When not only our own colleges for education, but also our military authorities are urging on us the wisdom of culture and scholarship, it becomes our duty to heed. Let us not forget that there are many problems today that must be solved, and that if we desire to get on ahead, we must only act wisely. If we are to use the military training of our ancestors to any effect, we must learn the lessons of history and from your ranks, unless the present generation is not to be left behind in the war of 1917.
