BATES HOLDS TO ORIGINAL OBSERVANCE DAY OF PRAYER

A CUSTOM OF LONG STANDING

DOCTOR GIFFORD WILL SPEAK

A day of prayer for colleges has long been an institution of the Christian church, and is observed with great frequency by many colleges and churches in the United States. The observance of this day of prayer and the last Sunday in January was set aside for this purpose. In fact, it went on a tendency to disregard a day for the universal observance of prayer because it was more prevalent. Certain Christian denominations insist upon the observance of this day, while others do not. Colleges did the same thing and in some cases even went so far as to fall inside a day of prayer altogether. Thus, at the present time, while most colleges still continue to observe a day of prayer at some date during the universal day of prayer for colleges is a thing of the past.

TUESDAY, January 24, in Harwood Room in the new Hall Thursday in January has been observed at Bates for many years as a day of prayer for colleges. While other colleges have changed the requirements of their observance, Bates has continued the custom of the old days and stands almost alone in her observance of this day of prayer. All regular college work is suspended, and the events of the day are given over to religious exercises.

This year the college has added, as it has done in the past, an address by a prominent minister who has had the advantage of wide travel in the Orient and the Orient, and who can in every way be fitted to bring to Bates a true and vivid picture of life in that part of the world. Dr. P. Gifford, D.D., is widely known as one of the most eloquent preachers in the Baptist denomination and, whatever he speaks, he can command a large audience. Bates students, too, have been characterized by a passion for missionary work and to this in itself is to be commended.

Dexter Gifford will speak at both morning and evening services. The meeting in the morning will be, "Preaching," and the evening address, "A Great Adventure." These addresses will form the basis for the religious music and various other services at the services of both morning and evening.

Eight miles from the Boston (Mass.) State House is situated a republic of 32 acres belonging to the institution.

The Bates Art Club, Fourteenth Annual Exhibition, Corrientnor Rooms and Lecture Rooms, Beautiful Chapel, A Noble Library, an English Library Building, and Equipped Physical Training Buildings are among the many additions that have been made to Bates College in recent years. Courses leading to B. A. degree, and special preparation for Post-graduate study are also offered.

Novel students of a year's approved standing have special privileges at Harvard University, without cost.

The proximity of the Bates College makes it easy for students to attend lectures by eminent specialists and the Lowell Institute at Boston.

These are many opportunities for engaging in missionary and philanthropic work, which are especially available to students.
