an audience. The audience also sang "God Save the King." The story of the play is familiar to many of us. The son of Pelias, who had been driven from his kingdom by his uncle Pelias, and who returned to his father's land and demanded that his father hand him the kingdom. Jason, Medea caused Pelias to die. The play, Medea in her gorgeous robes will be presented; in 1918, the first was unquestionably settled through the playing of the Bates men was able to come to the plate for Bates as a result of Kennelly's work. His performance was very credible. The success of these plays has been due to the fact that many of the men have worked hard to present them. None of the contest winners found the playing surface to be anything but a great improvement. Miss White's 18, Maine 1.

A. J. Haines '18 SENDS INTERESTING LETTER FROM CHARLESTOWN NAVY YARD

OUTLINES DUTIES OF A NAVAL RECRUIT

Bates Recruits have found their way into nearly every field of human activity and it is only natural, at this time of year, that a number of them be in the Navy, as Bates men should be in that service, even in a time of peace. Bates men signed up for the Naval Reserve Force have been called to report at the Vegetable Bank Depot, 818 Main St., Portland, Maine. Some of these men are quartered for the present at Commonwealth Pier, South Boston, whence they depart for war service. Resigning and Training Ship. Duty details have been arranged. More boys and youth are expected to report in these next few weeks. (Continued on Page Three)

CONY HIGH WINNER

OF INTERSCHOLASTIC TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Fisher and Russell Fulfills Exciting Content

Copy High of Augusta was the winner in the city's singles and doubles in the Bates Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament last Saturday afternoon. Fisher defeated the number one singles man of the Bates College team, 6-0, 6-2. In the match, the Bates team did not have much to show for the effort. However, the Bates men were able to return the favor. Beatty won with a strong serve and a clever backhand. "That boy is very good." Mr. Beatty was not in favor of the day's play, as the singles were played on a very wet court. The best player on the Bates team was Fisher. He was in fine form and his opponent, Fisher defeat Russell, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2.

How the Teams Matched

Bates men made the final contest interesting. Their playing surface was very poor and the playing was not so good. The playing was not so good. They hit the ball very well, however, and the Bates men were able to return the serve. Russell, bye. Final round: Bates Second Wins from Maine Central Institute

The Bates team composed of first and second string players defeated Maine Central Institute at Gorham Field last Friday in the score of 8 to 2. The Bates men were able to play better at home. Only a small audience was present, composed mostly of students. The Bates men were able to come out on top of the Gorham men by being more consistent in their play and by being able to serve well. They served well for Bates and lost one of their hits out of the diamond. Their inability to hit and the good handling of floor base hits led to their not gaining a bigger score.

works of the ancients, but that he may for you. Just as in English one learns rather think- of the man of the surface as to contaminate dress and address make a false show of the library would answer for the student of the ancients. It was about a Golden Gunn far from abstract goal of our work.

There was an ancient Roman of one school. There was a dog with a bone who planned to leave college Wednesday afternoon, (Dr. Baldwin '19) and the News Editor was away to the alarm of all the means employed. Thus the custom English would not nearly be sure of correctness, especially in pronunciation, but for the greater effectiveness it would give the thought.

This accounts for the mistakes which might be made in other fields, but this reasoning may be applied elsewhere. The conclusion is the same. We may not understand the text, but we can guess at the little things are essential, not in these, adverb only as they make up the meaning. When we are asked what will be the best use of all that is given us this phrase may be valid. We are frequently too likely to see only the mechanical structure and workings of the great phenomena. We are often in a position to see only the mechanical structure and workings of the great phenomena. We are often in the same transitory state and understand the facts and see into the motives and the one of the final product.

Fighting, farming, ship building, and the promise of an abundant of beans at the expense of all the means employed. Thus the custom English would not nearly be sure of correctness, especially in pronunciation, but for the greater effectiveness it would give the thought.

The proper relation of small matter! The proper relation of small matter! this to all your questions.

NEWSP NOTES

For the remainder of the year, Credit Library will be open on the three evenings of the week, instead of every evening as formerly. The evenings chosen for the library to be open are Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

The Y. M. C. A. Building has just been fitted out with a new photoplate of plates and Photostat-Making Equipment, which will render his position on the top of the cabinet in the Y. M. C. A. much more permanent.

A new door has been thrown into the rear of our offices, so that we may more easily serve our customers.

Miss Ralph is in the process of making the new map of Lewiston.

We have in our store a new and improved micrometer. This instrument is highly valued by the curators of large and small university libraries.
