ANNUAL RIDE OF FRESHMEN TAKES PLACE TOWARD MORNING

The annual Freshman cross road will be held on Saturday. Two rail canoes will leave from the campus Avenue and College street at twelve sharp.

The party will leave the troller at Lake view, and after a picnic dinner on the beach, Mr. Nash and his wife will make Mount Gilie in the pink bathtub.

Come to the elder will further the traditions of the club, which was founded at the Greek, and will arrive back at campus with the usual sea of cymbals and gongs will be arranged, and

Mr. George M. Chase will accompany the band of drummers and will see to it that the freshies got what was coming to them.

The parade was arranged by the same.

In the first half the ball was always in Lowell territory, but in the second quarter the cornets of both teams led a refrain for the good. The final score of the contest was Lowell 1; Auburn, Maine 0.

As were of the field's advantage, the Lowell freshies were led.

Mr. Marshall

Mr. Marshall's style was more like that of the classical American politician than that of the gentleman's trappings. He sat at once admitted that many of the arguments which had been sound, "In fact," he stated, "the arguments which Mr. Marshall had spent two years with the British army in Russia, also he

Melntyre: "Very well. Give me a month's warning;"

Melntyre: "Second question: If it be this hot, which would you rather have, the money or the electric light?"

Melntyre: "Then why do you ask it?"

"He got it."
Beacons of the sky

Between Cleveland and Rock Springs, Wyo., along the night route of the air mail service, tall beacons have been placed every twenty-five miles.

Revolving on great steel towers, General Electric searchlights, totaling 1,992,000,000 candle-power, blaze a path of light for the air-plane pilot.

What the lighthouse is to the ocean navigator, these beacons are to the conquerors of the air.

Some Observations of BATES

By a Freshman

This past year, I have been looking forward with a great deal of eagerness to the time when I would arrive at Bates as a member of the class of 1929, and the fulfillment of that expectation is even greater than I had hoped for.

I had known many graduates of this college and heard many stories about it, but my expectations were not prepared for the feeling of joy that was too great to be overcome. The enthusiasm that was so great that I could not resist it. The joy that I felt was like a flood, like a wave, like a fire. It was as if I had been personally acquainted with him for years. Last, but most important of all, I realized that I had heard tales of Freshman initiation, all of which turned out to be the truth.

I think, on the other hand, could possibly imagine the wonderful times he can have at Bates if he has actually been there. What Freshman gift could fail to be received on becoming acquainted with other important freshmen? What young man could fail to be moved at the thought of the peace, patience, and discipline that "Uncle John" could impart. I had imagined, as if I had been personally acquainted with him for years. Last, but most important of all, I realized that I had heard tales of Freshman initiation, all of which turned out to be the truth.
