a top-ranking job of teaching Biology. Outside of classes he participates heartily in the campus life by conscientiously advising, helping, and working with the Outing Club, the organization to which we owe so many thanks for this carnival week end.

In the classroom we become "acquainted with" our professors. It is chiefly in and through extra-curricular activities that we really get to know their personalities. So it is with Dr. Sawyer! For over twenty years Dr. Sawyer has devoted much time and energy to help the Outing Club grow. It is an organization whose function is to create an interest in and opportunity for fun in outdoor activities.

We can easily say Dr. Sawyer is a Bates man through and through.

In 1913, he graduated from Bates, and the next fall he became a member of the faculty. Since that time he has been away from the campus for only short intervals. In 1915 he took a year's leave of absence to study for his Master's as students, owe many thanks to him, not only for the way in which he helps us to help ourselves, but also for the sincere way in which he so heartily participates in and contributes to our college life in outdoor activities.

One's personality is shown through his leisure time activities. During his leisure time, Dr. Sawyer, among other things, is a member of the Maine Alpine Club and the director from Maine of the Appalachian Trail Committee. The Appalachian trail extends from Mt. Katahdin in Maine to Mt. Oglethorpe in Georgia. Part of this trail is maintained by the Bates Outing Club. In the past, during more normal times, Dr. Sawyer with a group of boys, made trips once or twice a year to clear the trail.

Dr. Sawyer is strong in the belief that students should be encouraged to accept responsibility. Through the fine manner in which students do accept responsibility and carry their jobs out, he sees his policy prove itself. We

C. A. Reveals Plan For Vets' Wives Tea

C. A. Commissions, which are meeting again Tuesday evening, January 29, are now planning for the various commission activities to take place in the future.

The Social Commission, under the leadership of Terry Smith, is going to discuss plans for a tea to be given for the wives of the married veterans at Bates. The tea will be given at the Women's Union and at that time interest findings, information blanks, will be passed out to determine how many wives would care to attend commission meetings and, if so, what Commission they would be interested in. Betty Hutchins and Dol Lichter are working on plans for the tea. The Freshman Dancing Class, which also comes under this Commission, is headed by Bud Wiseman. The meeting will also be concerned with appointing students to the committee responsible for the Cocos given at the gym during exams. This Commission will be assisted in that function by Stu-G and W.A.A. At the last meeting of the Social Commission, the members heard Phyllis Calhoun from the Lewiston YWCA talk on how to run parties.

The Reconstruction Commission with Muriel Henry as chairman, plans to have study groups at faculty homes to discuss post-war plans and reconstruction.

The first part of February, the Public Affairs Commission, led by Bill Ginn, anticipates bringing the issue of peacetime conscription before all Bates students. This

Miss Frank Speaks At Bates Round Table

Miss Lydia Frank spoke on "The Magic of the Air" at the Bates Round Table held on January 18 in Chase Hall.

She traced the development of radio from its beginnings to the present day; from a song overheard by a gob in the Brooklyn Navy Yard to the number of varied programs of today.

She commented on different types of programs, variety shows, forums, and soap operas. In regard to the soap operas she said that the "total expenditure on soap operas equals one-third of all the money spent on radio per year."

"Immediacy is the peculiar contribution of radio," said Miss Frank when comparing radio with newspapers. Radio is developing its own dramatic literature and writers. Three outstanding writers of today are Orson Welles, Norman Colburn, and Arch Oboler.

The usual discussion period and refreshments followed the speaker. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. August Buschmann, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D'Alfonso, Mr. and Mrs. Seldon Crafts, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Spinks.

Round table programs for the rest of the year include to date Friday, February 8, Mr. Robert Berkelman, "America in Bronze"; Thursday, April 11, Mr. J. Wesley Ingles, "Tilbury Town"; and Friday, May 10, Mr. Charles H. Sampson, "That Boy Is No Good."

Hillel Society Sponsors Thorncrag Cabin Party

A cabin party sponsored by the Hillel Foundation took place Sunday afternoon, January 20, at Thorncrag. The event was attended not only by Bates students, but also a contingent of men from Bowdoin were invited to join the affair.

The program included square dancing, various group games and "round" singing. Refreshments were served to top off the afternoon's festivities and included dogs, potato chips, doughnuts, and cocoa. Frances Sudhalter and J. Lewis Myers were in charge of the social event.

Robinson Players Present Revised "As You Like It"

January 31 and February 1 and 2 are the dates set for the Robinson Players' production of "As You Like It". As the play swings into the final week of rehearsal, the Little Theatre is the scene of much activity. Both cast and backstage crews are working hard to put the show in order by the preliminary performance for high schools next Wednesday night.

Shakespeare's comedy has been rearranged considerably by Miss Lavinia M. Schaeffer, director. Much emphasis is placed on the low comedy scenes between Touchstone and Audrey, as well as on the high comedy scenes involving Rosalind, Orlando and Celia. The antics of Touchstone, the philosopher-fool, are among the highlights of the show.

An elaborate costume scheme has been designed by June Duval which authenticates that of the Shakespearean period. Healers have worked for weeks on the costumes; and members of the cast are now experimenting with their long skirts and tights.

Court and country dances by the Modern Dance group are interspersed throughout the play. Under the direction of Miss Durfee, Miss Myrick, Eleanor Wahn, and Marcia Wilson, they add much to the prevalent tone of fantasy and light comedy.

Members of the cast include: Rosalind, Vivienne Sikora; Celia, Florence Furfey; Orlando, Barbara Varney; Oliver, Josephine Ingram; Touchstone, Marcia Wilson; Duke Senior, Mary Stanley; Duke Frederick, Marcia Dwinell; LeBeau, Barbara Aldrich; Audrey, Marion Ryon; Phoebe, Kathleen Reilly; Silvius, Phyllis Burke; Corin, Vesta Starrett; William, Jean Patmore; Jaques, Joyce Streeter; Hyman, Ruth Small; Amiens, Eloise Wood; and Martex, Mildred Mateer.

Chairmen of backstage crews are: lights, Alfred Wade; makeup, Phyllis Gordon; props, Joyce Lord; costumes, June Duval and Josephine Ingram; scenery design, Jackie Keyes; Publicity, Mary Stanley; tickets, Bernie Oppen; assistant directors, Barbara Brown and Barbara Chandler; prompter, Barbara O'Connell and Priscilla White; scenery technicians, Jim Cronin and Dick Cutter; music, Miss Carlson, Gerry Nickerson and Fay Shackford; dancing, Miss Durfee, Miss Myrick, Eleanor Wahn, and Marcia Wilson.

Trustees Discuss Raise In Tuition

In addition to the plans outlined by President Phillips in chapel on Monday, the Trustees also discussed the matter of tuition at the college during their meeting last week end. In view of the nationwide trend among the colleges of higher tuition because of increased costs it was thought necessary to at least consider the matter at this time.

Stu-C Activities

(Continued from page two) organizations, proposed a new By-Law to be included in the constitution of Stu-C, Stu-G, C.A., W.A.A., and the Outing Club. It states that "No major office holder in one of the major organizations may hold a major office in any of the other four." Already several of these organizations have passed the law.

At its last meeting, Stu-C voted $50 to the Student Service Fund as well as an equal amount to the Library-Commons Fund to show its sympathy towards both drives.

Also at its last meeting, Stu-C voted to abolish freshman rules next semester since half of the new students have been here at Bates before and the other half will be ex-service men.

Under John Driscoll, Stu-C is planning to start an off-campus men's club similar to the Lambda Alpha club of the girls. Stu-C hopes to integrate the many off-campus men more closely into campus life making them feel more strongly their ties with Bates.

President Reports

Next fall 80 more men will be admitted and approximately 65 women. This will mean there will be 350 men on campus and 400 women. The President says that this total of 750 is only temporary, and that as soon as things become a little more normal, Bates will return to its former number of approximately 700.

Arrangements for next year are still a bit tentative, but as far as can be seen this is the arrangement according to President Phillips. According to the will of Mr. Smith, Smith Hall is to be a man's dormitory. Men will also be quartered in John Bertram Hall and Roger Williams Hall. The women will occupy Parker Hall in addition to their houses and Rand Hall. The President said that applications have been made for 30 family units for married veterans and their families and 50 units for single veterans, but as yet this is uncertain.

Eating arrangements present another problem. Dr. Phillips said it would have been helpful if the new Commons were already on hand, but as it is still a thing of the future, some new arrangements must be made. Plans are underway for enlargement of the Fiske dining hall in Rand and for a new modern kitchen to be built off the rear of the building. This should accommodate all the women, leaving the present commons for the men.

Stuff... As Seen On Campus

Peering out from behind our horn-rimmed specs and digging ourselves from under sheafs of paper, stacks of books and pausing to sharpen our chewed-up pencils, (note—term papers due February 1) we'll take a sec to report on lighter aspects of college life.

Speaking of "lighter" subjects, notice Jackie Keyes' super-deluxe model from Mexico. P.S. It's broken already!

Last Saturday night witnessed the unveiling of previously unnoticed muscles when the combat between faculty and students decisively made known that the former has a monopoly on the brawn, as well as the brains! Andy Myhrman made an unusually "cute" sportsman while Mr. Buschmann struck terror with those mighty smashes — zum! The peculiar warming-up antics of Buck Splink (climbing the side wall) should add another nick-name to his present collection — Tarzan!

Just one question remains — what do these black-face comedians look like without black faces? Sech talint — and it should all remain a mystery!

Fashion notes: Have you seen Al Kneeland's sharp new ensemble? They call it G. I. khaki... From U. S. to olde Englande, we caught a glimpse of "As You Like It" cast members dashing across campus MOST inconspicuously in rainbow-hued tights, capes and various and sundry other regalia... Seen in New Dorm North — one brilliant red man's hat, captured at the Bowdoin game and awarded to Peewee for "distinguished service".

There must have been a diamond mine discovered someplace to judge by the rate the number of rings has been increasing this year. Marty Cloutier is the latest recipient. Best wishes, Marty!

An urgent call for linemen, crutches, and wheel chairs has come from Kit (just-call-me-grandma) Covey — caused by too strenuous try-outs. Oh well, she made the squad.

Bates' musical repertoire should profit by the work of all the would-be Gershwins who struggled in an effort to turn out nostalgic songs, hymns, victory marches, and drinking songs (coke!). With all the talent shown last night a choice should be tough for the judges.

There seems to be an invasion

Senior Reminisces About Former Queens

By Helen Pratt '46

It is a privilege of seniors to do a little reminiscing. When we hear the Alma Mater or the Smoker, we cannot help having a twinge of regret and sadness. Four years ago it had seemed as if we would be in school simply ages, and now we find ourselves nearly through. This week end we are enjoying our last carnival and looking back on those we had so much fun at in the last four years. At last we have had the chance to help choose the Carnival Queen, which was a privilege we looked ahead to as freshmen.

As we "grand old seniors (?) were voting for the Queen from our class, we went over the preceding carnivals in our thoughts and remembered the three queens who had so graciously reigned over the festivities. Coronated by President Gray at the "Crystal Capers", "Holly" Hollis was her majesty when sixteen bewildered freshmen arrived in January, 1943, and she became our ideal college girl. Holly, who was from Boston, was active in W.A.A. and had her numerals and sweater. She had been a proctor and member of the Ivy Day Committee and Swimming Club. We hear that she is now working in Boston for the New England Auto Dept. of Employers' Group Insurance.

Our sophomore year the snow was piled high, the light burned in Frye Street House's lighthouse and the polar bear growled in front of New Dorm. How pleased we were when Ruthie Parkhurst Stirling, entering in a sleigh with her court, was crowned queen by President Gray, and read the proclamation for cares to be laid aside. With Ruthie as our sovereign queen, fun was the order of the day. Vice-President of her class for two years, a member of the Ski Club, Modern Dance Club, W.A.A. Board, Outing Club, the "Mirror" staff, of out-of-town men this week end rivaling the one of returning vets that Prexy spoke of, and from all reports causing just as acute a housing shortage — oh well, just refer your troubles to the B. C. C.

We received a telegram from Mary Livingston (of the Jack Benny program) who sent us the following ditty for the occasion:

"Carnival comes but once a year, And when it comes it brings good cheer."

And remember, exams are just around the corner!

listed in "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges", and with W.A.A. numerals, sweater and the loving-cup — Ruthie was known through her many activities. Of course, we all felt a share of the excitement when Ruth joined the ranks of those taking a Bates man when she and Bill Stirling were married. Bill is out of the service now and they are living in Fitchburg, Mass.

Our Junior year — and we saw Jane Webber of East Orange, New Jersey, with all the dignity we think of a queen possessing, carried in on a litter with her escort of black-skinned bearers like a scene from Arabian Nights. We watched our newly inaugurated president coronate the queen on her snow throne under the colored lights before the grand ice show. Queen Jane, too, had been active in college with service on the Freshman and Community Service Cabinets, the STUDENT staff, chairman of the Ivy Hop, and proctor for two years, and an assistant in psychology. Using her major in sociology, she is now doing social work in Cleveland, Ohio.

This year we are proud to have a member of our own class, a great, all-around college girl, Ruth Stillman of Wareham, Mass., reigning over our fun and festivity. A proctor, member of Outing Club, and a member of the Debating Squad, Ruth also puts in many hours in the lab and assists in biology. Our queen joins the thirty-six others who have reigned at Bates.

program will feature a debate. Mimeographed sheets containing the pros and cons of the issue will be circulated in all the dorms.

The Campus Service Commission is planning to have Mr. Ross speak to them on the care of grounds and buildings. This commission is headed by Shirley Hicks.

The Religion Commission, under the direction of Holly Hawkes, is planning to work on inter-faith discussion groups among the students.

The Deputations Commission, under Dan Novotny, is going ahead with its work on teaching Sunday School classes.

Speedy "Stackpole" Sets Doctor's Career As Goal

By Les Smith '48

It is no accident that Guy Sandulli is one of the most valuable players on this year's basketball squad. Guy first took up the game when eight years old and has been playing ever since. In high school in his home town of Waterbury, Connecticut, he widened his sports interests to include track and football. Guy made his letter for two years in basketball, football, and track. In his senior year at Crosby High, he transferred to Cheshire Academy in Cheshire, Connecticut, but we have no information concerning his activities there other than he did play football.

Sandulli became interested in Bates through some friends and is now in his sophomore year. He is following in his doctor father's footsteps, being a pre-med majoring in biology and minoring in chemistry. Of the two subjects, chemistry seems to be his favorite, but even this placed a poor second to sports on his preferred list last year. Guy's attitude towards his studies versus athletics is a bit vague this year. Speaking of last year, he once again broadened his athletic background and played baseball, coming within one game of making his letter in this sport. Sandulli also was a member of the 1945 basketball team and won his letter, in spite of being the only civilian on a Navy team with a Navy coach. Sandulli tells us, by the way, that his greatest thrill during a game came during last year's overtime tilt with Tufts Sandulli pere was in the stands that night and Guy managed to score eight of the twelve points made in the overtime period.

Last June he left school to enter the Merchant Marine. He got as far as the training station at Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., when the war's end sent him back to a student's status. Next summer he plans to go to either the University of Maine Summer School or Yale. The latter is most probable since it is much nearer his home.

The Sandulli family includes two other boys besides the subject of this article. They are both younger, being aged twelve and five. The five-year-old already shows an interest in basketball... the other brother has many interests too. Guy relates that this brother is a born functioneer. Already he observes all the amenities of the trade: sends corsages to his dance dates, takes them to an occasional movie, dines out... and he is even an accomplished pianist. Send this lad to Bates; he is needed right now.

"Stackpole" himself is quite a functioneer. Guy is right in his element now, though; he confesses to holding a philosophy of "love 'em and leave 'em" and, with a four-to-one ratio, what could be better?

Concerning the more serious aspects of the Bates scene, Guy has definite opinions also. He says that there is a great improvement in student support of the athletic teams, for instance. Last year there were many factors contributing to the general apathy of the student body, but, judging by the game turn-outs so far this winter, these factors have vanished completely. He likes the democratic spirit and friendliness of Bates. This was one of the main reasons that led him (and many of us) to choose a small liberal arts college.

After Bates, Sandulli wants to attend the medical school at the University of Maryland or Georgetown University. If he continues to show the same style and speed on the basketball court that has distinguished his game here, then one of those schools is in line to receive a valuable addition to its team. Best of luck, Guy, and we hope you do not become embroiled with the fair sex for anything stated herein.

cats in the lead which was sufficient to win. Fleischer, Berry, Larochelle, Arnold, Card played fine ball. Sandulli was high scorer for the game, scoring 20 points, with Fleischer getting 8.

Maine 64, Bates 42

Mainly because of lack of height and substitutes, Bates lost to Maine. Bates was losing 17-4 during the first period but fought back to within 6 points of the Maine boys as the half ended, but as the game proceeded the margin was widened.

Bobcats 56, Colby 52

The Bobcats racked up their first win in the state series by defeating Colby, 56-52, in another thrilling game at the Bates gym. Scoring honors went to Guy Sandulli, who collected 19 points for the Cats.

Last Tuesday evening Bowdoin defeated Bates 52-42 in an exciting contest. Mainly because of the lack of height Bates lost another contest. (Not only was height against us but other things which I think those who saw the game can guess).

ed, they put the girls through paces indoors. Then once more came ice, and snow, and more snow. Thanks to Bob Gumb and his ambitious crew, they finally had the rink again. Then it grew colder and colder. Just how icy it did get no one knows but the gals were skating.

Timing wasn't too good, so the directors set Ann Peterson on the trail of an extension cord. A fellow plugged it in over the gym door, stretched it over to the fence, and hooked it to the victrola. Fine! If one put his ear not less than a half inch away from the loud speaker, he could hear Nelson Eddy's baritone voice perfectly. So rehearsal had to continue without music. When their cast had left, Lois and Nan tried to pull the cord out. They couldn't reach it. It was bitter cold, and in one desperate attempt to get some help, the girls lunged in the only open door to the gym. They soon made a hasty exit, (or don't we talk about that, girls?)
At the last minute the whole ballet had to be reorganized with less people. Even then tiny Jo Williams always managed to have a tall partner or to be on the end of a line. Costumes were being sewed, everyone was worrying about the weather, and things were in a state of general turmoil.

Friday night arrived, and backstage the girls were shivering both from stage-fright and the cold. When the crowd arrived from the big parade, the show opened with a snappy review by twenty pretty mounties. Next was a double by Lois Foster and Nancy Gannon, who were responsible for the whole show. They wore colorful Tyrolenne outfits. Tommy Crosson then did a "Fantasy of Night" to the rhythm of Symphony. Then came the Sextet of Snappy Bates Co-eds. After the entrance of the Queen, the program closed with a graceful ballet of snowflakes with Patricia Peel as the ballerina.

Congratulations are due to all who helped to put the review over. In spite of all the hardships, "The Bates Gay Blades of 1946" was one good show.
