SECOND ANNUAL HIKE OF OUTING CLUB

Thirteen Men Make Mt. Washington Trip

The thirteen hikers of the Outing Club, who arrived at the base of the Presidential range on Tuesday morning, spent their first day in the camps of the Glen House. The weather was surprisingly clear, and the whole party enjoyed the trip, which was made up of the "tacky thrice" that took the Grand Triangle of the Glen House, and the real hiking began. The climb up Washington was made Tuesday, via the famous gulch, and within the last few years many poor souls thought to be a monotonous sight, but eventually it was discovered that the sounds provided from a small float in the stream were a welcome addition to the scenery.

The view from Mt. Washington was magnificent, and the whole party enjoyed the trip, which was made up of the "tacky thrice" that took the Grand Triangle of the Glen. After the climb up Washington, the party started to the base of the Presidential range, and the next morning they started back toward the base of the mountain, but after considerable hard climbing, the climbers got to the top of the beet and the famous quick and were glad to look back over what they had accomplished.

The Summit

After recovering their energy with refreshments and a smoke, the first thing the party did was to consult the chart and select their direction to the summit of the mountain. Next, the party started to the base of the Presidential range, and the next morning they started back toward the base of the mountain, but after considerable hard climbing, the climbers got to the top of the beet and the famous quick and were glad to look back over what they had accomplished.

INTERESTING CLIPPING FROM CHARLESTON PAPER, REGARDING OXFORD DEBATE

The Student has received another testimonial of his ability to handle the press, and has been asked to participate in a debate with the other college in the city. The Oxford University, representing the American college, is to be engaged in a debate with Bates College, the Oxfordian, on the theme of "The influence of Greek religion on modern society." The Oxfordian, representing the American college, is to be engaged in a debate with Bates College, the Oxfordian, on the theme of "The influence of Greek religion on modern society." The debate is to take place on the 15th of May, and is expected to be of great interest to the public.

GREEKounced the first of the month, the ancient Greek festival of the Muses takes place. The festival is held in honor of the Muses, the goddesses of the arts and sciences, and is considered a time of celebration and learning. This year, the festival will be held on the 15th of May, and is expected to be a time of great celebration and learning.

WARREN O. HARDING

MIRROR FOR 1921

In spite of rumors to the contrary, the Mirror for 1921 is to be in circulation by the time the College is inaugurated. The new edition will be a large and full-sized edition, and will contain all the articles that were published in the previous year. The Mirror is to be published in April, and will be available for purchase at the College bookstore.

"BATES ANNUAL ON TIME"

The first night in camp deserves especial mention. Whatever discomforts were discovered, the whole party enjoyed the trip, and was glad to look back over what they had accomplished.

The view from Mt. Washington was wonderful, and all, but a few in the party, were impressed. The next morning, the party descended to the base of the mountain, and was glad to look back over what they had accomplished.
