Sumner K. Wiley; regional FPHA director, informed President Charles F. Phillips on March 27, that Bates has been alloted twenty-nine family units and thirty-seven dormitory units for war veterans and their families.

Earlier in the year there was an attempt made to obtain the housing units from South Portland for the campus in order to accommodate the veterans whose main problem was housing. However, this attempt failed. The alternative was to take over the units at the Auburn airport. This idea was abandoned, however, since it was felt that the arrangement would segregate the war veterans from the rest of the campus.

Bates-On-The-Air

Tonight Bates College-on-the-Air welcomes to its studio two members of the Bowdoin varsity debate squad. These two men will attempt to convince Lila Kumpunen and Bill Ginn that they are wrong in asserting that co-education is preferable to segregation. They will take the affirmative on the question as stated: "Resolved, that segregation is preferable to co-education on a college campus." This broadcast, presented at the usual time, 7:30, will be repeated on Thursday, April 4, over WGAN in Portland. It is produced by Nancy Clough. The technician is Martha Cloutier and the announcer will be Joyce Baldwin. Listen in and see if you agree with the Bowdoin men!

honors chapel this morning that Electra Zazopoulos, Barbara Miller, and Mary Langille have been elected to the Bates Chapter of the Phi Beta Kappa Association. Two other senior girls, Myrtle Holden and Joyce Cleland, were admitted in December. This recognition is given mainly for scholarship, though citizenship and all-round character are taken into account. This chapter selects its members from the upper 10th percent of the class.

Electra Zazopoulos of Haverhill, Mass., has worked on the STU-DENT Staff for four years, the last wo as managing editor. She served as vice-chairman of the Philosophy Club and vice-president of the Phil-Hellenic Club. An active member of Heelers, she has been in charge of properties this year. Selected by C. A. for the freshman cabinet she subsequently served a year on the regular cabinet as the head of the Publicity Commission. She is an assistant in philosophy and history and government, and is a holder of the Bates Key scholarship.

Langille hails from Swampscott, Mass. A member of the French Club, she became vicepresident in her junior year and then took over the presidency. She has assisted in the French department and has been elected to mester. Of these, seven had Phi Sigma Iota, the French honor > Barbara Miller of Worcester, Mass., has been interested in debating, winning both the Freshman and Sophomore prize debates. She is now a varsity debater and a member of the Debating Council. As a freshman she was awarded the Alice Jane Dinsmore English Prize. An assistant in chemistry, she is a member of the Lawrance Chemical Society.

MacFarlane Club NONOES LIGHTRE

Jeannette Giguere, pianist, is to be honored at a tea sponsored by the MacFarlane Club for its members on Wednesday afternoon, April 3, from 3:30 to 5:00 o'clock.

Miss Giguere has been teaching at the New England Conservatory of Music since 1935. She is a member and faculty advisor of the national Sigma Alpha Iota Society. and a member of the American Association of University Professors. The pianist is also president of the National Honorary Fraternity of Phi Cappa Lambda. Miss Giguere, a former resident of the Twin Cities, will come to Bates through the efforts of Nancy Hudson, a member of MacFarlane Club, who is a former pupil of hers.

For her program, Miss Giguere will play the following numbers: Impromptu in B flat, by Franz Schubert; Nocturne, Mes Joies, Grand Valse Brillante, Fantasie Impromptu, and Scherzo in B minor, by Frederic Chopin; and Soiree de Vienne, by Franz Liszt.

Miss Mabel Eaton and Miss Elsie Raab have been invited as guests to the tea and Joyce Baldwin

Course In Social Education . . .

One of the predominant gripes about campus seems to concern the opposite sex.

From both sides we hear the faults and idiosycracies of the other - their lack of worldly knowledge - their naivety - their pomposity - their banality, etc. All this petty censure seems to indicate a lack of adaptation to present college life. This does not mean an inability on either side, since each at this stage of the game, ought to have the mental capacity to acclimate him (her) self to live harmoniously with his (her) fellow man.

Whether this is a result of the past abnormal conditions whereby the male has seen both sides (and the middle, too) of life and thus become more mature in worldly ideas, where the average co-ed has had to gain her experience vicariously, or whether the difference in age of the returning veteran to that of his co-ed class classmate has created a feeling of selfconsciousness or inferiority (or its antithesis); or whether the fact that for several previous semesters, the cloistered life of the girls has produced a perverted attitude toward "co-education", (I loathe using this word) which now considers male standards improper and reprehensible; or whether the day to day existence that has been thrust upon the serviceman has created a flippant mode of life - is all debatable.

It may be that the panacea for these social ills will be "time", whereby both accept a mutual give and take policy - or then again the extermination of these anomalies may require a course in "social education".

Elections . . .

During the past week a few interested students amongst us took themselves to the chapel on Tuesday and Thursday mornings to participate in what apparently was supposed to be nominations and primary elections for class officers. Those of us who went were handed slips of paper demanding what seemed to be an endless amount of names. The trouble was that most of us, especially the veterans, did not have the vaguest notion as to who was in our class. Nor did we know what the special capabilities of the new people on campus

As a result of all this we voted in a confused fashion, most of us not caring what names we did put down, forgetting the fact that we were supposed to be exercising our democratic prerogative. This was not the only difficulty. The whole system of nomination for class officers is unintelligent. We would venture to say that those people conducting the elections were as puzzled and confused at the nominations as we were.

We would suggest that an improvement in the machinery of nomination is in order. This is one problem that should definitely be in the hands of the Bates Conference Commission since there we have a body which represents about all elements on campus. Since it is specifically a student problem a joint investigation by representatives of Stu-C and Stu-G as to possible alternatives would seem to us the best approach. To make these elections worth while, we need a worth while system.

This week the last game of the atramural basketball games were erminated with the championship esting in the hands of a very powand West Parker team It was uite an affair for the West Parker eam, for they were told several imes that they didn't stand a hance, but last Monday afternoon hey showed a powerful East Parer team that they were a team to eat. Seeing that East Parker didn't ave a team that could match what West had to offer, they had to give up all hopes of a championship It eems that West Parker has uncovred a player that should capture e notice of Buck Spinks, for Bill lier has shown all the qualificaions of a potential varsity player. he can continue to play the type ball he has shown in the past e should prove to be valuable to any team that Buck can hope to out on the floor in the near future.

It seems that Disnard has been training very hard for the forthcoming Portland roadrace, and this has been evident to everyone that pokes his nose out from the reception rooms of the numerous dormitories. Last week Frank was observed to be in the strictist of training around Garcelon Field. He was seen walking around with a co-ed on his arm. I have seen many of these races in Portland and I can safely say that they don't allow the contestants to be paced by members of the weaker sex. We all know that this was in a moment of weakness and it definitely isn't a normal doing.

For the past week I have been bserving the results of Ducky Pond's attempts to mold a satisfactory baseball team. The team has finally got out of doors and to this correspondent it looks a bit of all right. There was informal batting practice with all members of the squad hitting that ball everywhere but where there were men to catch it. There was quite a difference with the team getting out of doors, by that I mean that the ball wasn't quite so easy to hit as t was in the cage. My fears were quelled very much in that the squad showed the possibilities of being the team to beat.

As I see it the varsity is all set to take the field. At the last time of writing I said that third base was the question. Well that problem is all settled. Kyper was a bit resentpassed about his reporting to practice, and I have to offer an apology. It sems that Kyper has a class three times a week that positively interferes with his coming out to join his teammates. Blanchard has the third base position all filled and I think that he is doing a fine job of it. It should be mighty hard for the opposing team to get a ball out of the infield, for we have a tight bunch of ground coverers.

Jim Burney, the boy from the state capital, showed Mr. Pond that he was a pitcher in the real sense of the word. In a practice game he held the first team handcuffed for as long as he was throw ing the ball up for them to hit. Julie Thompson, the pitcher for the first team, didn't have such good luck. If I remember correctly four runs were scored off him in the first inning. We all know that Julie is a top-notch pitcher and must have had a day that he just didn't have his stuff.

The team as a whole looks very good and certainly deserves the whole hearted support of the entire campus. A group of men that are giving so much, and trying so hard to make a team that will be invincable on the field certainly deserve our support.

The tennis team has been out on the courts for the past week and at present looks pretty good. One member of the team deserves the notice of everyone on the campus. This person is the versatile Bob Vail. At present he looks pretty good. As Bob himself puts it, it has been a long time since I have played any tennis, but nevertheless I am expecting a great season. With a team built around Vail we should have quite a court

Up to date the men's pool, bowling and ping-pong touraments have been progressing at a very rapid rate. There were quite a lot of contestants trying for top honors and this week should see the champions of the various fields. If the ladies on the campus will be patient they will see the winners' names posted on the boards of Chase Hall very

With all the sports of the col-

We all anxiously await the start of the baseball season, when we know that there will be some news that will be fit to print. Next week will be a little short of dope for your correspondent will be busy showing a former student around the campus. The last game was played off last Friday between the sophomore team, the Snafus, and the juniors. It was an exciting game with a final score of 13 to 10 with the juniors on top.

It is a source of embarrassment to the juniors and sophs to find a freshman team, the Atoms, in an undisputed second berth. But all will agree it was a good basketball

West Parker Wins Dorm Hoop Crown

West Parker captured the intramural basketball championship by pasting a 41-31 licking on East Parker. For the Westerns, who led the whole way, it was "Deadeye" Bill Jiler who set the pace with nine baskets for 18 points. For West, it was the fourth victory without defeat in the league and the final game of the hoop season. Defensively it was Lou Levine and Dick Flanagan who shone for the victors. West led throughout the game, the score being knotted only once at ten-all.

Robinson Players Score Again With "Pygmalion"

This is neither the time nor the place to criticize Shaw. For a considerable number of years he has been criticizing the rest of the world, and he is likely to continue long after he is dead. There is an amazing vitality in the old boy in his plays as well as his person and the production of "Pygmalion" by the Robinson Players last week gave ample evidence of that vitality. Written in 1912, some years before any member of this amateur cast was born, the play still speaks dramatically to a new generation, provoking thoughtful

Although the play is entitled "Pygmalion" it is obviously Galatea's story in the Shavian version of the myth. And therefore quite naturally, Joyce Lord, as the cockney flower girl who is transformed into a factitious lady, dominated the stage from her sniveling entrance on the portico of St. Paul's to her spirited exit on the way to her father's wedding. She gave a really splendid performance of the difficult role. To director Schaeffer should go an extra orchid for her ability to put the Higgins method "in reverse" to create (in something less than one month!) a puling and boorish cockney out of a "lady"; (the one point at which Miss Lord seemed somewhat self-conscious was the recurring necessity of claiming to be "a good girl"). One will not soon forget her dialogue midway of the experiment at Mrs. Higgins' afternoon tea, nor the "sanguinary" exit made on that occasion.

Stanley Moody, as the irascible phonetician and James Cronin, Jr., Hill brought as much laughter of the counter-attraction of Bing as the phlegmatic Colonel Pickering, who work together in the creation of their model lady, handled brother, played by Trafton Men- formance of "Pygmalion", they detheir roles admirably, though less easily than did Miss Lord. Debating Teams Finish Recordings

The recorded debate held with the University of Iowa has been completed and will be presented some time in the future over the air. Dave Brigham completed his stand before he left in February and Madeleine Richard has just recorded her portion. This was on the subject, Socialized Medicine. Bates took the affirmative.

Bates has also completed her side of the recorded debate with the University of Texas on the topic: "Resolved, that Maine is the ideal playground of the Nation." The Bates varsity team is now waiting to receive the completed ecording from Texas before this iebate is presented. On Tuesday, April 2, Dorothy Strout and Edcard Dunn went to Wesleyan Colege in Connecticut to represent he Bates varsity team in a decision debate with the Weslevan team. The topic was "Resolved, that there should be compulsory military training in peacetime.' Bates upheld the affirmative of the subject. Results of the debate were unknown at the time the paper went to press but will be announced next week.

Debating Magazine Publishes Script

Bates has been asked by Prof. E. R. Nichols, editor of "The Intercollegiate Debates" magazine to prepare a manuscript of one of its debates for this magazine. All debates included in the magazine are those considered especially outstanding. A debate on Socialized Medicine has been chosen. Madeleine Richard who debated this against Iowa, and Carolyn Booth, who debated against Bowdoin, will take the affirmative stand. Taking the negative will be Jane Blossom and Barbara Miller, both of whom debated against Dartmouth.
