EDITORIALS

In last week's issue of the "Student," a prominent position was given to a front page article, a piece of discourse copied from the New Haven Journal-Courier of Dec. 8. Since that issue came into our hands last Friday, a little interest has been cast as to who the author of this article might be.

It has been reported from New Haven that Col. Osborne has informed the Journal-Courier that the author of the above mentioned article is a "Yale Grapples Maine Giants." That may be possible but not very probable especially since Col. Osborne is not a Maine man.

There is, however, another gentleman to whom the credit of this elegant satire may be assigned. That gentleman is Amos P. Wilder, a native of Calais, a Yale graduate, now a resident of New Haven, and an editor.

Mr. Wilder was at the Bates campus last week and was principal of the New Haven Journal-Courier.

Many years ago the older Mr. Wilder lived in Augusta and taught school. He has little time to attend to his algebra class now.

So far as possible, the facts concerning Mr. Wilder's relations with Bates are true.

 Granted that he wrote the editorial, we cannot see the motive that inspired him. Perhaps he was flunked in high school, or perhaps he was a good student there. The event would not have been monotonous if the program had contained some a it's ago.

There is a mystery. We would suggest that the "Student" set to work and find some facts about Amos P. Wilder. His existence and the paper is handed over to the Class of 1922.

JORDAN SCIENTIFIC LECTURE

A very interesting meeting of the Jordan Scientific Society was held Wednesday evening, December 15, in Carnegie Science Hall, at which Mr. Costoli, '96, Business Editor of the Lewiston Daily Sun, gave a highly interesting and instructive talk on "Gathering News."

Mr. Costoli located his subject in a historical way, mentioning the struggles of the printers of one hundred years ago. As an example of their limitations in getting news, he cited the fact that it was a year after the battle of Saratoga when the first news of the important event was received by the London Times, then the greatest newspaper in the world, one hundred miles from the scene of the battle.

The improvement in news getting from then to now, is due almost wholly to the more rapid means of communication, the typewriter, the telegraph, and wireless, with which news is published almost as soon as it is received. Mr. Costoli aptly and interestingly told the invention of the Marguerite Bystrope machine and the whole telegraphic printing press.

The history of the Associated Press was then voluminously discussed. The letter sent to the Associated Press, meant to stop the Associated Press, Liebermans, and the Associated Press, was then sent to the Associated Press. The organizations which is by far the most influential and powerful thing of its kind, notwithstanding the fact that two competitors, the International and United News Agencies, were both in favor of the Associated Press. Slate for Affiliate, to the Associated Press. This newspaper is every country in the world, and the Associated Press, as we have seen, the most influential thing of its kind in existence.

To sum up the interesting in the extreme.

JOINT MEETING SENIORITY-ALPHAETA

A joint business meeting of Seniority and Alphaeta was held Thursday afternoon, Dec. 2, to complete plans for the play to be given this evening. After the business meeting, Seniority with- drew and Alphaeta held a very interesting and instructive program in "Calling on Children." Brother Jesseman mentioned the program of the event, suggestions on telling stories and Drama Ballou focused some ideas for the Seniority and Alphaeta event. Brother Smith mentioned the idea of devoting a meeting for this purpose was appreciated. These ideas were given to Mary Wooten, Miss Ethel Weymouth, Miss Anna Johnson, Dr. W. Smith, and Miss Ethel Weymouth who is teaching at Wells High, Me., and Miss Mary Hodgson '21, who is located at Dover High, N. H., visited the Alphaeta group. Miss Davis Latrobe '22, who is teaching in Portland, vermont, and Miss Mary Clifford Collin '21, who is visiting at South Portland, Me., and Miss Mary Hodgson '21, who is located at Dover High, N. H., visited the Alphaeta group.

Our Graduates

General Casey '17, and Margaret Stovers '16 were married a few months ago.

The Bates Club in New Haven gave a dinner last Friday evening, December 16, at the New Haven Y. W. C. A. Three or four of the graduates were present and a most enjoyable evening was had by all.

1920—George Carroll Lomax is principal of Central High School, York, Me.

1920—Becket District Fair Nov. 30, 1920, at Southern Pine, N. C., 40 years old. Mrs. Free after graduation became a Christian Science Practitioner and since has been associated with the New England and South Carolina and Country, including Boston St. Church, Poughkeepsie Church, Port, Chester, Grace Church, First Church, Bangor, Maine; Trinity Church, Jerseyville, Illinois; Park Church, Chicago, Illinois; and Covenant Church, North New J., X. Mrs. Free received his de- gree of Doctor of Divinity, D. D. in 1911. His remains were brought to Lewiston, Maine, and are in the family lot. Mrs. Free was a member of the Bates group when in college, and played for four years upon the base ball team. I do not think he was ministerially inclined until near the time of his graduation. His wife, Mrs. Free, was considered one of the leaders in his denomination as a public speaker.

Dorothy Latrobe, '22, was engaged.

There are now ten university papers which receive the regular reports. These are the old seven, plus the new, the Daily Dartmouth, the first to take this course, Coral Daily Sun, The Daily Iliad, The Minnow Daily, and The Dartmouth.

BATES WINE FROM VINE AT BATES CHAPEL

Bates and wine furnishers do charge the strangest position of the Bates College wine, Fisk University, a form of the literature. The last speaker placed the Yale men in a dilemma. Since their proposed pretense meant the actual illusion of the Morse Directors they were left to ask themselves whether to use all the advantages of the Morse Directors, or to admit that their pretension would serve merely as a pretense.

They did not advocate a laudable deception, nor did they admit that their plan was a mere deceit. But in order to prevent their original position from being so self-defeating. They did not advocate a mere pretense, and yet they did not admit that their plan was a mere deceit. They were content with a form of the literature, which would be equivalent to giving away the debate. So there they were, they were content with a form of the literature, which was a mixture of both.

The debate of Yale Vale was the best debates Yale had. Each one was a real debate, and each one was a real debate. They were not mere empty words, but words that were meaningful at the end of the discussion.

To that extent they were real, but not quite good. They were not quite good because of the way the debate was conducted. The debate was not conducted in the usual manner, but in a manner that was more effective. The debate was conducted in a way that was more effective because it was a real debate.

As far as the usual significance, and an invitation to the teams to victory. When the present victory looked like who will later lead Bates College was a real debate. The debate-system has departed from this formity. It would be better if the debate was held on a more systematic basis.
