The Bates Student - volume 49 number 21 - September 30, 1921

Bates College
CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS WELCOME FRESHMEN

The second social function of the season took place on Chase Hall Saturday evening when the Y, M. C. A. and W. C. A. extended to the class of 1923 their welcome, in the form of a reception.

At seven o'clock a few strangers appeared; by eight there was a near dusk. At eight thirty the reception was broken up by the arrival of a Y. M. C. A. band led by a one-time student of Yale, the diminution of the volume being such that it might well be heard by an ear near the line of the field.

In two minutes all that remained was a picture of the Yale line, the cheering of the freshmen and the music of the band. The first class that passed without comment, but the second was an exception.

The band, after playing the school song, was given a large ovation.

MISS BOTH CULLEN, Y. W. C. A.

The second call came from Miss Both Cullen, the young woman in charge of the Y. W. C. A., who was introduced as representing the organization.

The first girl that passed was given a cordial welcome and the next were welcomed by Miss Cullen.

No one passed without a smile and many of the freshmen in the crowd stopped to listen to the welcome given to the girls.

The reception line was President Pomroy, Professor Raymond Lukei, Miss Both Cullen, and the freshmen who had passed.

The band, after playing the school song, was given a large ovation.

BY RAYMOND B. RUKER

International Two-Mile Champion

We are presenting herewith a month's report from the king of speed-bugs, a man who has an available string of victories to his credit, and who is champion of the nation, if not of the world, in the twine-race.

But Ray Ruker is speaking to you now, not as the hundred-pound runner, not as a champion, but as a Captain of the cross-country team, track team, and O.U. team.

His heart and soul is with his Alma Mater. For his son, for your son, for the sake of our college, let us do what we can, and thereby "DOES IMPULSE."

TO THE MEN OF BATES

There are two reasons why every Bates student should go out for athletics. The first is because he is a Bates Man. The second is because he owns the Felix—hisettel of this duty to himself.

In order that Bates as a small college should excel every man must get out and try. More athletes have been wiped from men that they "could'nt" than from those who knew they "could." Give the coaches a chance to make a real man of you.

No man with sense in these two twentieth centuries thinks he can carry on any sort of an immature schedule of life without a certain amount of physical exercise. Let's have a method in our mad dash. Let's beware our recreation and physical energy to something that will be of use to our Alma Mater as well as to ourselves.

If you are not out for football come out for track and cross-country. All you need is a track suit, a pair of shoes and a little pep. We have a fine track, a perfect cross-country course, an excellent coach, all we lack in you. We plan on seventy-five freshmen and seventy-five sophomores in our sport this year. But we cannot reach that goal with out YOU.

R. B. RUKER

Will any student who does not receive his or her copy of the "Stadium" please have his or her information sent to the manager before the next issue?

ENCOREUNE DEI

A week of college has passed, the campus is alive with activity, and the year's work has commenced in earnest. For the upperclassmen, the past week has brought reunions of friends and a renewed devotion to Alma Mater. For the freshmen, almost limitless opportunities have been revealed for future college successes, both in classes and in campus life.

Already the nervousness of a fresh college year is wearing off. Classes are settled down to the fall offensive, preliminary examinations are safely relegated to history, and the playful antics of the "red men, the past week has brought reunions of friends and a renewed devotion to Alma Mater. For the freshmen, almost limitless opportunities have been revealed for future college successes, both in classes and in campus life.

The Commons will become the means by which classes and in campus life.

THE COMMONS

It is most gratifying to observe the large number of men who are starting the year with a new spirit at the Commons. A cooperative venture such as this cannot succeed unless it has the unqualified support of the men. With the increase in the number of regular freshmen, the monopolies will serve to all in the shape of improved facilities and more food, and the Commons will be in a better place to eat in. After all, when it is recalled that it was but a few years ago that the Commons passed as a failure from the hands of the faculty, it becomes truly remarkable that in this short time the institution has been placed upon such a firm foundation. It is a tribute to the services of those who have given so willingly of their time for the common good, and it is a reminder that close cooperation of the men of the college nothing is impossible.

Already a large number of men are eating at the Commons, but even more can be accommodated. With the service of food at cost, and with the unequalled opportunity of meeting one's classmates, any man is missing much who does not become a regular boarder. Congratulations, men, for knowing a good thing when you see it.

THE FIRST SUCCESS

Bates is rightfully proud of her football team which held old Eli to but four touchdowns, in spite of the fact that substitutes were sent against our men in a steady stream. Best of all is the fact that made the Bates men feel justified in the countless proving of the condition in which the coach has placed the team.

With the season starting with this most creditable showing, and with the desire which is evident tomorrow night, we may well feel that the team deserves every ounce of our support. Next Saturday comes the first home game. Until then let us light the spirit of the college urge on in these early weeks, in order, as we must, in order to take care in the cheering section we may witness a team which knows not defeat because of its spirit and courage.

THE BERNARD FREEMAN

Bates hopes to be called a "home town" in the future. The city hopes to be called a "college town." The city and college can only work together harmoniously if our women students are given their due recognition and support. We hope to see this happen in the near future. Bates has its share of problems, but it is the "home town" for college students.

We refer Mr. J. to Dean Niles. It is the man in the street who has experience of his first year at college. He says: "If our support."

How Do Hot Things Cool?

The blacksmith draws a white-hot bar from the forge. It begins at once to cool. How does it cool?

Here is a good question. Nature has given us a vast storehouse of data and experiences, a mass of facts and observations, and the answer to this question is not one of them. Nature has given us a vast storehouse of data and experiences, a mass of facts and observations, and the answer to this question is not one of them. Nature has given us a vast storehouse of data and experiences, a mass of facts and observations, and the answer to this question is not one of them.

The Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company have been studying this problem for a long time, and they have discovered that the rate at which a hot object cools is determined by the temperature difference between the object and its surroundings. They have found that the rate of cooling is proportional to the temperature difference and that this proportionality constant is the same for all materials. They have also found that the rate of cooling is inversely proportional to the size of the object. The larger the object, the slower it cools.

In a laboratory experiment, a sample of a certain material was heated to a high temperature and then allowed to cool in air. The temperature of the sample was measured at regular intervals, and the results were plotted on a graph. The graph showed that the rate of cooling was constant and that the temperature difference between the sample and the surrounding air was the same as the temperature difference between the sample and the surrounding air.

The Research Laboratories have also discovered that the rate of cooling is proportional to the heat capacity of the object. The larger the heat capacity, the slower it cools.

In conclusion, the rate at which a hot object cools is determined by the temperature difference between the object and its surroundings and by the size and heat capacity of the object.

CHANGES IN RAND HALL

BETTER COMFORTS AND CONVENIENCES EXPECTED TO RESULT FROM INNOVATIONS

For many years the dining room at Chase House and Rand Hall was an inexpressibly badly ventilated, and was conducted comfortably all the girls who had seniors in the college but due to necessary conditions of light it seemed wise and proper to have the new dining room at Rand serve the purpose. In order to do this successfully, Pleece Room has been made into a Sabin room or room for transferring the girls from all classes and also several faculty members.

Directly off the dining room is the large serving room where all the food which is cooked downstairs comes up stairs by means of a dumb waiter and where condiments are kept. This crowded conditions are done away with and at the same time the floor is to be so arranged that in a more dignified manner.

The room which formerly served as the dining room is now to be used as a reception room for the students, and a large flag has been placed there which is cooked downstairs comes up stairs by means of a dumb waiter and where condiments are kept. This crowded conditions are done away with and at the same time the floor is to be so arranged that in a more dignified manner.

Certain it is that the change from home life to that of the dorm is rather drastic. The plan. The constitution was carefully outlined by the President, and the new fund reception room for those who live in the dormitory and are 128 men, 42 women; those who live in that supply of athletic clothing and equipment.
