Gauss Emphasizes Humane Traditions

Dean Christian Gauss, Professor Emeritus of Modern Languages at Princeton University and President of Phi Beta Kappa, addressed the student body on Humane Traditions during chapel period Friday.

"We are living in the most influential age of all civilization," said Dean Gauss. "Therefore we all ought to know and emphasize the humane traditions."

Through his work at Princeton, Dean Gauss knows Professor Einstein well, and reported that that scientist was both frightened and apprehensive because people do not realize how rapidly they must adjust to the new world created by the advent of nuclear fission.

Considering all quantum power as 1, Gauss said that the ratio between the power available from the time of Adam and Eve to 1937, and that utilized in the past 10 years, is 1 to 40,000,000. "We in America are most likely to solve the problem of adjusting to the new age because we have experienced two revolutions: the changed ratio of men to land, and the ratio of men to power," he explained.

Dean Gauss pointed out that this responsibility does not indicate that America is superior to other nations, however, because Americanism is not contained in blood, but in circumstances and faith.

We are dependent on the ancient Greeks for our conception of cosmos and cosmopolis, which are still essential to the sciences. The He-

MacMurray Is Garnet Art Head

The art department of the Bates Garnet has announced that beginning with the next issue, Bud MacMurray will be in full charge of the art work done in the magazine.

MacMurray succeeds William Perkins who was associate art editor last year. He did several drawings and the cover for the Winter issue. Perkins will complete the work for the forthcoming issue.

The full page illustration for William Senseney's story "Search Ended", appearing in the current issue of the Garnet is done by MacMurray.

Clubs Form Committee, Oversee Politic Action

A coordinating committee of political clubs has been formed by official representatives from the CA, Public Affairs Commission, Student Federalists, and the Debating Council.

As the first step in coordinating and emphasizing extra-curricular political activities on campus the informal committee selected students to petition the Student Activities Committee to create one month for campus-wide political discussions and to remove the conflict in meeting dates between Student Federalists and the Political Club.

The idea of coordinating committee was proposed in THE STUDENT last month by editorial writers Glenn Kumekawa and David Tillson. THE STUDENT also took the initiative in calling this first meeting of club representatives.

Remember! The rally starts at 8:00 p. m. Friday. Alumni, faculty and students invited. No food, but plenty of laughs, and a preview of what will happen to Maine on Saturday.

Smoker Adds Finis To Freshman Caps

Freshman rules for men officially ended last Monday night at the Freshman Decapping ceremony held in Chase Hall and presided over by Norm Card.

The program included a skit showing the various phases of meal time at the Commons presented by the men of John Bertram. Smith North gave a parody on various aspects of life on the Bates campus, including a typical freshman class, a Friday meal at the Commons, and a scene at a favorite spot of night club life for Bates men. The program presented by Smith Middle included a skit on freshman rules, a quartet, a parody on a football locker room pep talk, and finally a surprise package for upperclassman Charlie Radcliffe.

Smith South's contribution to the affair was a minstrel show with various musical selections by Willie Barbeau, Bob Lapointe, and Walter Ulmer.

Refreshments were served after the ceremony.

Dean Gauss At Formal Dinner

"The Sins of Nationalism" was the topic of an address given by Dean Gauss, national president of Phi Beta Kappa, at the first meeting of the Bates Round Table this year. This, the 51st meeting, was held jointly with the Bates chapter of Phi Beta Kappa Thursday at 7:00 at a formal dinner held at the Mansion House, Poland Springs. Presiding at the meeting was Prof. Angelo Bertocci and Dean Harry Rowe.

Committees for this dinner for 100 people consisted of Mrs. Ross, chairman, Mrs. Sampson, Mrs. Harms, Mrs. D'Alphonso, and Mrs. Carroll.

Other meetings throughout the year will be held at Chase Hall.

Frosh Introduce New Talent At Football Rally

The Colby Rally, held at Alumni Gym Friday, Nov. 7th, was put on by the freshman class. In front of the backdrop of the Colby Mule and the Bates Bobcat, Jim Anderson, dressed in top hat, tails, and dungarees, and carrying a cane, led the rally. On hand were Johnny Gaffney's cheerleaders and the band.

A skit starring Elsbeth Thomes and an "anonymous" fellow proved to Colby they'd better watch out! From there on just about everything happened - potatoes were thrown into the audience, there was a funeral procession, and even a real mule was brought into the gym.

Joyce Gilman, talented drum major of the Freshman class did a specialty number accompanied by the band.

After a rousing welcome, "Ducky" Pond said it would "be tough from here on in" and that "anything can happen." He congratulated the Freshman football team and added that they could help on the defensive line in practice for the Maine game. Al Angelosante, again acting Captain, said a few words about the coming games and the spirit behind them.

Jim Anderson led the group in a few familiar songs, and the program ended with the singing of the Alma Mater.

The game with Maine starts at 1:30 Saturday afternoon. Be there early to get the best seats for the best game of the year.

Lipstick, Legs, Strait-Jackets Create Laughs For Haze Day

"Hey, Bill, if we catch cold in our legs, then Stu-C will be sorry."

"Don't worry, Jim, the girls never do."

"Oh, Ellie, doesn't Ralph have simply divine legs?"

"Hey, Moe, button my coat up the back, will ya?"

These are only a few of the remarks heard around the campus during freshman Haze Day last Monday, as straight-jacketed, lipstick besmudged, air-raided-minded freshmen executed the commands of their masters - the upperclassmen.

Wearing clothes backwards with one leg rolled up the knee and "strafing" enemy aircraft were mild compared to what some of the personal flunkies had to do. Making beds, cleaning rooms, shining shoes, brushing clothes, carrying trays, writing letters to kid brothers, and even taking lecture notes were among the orders of the day.

At the command "Sound Off" given by an upperclassman, something like this could be heard:

"My name is Ray Sennet, I am 20 years old, I am in the class of 1951, I live at 24 Frye Street, phone 3321, Beat Maine."

Those freshmen who had private masters had to clear the way for said master and salaam at his command.

One of the biggest laughs of the day was on the fellows who diligently stood before a mirror for hours, branding their foreheads neatly with the numerals '51—only to find upon reaching their first class that the printing was in reverse.

Several people enjoyed hearing about the prof who didn't know what was going on and when half a dozen freshmen fell at on their backs en masse, thought the walks were crossed with wires.

From all indications, Haze Day was enjoyed by freshmen as well as upperclassmen.

As one sophomore remarked, "The only thing that could beat it would be a Haze Day for freshman girls. Oh boy!"

All College Organizations Hold Varied Programs Tuesday Night

Mr. Edward S. Herman, a new instructor in the Economics department, spoke before the Politics Club at their regular monthly Tuesday evening, November 11, in Libbey Forum.

Following Mr. Herman's speech on the Aspect of Inflation, a discussion period was held. Plans were made for small discussion groups, open to members and those still desirous of joining the club, to be held at the homes of various professors.

The tentative plan of sending three delegates to Springfield, Mass. for a conference on aspects of American Foreign Policy was also discussed.

MacFarlane Club
A program commemorating the centennial of the death of Felix Mendelssohn was the subject of the monthly meeting last night of the MacFarlane Club.

The program consisted of various selections by Mendelssohn, including two movements from his piano concerto played by Everett Brenner; a flute solo by Lois Youngs; vocal selections by Joyce Baldwin and Robert Smith; and records of the Italian Symphony and a violin concerto.

Marilyn Deston presented a paper on Mendelssohn's life. A short business meeting preceded the selections.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Don't forget the informal dance in the gym at 8:30 p. m. on Saturday evening. This also is part of the "Kum-Back" weekend.

Garnet Prepares For Tough Game

Maine polished off Bowdoin to the tune of 13-0 last Saturday. This, built on the solid 33-6 win over Colby two weeks ago, makes them great favorites to cop the Series come Saturday here on Garcelon Field. With the exception of one loss to strong University of New Hampshire, the Black Bears have had one of their best seasons in many years with wins over Rhode Island State, Northeastern, and Connecticut. A win or tie will give them the championship, and a Bobcat victory will only mean a split decision, which could carry three ways, depending on the Bowdoin-Colby outcome. The Pondmen head into their final grid contest of the '47 campaign with their backs against the wall and full knowledge that only a win can return them to the top.

The Orono team has been coming along great guns since their only loss on October 11. The line has shown improvement and the necessary reserves are at hand and able to spell the first stringers in all departments of the game. Not only has this club got depth, but there is individual brilliance there too. Zollo at guard is a little All-American and Marsankis at tackle made All-State last year. "Flash" Gordon is an able center, and Alan Wing is one of the best ends in the state. Backing up their line is a better than average backfield sparked by Henry "Rabbit" Dombkowski who is tops in scoring in this section of the country. He's assisted ably by Phil Coulombe, Reggie

Back To Bates Set For 14th

Under the title of "Kum-Back" week end the events scheduled for the weekend of the 25th have been pushed to this coming Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. All plans made by the alumni association will be carried through this weekend.

Although some students who returned the 25th will not be able to make it again an excellent turnout is expected since many of the Bates alumni will be on the campus for the Maine Teachers' Association convention.

The first event of the weekend will be a streamlined version of the pre-football game rally to be held at 8:00 p. m. in the Alumni Gym for students, faculty, and alumni. An open house for alumni and faculty at Chase Hall follows the rally.

On Saturday morning, at 8:00, breakfast will be served to the members of the Alumni Council and the "Alumnus" Advisory Board in Fiske Hall and Commons.

At 10:30 a meeting of all members of the Alumni Council will be held in the Chase Hall lounge. From 11:30 to 12:30 a lobster stew buffet luncheon will be served for alumni and faculty in the Alumni Gym.

At 4:00 p. m. the Women's Athletic Association will hold a tea for faculty and alumni in Chase Hall.

One of the gala events of the weekend will be the Kum-Back dance to be held in the Alumni Gym with Lloyd Rafnell's orchestra.

An open house at Thorncrag cabin for students, faculty, and alumni is planned for Sunday from 2-5 p. m.

Stu-C Names Date Of Frosh Elections

The coming Freshmen elections were discussed at the last Student Council meeting, Wednesday night, November 5, and the dates for nominations and elections announced.

On December 4 the entire class will meet in the chapel. Both men and women will submit written nominations for class president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer; the men will nominate candidates for Stu-C and the women for Stu-G. The two candidates with the greatest number of written votes for each of the six offices will be the nominees.

On December 9 the class will elect its four officers, and the men and women will elect their Stu-C and Stu-G representatives respectively from these winners.

At the BCC meeting held yesterday afternoon, November 11, the food situation was discussed and last year's food report was mentioned.

Federalists Plan Open Meeting

The executive council of the Student Federalists chapter will hold its next meeting at 8:45 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 18 in Room 5, Hathorn Hall. As there is no regular meeting of the entire club, anyone interested in the work of the Student Federalists, whose slogan is "World government in our time", is invited to attend.

At present Everett Tuttle is conferring with Dr. Zerby on the matter of obtaining time for a chapel program, while Joseph Mitchell is trying to change the meeting date from Tuesday evening because of the conflict with the Politics Club.

At the last meeting, it was decided to charge 25 cents dues per semester in addition to the fee of $1, which is required of all national members.

Last spring the Federalists sent representatives to Augusta and sponsored a world government resolution before the Maine legislature which failed in passage, according to Senator Cross, principally because of the late date in the session at which it was introduced.

The present membership of the club now number 26, 12 members having been graduated last June.

Teachers' Convention Opens Here Tomorrow

The Maine Teachers' Association Convention, originally scheduled for October 30 and 31, will open for two days here tomorrow.

One of the highlights of the Convention will be a book exhibit on display in the Alumni Cage.

Meetings will be held under the direction of Mr. Woodworth, superintendent of the Lewiston Public Schools from 1:30 to 5:00 on Thursday in the Chapel and Little Theater. The closing session will be on Friday from 9:00 to 12:00 noon in the Chapel.

A Message From 'The Mirror'

Recently the campus received the 1947 issue of 'The Mirror.' Congratulations to last year's board for the great improvement—but now we all want a still bigger and better yearbook. How?

For one thing, it should not be the rush job of a handful of harried seniors. 'The Mirror' is not exclusively a senior project, although it usually ends up as such, and it wants ideas and people. There's lot to be done if you are interested in writing, business managing, layout, and other fields. We will see you Monday at 7 p.m. in the smoking room of the Women's Union.

Also everyone is asked to turn in their best snapshots of activities and people. If you like to pour over the candid shot section of the yearbook, why not contribute to it? Watch the bulletin board for further details on this.

We have, ahem! been wondering how you would react to our raising the price a dollar, so that we won't get caught between rising costs and the ability to pay for all the things we want in this year's 'Mirror.'

So you see all we want from you, if you want a better 'Mirror', is a little money, plenty of snapshots, any ideas you may have, and lots of help.

The 'Mirror' Staff

Sound Off

The Thanksgiving vacation being just about settled this year as far as duration is concerned, the Outing Club directors and the Student Activities Committee have been wrestling with another aspect of the problem.

Since most of the students will remain on campus, the above organizations are attempting to plan an all-campus function for the holiday. Running in the lead at this time seems to be a suggestion to have the main meal at noon rather than in the evening. Students would travel to a nearby Grange hall in the afternoon, hold some sort of a rustic clambake there, eat supper, and return to campus in the early evening.

Before these plans can be crystallized, however, there are several steps to be taken. It's not known at this time whether the main meal can be served at noon or not, for example. But this and similar problems can be worked out by those planning the affair.

In the meantime, we students can help. Let's start thinking about this outing. Do we want it? Let the Outing Club know it then. Have we any ideas about the program itself? Let Billias and Co., Inc., know about them too.

From the few details we've heard so far, it sounds like a good idea. Don't keep your opinion to yourself.

Barbs

Last Saturday night's driving rains seem to have ended the forest fire threat for this season. Before the ashes get cold, however, we'd like to have another two cents' worth.

It is the opinion from several sources that the Bates men contributed a great deal in the emergency. That their efforts were a sacrifice for them, no one can deny. Not the least part of this sacrifice was time — time which many could ill afford to give from already crowded schedules.

Everyone on the administrative staff from Prexy on down has bent over backwards to make the readjustment to normal classroom routine as easy as possible for the firefighters. The large majority of the faculty has cooperated in the most gratifying manner. Tests were postponed, lectures regiven, assignments temporarily lightened to enable the men to catch up.

It has been the actions of a small minority of the faculty, however, which have left a bad taste in the mouth of the student body.

These few have done much to dampen friendly student-administration relations. They have found loopholes in the letter of the law and failed to take into consideration the spirit of the law.

Students' obligations to our society was the theme of a recent chapel talk given by a faculty member, yet some of the speaker's colleagues have stated that they could see little or no reason for our contribution to a portion of society in need.

The students, the administration, and most of the faculty have given generously. We wholeheartedly condemn those few who have been uncooperative merely because of a selfish reluctance to see their own personal routines disrupted. We are not particularly proud to have those people at Bates.

Harry Jobrack

And Bouquets

Now that we're gotten rid of our barbs, we'd like to hand out a few bouquets. Outside of athletics, the freshman class has participated in three major events as members of a class and not as individuals: the Colby rally, the men's decapping ceremony, and the girls' debbing party.

We missed the girls' show, but from all reports, it sounded excellent. We saw the other two events and we know first hand that they were very good too.

All these affairs were well organized and well staged, showing talent and originality. The freshmen have made three major contributions to campus life, and they are battling 1.000. Our congratulations and thanks to them.

Frosh 'Finders' Fill File; For Every Field, A Fact

By Charles Clarke

Twenty-seven freshmen have had experience in public speaking, 32 play musical instruments, an equal number have edited school publications, and 49 have sung solos. These, as well as many other interesting and useful facts about the class so recently emerged from freshman rules are all on file at the CA office in the care of genial 'Scotty' McKinnon. The source of this information is the freshman 'interest finders', which are cards filled out by as yet only 145 of the 230 members of the class, indicating their experience in a wide selection of fields and their interests as to work in the CA.

Why Is US Feared By Other Peoples?

By Bill Stringfellow

(This is the fourth of a series.) 'We are afraid of America... we are beginning to hate America.' That sentence was contained in a statement issued at the Oslo Conference by the Indian delegation. It expresses incisively the attitude that is developing abroad because of certain American policies.

I realized in Europe that much of the bitterness and fear with which we are being regarded abroad is based on misinterpretation, ignorance, and misunderstanding. Our most well-intentioned plans, from our viewpoint consistent with democracy, backfire because of the fact that we are the greatest power in the world. The rest of the world has had experience before with powerful nations and well-intentioned plans that became hideous and ruthless imperialisms.

We are resented abroad because we are the 'haves' and they are the 'have nots'. It is hard, for example, for an Englishman, be he ever so sympathetic with the United States, to explain why our removal of price control after negotiation of the British loan was anything less than a swindle. It is difficult for a displaced person to understand (Continued on page four)

According to these interest finders, a large number of freshmen have had experience as camp counselors and Sunday school teachers and in conducting social periods. Those with musical talent do everything from baton twirling to playing the snare drum and guitar. One freshman plays the organ. The piano is the instrument played by the greatest number of new students.

On the 'interests' side of the card, it is not surprising to find that all but 15 of those who filled out the cards are interested in educational relationships. Next in popularity is work with incoming freshmen, which was marked by 55 members of the current freshman class.

Other popular fields are inter-faith relationships, 41; inter-racial relationships, 35; and work with small children, 32.

Probably the most novel case is that of the one boy who reveals that he wants to tutor 'marriage and the family'.

Ode To The Pre-Socratics

(From notes on Cultural Heritage)

My heart leaps up when I behold The Pre-Socratics, wise and old. Teaching little Greeks the grind Of elements undefined. So if I am not and am not I And change is sense and senses fly In following philosophy — Then I am glad I am not me.

Gladys Hasty Carroll '25 Gives Interview At Peck's

By Midge Hathan

In the book department of a large store, a small woman in blue was surrounded by friends and admirers as she sat in front of a stack of books signing her name in each copy. The book, 'While the Angels Sing', the woman, Gladys Hasty Carroll, Bates '25, author of many other novels about Maine. Mrs. Carroll lives in South Berwick with her husband whom she married in the Bates chapel the day after being graduated, and two children. She has traveled extensively but always returns to Maine and its people.

Gladys Hasty Carroll began writing at an early age, and by the time she reached Bates her mind was made up as to major. Her first published works were in Sunday school magazines and juvenile stories. Other books include 'A Few Foolish Ones', 'Neighbor to the Sky', 'I, Fred, Take Thee, Meridel', 'Head of the Line', and 'Mist on the Mirror'.

As for actual writing, Mrs. Carroll thought that no novel could be written in less than a year's time. She has actually thought of ideas for novels in a short space of time and after a week of planning has begun work. Most of her novels deal with Maine people, and her first, 'As the Earth Turns', was produced as a play in Maine.

Lambda Alpha Links Twin City Girls With Stu-G And Campus

By Beatrice O'Brien

One of the most active clubs on campus is composed entirely of off-campus girls.

Back in 1925 two Lewiston-Auburn girls, Betty Jordan and Catherine Lawton, got their heads together and organized the Lambda Alpha Society. The Greek letters stood for Lewiston-Auburn, and thus their club was for local girls. They felt that off-campus and dorm relationships would be furthered by such a club.

The college offered the new club $50 to furnish what is now the 'town room' in Hathorn Hall, on the condition that the members themselves would raise a like sum. The coeds accepted the challenge and proved their ingenuity by presenting a stunt night. The result? Fifty dollars in proceeds.

Many other gifts were contributed by people only indirectly connected with the doings of the society. Among these was a contribution of $25 from the Alumni Club of Portland.

The girls then set out to furnish the Lambda-Alpha room in Hathorn Hall. This room, to the right of the front entrance to the building, had been the college library before the erection of Coram Library. Later, in 1937, it was re-furnished in maple.

As yet the club has not had a telephone installed. The year after the society was founded the members tried to obtain one, but were unable to do so. They are still hoping, however. 'That's one thing we can always do — hope!' says one cheerful sophomore.

Lambda-Alpha, the town girls' contact with Student Government, has a house council which functions much the same as those in the dorms. The council plans functions and sees to it that errant freshmen suffer for their sins during the period of rules enforcement.

The town girls also have a representative to Stu-G. This year Rae Eastman was elected to that post. On Nov. 29 the group plans to hold a cabin party at Shirley

Alumni Kum Back For Lobster, But Cancellation Can Be Fun

By Joyce Taylor

'Kum back, kum back, oh kum back my Bonnie to me!' Such will be the college theme Friday, Saturday, and Sunday during Bates-Kum-Back Weekend, Alumni Secretary Lester Smith's hopeful second edition of Back-to-Bates Weekend, rescheduled, complete with Maine game, because of fire.

According to Mr. Smith, however, Back-to-Bates Weekend, despite its cancellation, turned out to be a real reunion, especially for the Class of '47. So many members of this class did come back to Bates that a Saturday night dance had to be held anyway. There was even an orchestra on hand for the occasion!

And the Class of '47 was not the only one represented, for many other alumni also appeared on the scene by plane, train, automobile—anything that would bring them back to Bates.

Gardner Alexander '29 returned for the first time since he was graduated. Larry Carey, doing graduate work in Chicago, flew here by plane. Gladys Bickmore arrived from Washington, D. C. Indeed many sections of the country were represented in spite of the fire warnings.

The meeting of the executive committee of the Alumni Council was held as scheduled with only one member absent, but other committees had a few minutes of hair-tearing when they had to decide momentous problems like what should be done with all those doughnuts and the lovely lobsters which they had planned to stew.

The lobsters are still on ice ready for this week end.

For some, the weekend was a complete success. That is, some of the girls had their long-wished-for dates with certain men they had admired all through college, but who had never had the courage to ask them out. The Hobby Shoppe was the scene of many happy reunions, and the Bates alumni were seen roaming about the campus rediscovering their favorite haunts.

For others, the return home was the most exciting part of the weekend because they had to travel through such fire areas as perilous Route One. Six of the girls, apprehensive of this trip, started for home early, only to run out of gas near one of the busiest fire areas.

According to Chairman Smith, even though the cancelled weekend was a big success, there is a large enough reservoir of alumni to provide for a still bigger Bates-Kum-Back Weekend.

Surface Noise

Hi thar! How be ya Doc, and the rest of you fellas?

Seems like our Stanton Elm was decorated — again. A terrific picture, huh? Anybody in it we know?

Listen to this one! There's a member of our faculty who has consumed more liquid poison than any other person on campus. At a tender age he downed a bottle of cyanide and is here to tell the tale. T'warn't his twin brother either.

And still Hub and Jan insist that it was a moose that went lickity-split across the Bowdoin campus the weekend of the Bates-Bowdoin game. Of course they were the only ones that saw it, but as they were still standing there with their eyes bulging out, two policemen came puffing up and panted that they were chasing a moose. That's their story.

Uh-huh, we've got some frosh that are captivated by those big brown eyes of our Lu Flett.

Speaking of two-somes, just leave it to Grady and Rosasco to figure out a new method to work-your-way-through-college. Just ask 'em.

How about signing off with 'BEAT MAINE'?

Size, Cost, And Cut Ad Worker's Worries

By Florence Lindquist

'A two inch ad won't show up nearly as well as a larger one, and besides, if you take a larger ad there'll be room for a cut.'

Greek to you? Possibly. But it's not Greek to a member of THE STUDENT advertising department, under the direction of Carol Peterson.

Armed with information about STUDENT ads and lists of potential and past advertisers, the ad solicitor's main job is to get those ads. How does he do it? He tells the business man exactly what he wants to know about an ad for THE STUDENT and how that ad can help his business.

Information about ads includes many things. Ads run in size from two to ten inches. The cost of the ads is a little more involved than the size. There are many terms of settlement and subscription from which the advertiser may choose. He may take the ad for one issue at a time or he may run his ad for seven issues or for one-half a semester.

Many advertisers like to include 'cuts' or pictures of their products. A cut not only draws attention to an ad but also livens up its appearance.

Ads in THE STUDENT are there for more than decoration. They tell the reader what there is and where it is in town, helping to promote business for some stores. Revenue from ads is a large part of finances used for publication of the paper.

The function of the advertising staff is an important one.

FRENCH SELECTIONS

The recent DeGaulle victory in the French elections is of great importance to the U.S. To understand what it's all about let's take a backward glance.

Until 1941 when Hitler attacked Russia the Communists opposed the war. In the meantime France fell, and DeGaulle, who was Anti-Red, formed a resistance force. The Communists, out in the cold, were unable to gain control of the underground nor of the provisional government after liberation because of his opposition.

Many Frenchmen, however, feared DeGaulle had dictatorial aspirations and it became increasingly difficult for him to handle the provisional government. Rebuffed, he virtually retired from politics. The Communists for a time became the biggest party in France.

This year DeGaulle returned to the political scene basing his appeal upon an anti-Communist stand. The center, led by Socialist Premier Ramadier and M.R.P. Bidault, whose strength he has sapped, profess to see in him a threat as grave as the possibility of Red domination.

The significance of DeGaulle's victory is reflected from the following press excerpts:

The New York Times: 'By eliminating the middle parties the election has neatly drawn the line between the Gaullists and the Communists.'

Wall Street Journal: 'The spectacular success of DeGaulle's party seems to mark a shift from tolerance of Communism to militant anti-Communist in the minds of many French voters.'

The New York Times:

'The extremes have grown at the expense of the center.'

Newsweek: 'To the astonishment of everyone including DeGaulle the R.P.F. surged vigorously into the lead.'

Nation: 'Insofar as the French election was a choice between Soviet Russia and the United States, the U. S. won hands down.'

Christian Science Monitor: 'DeGaulle is reported to be more interested in obtaining American military commitments to help defend France against an invasion from the East than he is in Marshall Plan aid.'

How We Look At It: The concensus of opinion seems to be that DeGaulle has won a smashing victory at the expense of the center. Until DeGaulle commits himself further we shall reserve our opinion of him.

We note, however, that DeGaulle seems to be opposed to socialist experiments, and if France should become again a completely capitalistic state the results would be far-reaching. If capitalism should get France back on her feet again, it might even mean the end of Socialism in Western Europe.

We also note that DeGaulle is opposed to a federalist Europe.

Further, we can see that he has wanted and now wants an entirely new constitution for France and a concentration of power in the executive branch. Many observers see less stability in France as a result of DeGaulle's comeback and his present policies.

For better or worse, DeGaulle is again the outstanding political figure in France. What he does can well shape history for decades. He is a man to watch.

The last weekend of the current football season is coming up and the three Bates home games of the season, this final with the University of Maine will draw the greatest interest. The Bobcats will try to gain a tie with Maine for the State title (they can do it by winning), while the Black Bears will seek the undisputed championship by a victory.

The varsity will welcome these men to the squad next fall. Jesse Castanias played his best game of the season against Colby. He has been consistently improving and for one who never played in the backfield before taking Walker Heap's place, he has shown up well. We had never seen the sleeper play worked effectively in a game before and thought we were in for a treat during the freshman game when end Hal Cornforth sneaked over to the sidelines. It was on the

Colby Upsets Bates In Surprise Victory

The Colby Mules rose up in all their fury against the Bobcat of Bates last Saturday afternoon at Waterville and pinned a 12-7 loss on the Garnet, in what will go down in the records as a perfect example of State Series uncertainty. A touchdown in the second period only served to make the Mules kick all the harder, for they clearly dominated play for the remainder of the afternoon.

Bobkittens End Three Game Series With Last Minute Loss To Bridgton

A twelve yard aerial with but a minute and a half of play remaining snatched victory from the hands of the Bates Freshman, as Bridgton Academy topped the Bobkittens 12-9 in a heartbreaker at Garcelon last Friday.

Bates had maintained a narrow 2-0 margin for three periods, the two points being registered when Al Evans and Hal Cornforth broke through to nail Bridgton's Chuck Root behind the goal line.

Dave Kuhn pounced on a Bridgton fumble early in the fourth period and after runs by Perry and Hamel, Ray Lindsy tossed to end Hal Cornforth for a score. Tony Rotundo converted to make it 9-0.

On the first play following the kickoff, Bridgton made connections on a 36 yard pass. Shortly afterwards, a Brown to DiBase aerial was good for a touchdown.

Bridgton immediately assumed possession of the ball when it recovered a fumble at midfield and proceeded to the Bates 12 yard line. A pass into the end zone was good for a touchdown and a 12-9 triumph.

The game started out with the Bobcats in possession of the ball and it appeared, just as it did last week at Bowdoin, that Bates was going to walk away with the game at the outset. They looked like champions as they drove down to the Colby 23 yard line before losing the ball on downs. It was no more than a yard short of a first down, and as the game turned out, was a blow to the Bates cause. Figuring in this drive as major gainers were Art Blanchard, Jesse Castanias, Al Howlett, and Bill Cunnane.

The rest of the first period was played with the ball being transferred from side to side, with no real scoring threats. It was two long punts of 62 and 48 yards by Miller of Colby that caused the Bobcats to lose valuable yardage and midway through the second quarter the Mules got possession on their own 40. They then proceeded to launch a 60 yard drive that carried them to their first touchdown, which came on a pass to Alex in the end zone from within the 15 yard line. The conversion was no good but Colby led at half time.

There was no scoring in the third period, but the Bobcats were kept in their own territory. It was now evident that Colby had definite intentions of erasing their 10 game losing streak, for they were continually beating the Bates line to the charge, and had its offense stopped cold.

In the final quarter, Blanchard punted to the Colby 20. Protecting their 6-0 lead by using a ground attack only, the Mules drove 80 yards in 17 plays to another touchdown. The conversion again failed, but Colby had a two touchdown lead with time rapidly running out.

Nick Valoras received the kickoff and returned it to his own 25. A pass from Blanchard to Al Howlett was good to the 35. When Valoras passed to Bill Cunnane on the 50, the Bates stands came to life. Blanchard and Valoras worked the ball to the Colby 30. Art, who had been held in check all afternoon by a well-planned Colby defense, broke through his right tackle and was away for 30 yards and a 'touchdown. Johnny Thomas booted a perfect placement and that's the way it ended, Colby 12, Bates 7. There was just time enough left for a couple of plays.

The Bobcat offense was able to click only on two occasions, at the beginning of the game and on the final drive. Otherwise Colby clearly demonstrated that there has been much potential power in their team, and all they needed was the right time to bring it to its greatest usefulness.

Leahey Returned In Time For Series JB Defeats Middle For Campus Title

Kept out of the lineup this season until the Northeastern game, Wally Leahey has returned to his tackle position in the Bates line. It was just one day before practice began early in September that Wally dropped a heavy weight on his foot, receiving a broken bone.

Wally is a resident of Lewiston and played four years of stellar football at the local high school. He was an immovable fixture at tackle and played on one Maine State Championship football team. He likewise played four years of baseball, his positions being first base and right field. His diamond crew won the State Championship all four years.

Entering the University of Maine in '42, Wally remained there one semester, and captained the freshman football team. The service claimed him that February; it was the infantry. He graduated from OCS in July of '44 and specialized as an instructor in mortars. Wally saw overseas service in New Guinea, Manila, Northern Luzon, and the Lingayen Gulf. He was discharged in August '46 and entered Bates one year ago.

Wally was regular tackle all last season on the Glass Bowl team. He weighs in at 216 lbs. and is 6 ft. 1 in. tall. Wally was married in Feb. '44 to an old classmate from high school, and has a son, Michael Patrick, born during finals last year.

Twelve girls went down to the Bowlaway Alleys last week for a swell time. Between the hours of three and five on Thursday afternoons the rates are reduced for WAA-ers, so go on down tomorrow and try your skill. Jan Beechie, Florence Lindquist, and Rita Stuart are working under Jean Kelso in charge of this activity.

Volleyball practices for girls are held Monday afternoons in Rand gym at 4:30. June Ingalls is in charge and promises plenty of fun for all. The coed volleyball will start November 24 and continue for four weeks until December 12.

The hockey coaching session with Miss Scougal last week was very thorough going and extremely helpful. The teams put in two hours of drills and play, which made the girls wish they had more time to spend on the sport. In Scotland, where Miss Scougal teaches hockey at a boarding school, the girls play nothing but hockey in their phys. ed. classes for six months of the year, two afternoons every week. Miss Scougal was very patient with us and carefully explained all our errors and misjudgments. Girls from Gould Academy and Edward Little High School watched the practice. An informal tea was held in the Rand reception room immediately after the practice, and the girls enjoyed meeting Miss Scougal very much.

ready for the Bobcats and that they played their best brand of ball. The Bobcats, on the other hand, were not in their peak form. This is quite understandable. No team can exhibit maximum efficiency week after week, without slowing down just a bit, and there's no telling when the off weeks will come.

Saturday will be the last gridiron duel on Garcelon for seniors Al Angelosante, John Thomas, Len Hawkins, Russ Burns, and Mike Melody.

The freshman football schedule came to a close with last Friday's game against Bridgton. The postponed Maine Annex contest will not be played. Coach Huether has done a fine job with his frosh, and Al Howlett is another individual who deserves a lot of credit in view of his play this season. Weighing only 150 pounds, he has been in there for almost the total time every game. Next to Art Blanchard, it is Al who the opposing teams plan their defense against, for once loose, he is gone.

Bill Paradis of the freshman team was married the same night after he played in the Huntington game in Lord, and Arnie Card's kid brother Don who runs on the same pattern as our last year's Garnet star. Perhaps the only weak point in the light blue is the lack of a top notch passer of any consistency, though ends Wing and Emerson make up for the sometimes off center tosser. Eck Allen has loads of material out of which he has sifted a mighty well rounded squad in his convincing bid for a series winner. The Maine team will in all probability be the toughest opponent man for man that the Pondmen have faced all season with the possible exception of Trinity.

The upset of the Garnet by Colby last Saturday has broken completely the figuring of the experts. Bates with a powerful line and dangerous backs was a heavy pre-game favorite. The Bobcats must win this one to stay on top and get another notch on the Governor's trophy. But win, lose or draw, it's time for another season of football here at Bates. This year saw the home team return minus one side of the line, two backs, and reserves by graduation. There were crucial injuries and despite all this the ball club was remodeled and came back under the able coaching of Ducky and Ed to hold once again a position of football eminence and respect. More than just clippings will go out on the field Saturday, for the boys will be out there for Ducky, Ed, Bates, and their second straight series title.

Hildreth Seeks Special Civil Emergency Unit

Gov. Hildreth is seeking to organize Maine's volunteer fire-fighting army into a permanent unit. In addition to the constant forest fire menace in the state, the volunteer army would also be used for unforeseeable catastrophes such as floods and earthquakes.

The Governor has wired Secretary of National Defense James Forrester for any plan which the government may have for such a unit in the event of a military emergency. He thinks that such modern means of warfare as guided missiles present a threat of overnight destruction and make this plan especially imperative.

The unit, according to Governor Hildreth, should be built around the war-time Civilian Defense Organization, which was re-organized in the recent holocaust.

Philologia Club

The Philologia Club held its first meeting of the year at 8:15, Tuesday, November 11, at room 6, Libbey Forum.

Rachel Eastman, chairman of the entertainment committee, introduced Latin and Greek charades, twenty questions, and riddles. A business discussion included dues and the annual Christmas party.

Miss Brown, professor of Latin and Greek, is the faculty advisor. Anyone who has taken these subjects in college is invited to join the club.

Dean Gauss Endorses Stated Purpose Of CA

"You are working along the only line which is leading to the salvation of democracy," said Dean Christian Gauss of Princeton University in speaking before the CA cabinet meeting in the Chase Hall lounge Nov. 5.

Representing the Hazen Foundation, the National Council on Religion in Higher Education and the American Council on Education, Dr. Gauss asserted that education anchored in religious ethics is the only means by which democracy can be made to work.

After a brief introduction Dean Gauss threw the meeting open to discussion of the problems which the CA faces on the Bates campus. Before the 31 leaders present, he endorsed the association's stated purpose of attempting to put Christian ethics into practice through its activities as "a good, sound basis" for such an organization.

"There are three aspects of religion," said Dr. Gauss, and he defined these as the ethical system, worship, and dogma. "You may extend your functions as high up that ladder as the particular situation of your organization allows."

Notice

Books which have not been sold by the CA secondhand book agency because the editions are no longer in college use are being returned to their owners on weekday afternoons at the CA office.

Books which have not been returned by Dec. 1 will be sold outside the college and the proceeds given to the campus World Student Service Fund drive.

Oslo

Understand why there is no rationing of food and clothing in America, when he, and most of mankind, have neither decent clothes nor food.

Sending dollars and guns to bolster undemocratic governments in Europe is hard for European students to reconcile with our claims of being the champion of democracy and freedom in the world.

Even though, from our viewpoint, these may not be rational excuses for the rest of mankind to hate us, and even though we have made sincere and generous efforts to assist the people of other lands, these are the precise trends of thought that foreign youth expressed to me. Hungry, diseased, shivering people are seldom concerned with rationality.

What I have had to report has been ugly. I would be less than honest if I reported otherwise.

The Oslo Conference changed those who were its delegates. It enabled us to see more realistically and to face more sincerely world problems and conditions.

There are more than a few people who think that the conference was a failure. They feel that it failed to produce anything concrete. They came to Oslo expecting to find a new code for individual conduct and a new system of world order. They came expecting to solve the problems. But the real failure was in themselves, for the obstacles making such a program improbable had not occurred to them.

Oslo produced no new codes or system. I have not returned with any solutions to the chaotic problems which confront us. But I have returned convinced that the first step toward the solution of these problems is the realization of the mess we're in.

There are many in our country,

Other recently appointed sub-chairmen within the commission and the activities of their committees are as follows: Arlene Bourne and Donald Patnode, second-hand book agency; Nancy Johnson, picture-rental service; Glendon Collins and Arthur Knoll, men's infirmary service; May Whitelaw, women's infirmary service; Irene Illing, campus Christmas decorations; Clara Blodgett and Constance Stanley, faculty birthday cards.

Collins and Knoll recently ordered a subscription to Life magazine for the men's infirmary.

young and old, who are unaware of the way in which the United States is regarded abroad, unaware of the chaos and decay with which we are faced, and content to remain thus.

To the extent that the World Conference of Christian Youth is contributing to the awakening of youth to the desperate urgency of the present crisis, it has been justified.

President Fears Economic Chaos

"Several political unpopular steps (must be taken by Congress) if the United States is to avoid a serious economic crash," Dr. Charles Phillips declared before the Portland Rotary Club Friday.

"No one has to be told," Dr. Phillips continued, "that we are in the midst of a period of inflation. To take a single example, wholesale food prices have risen about 60% in the last 18 months."

"Neither does it take much research to discover why prices are rising. The simple fact is that there is too much purchasing power in relation to the goods available. Our government expenditures are nearly $40 billion a year in contrast to an average of $6 billion during the 1930's. Our exports this year will
