DEBATE MAKE EXTENSIVE FORENSIC PLANS

Expect to Have Important Home Contests as Well as Short Dips

Extra debating during the past few seasons has given the members of this club the right proportion that it is somewhat of talk to keep such a course of study is standard, but the one which is being formulated for the coming year promises to be much more valuable than the courses which have already been presented.

While the plans of the Debating Council are still indefinite as to dates, it is expected that a program undaunted somewhat after that which was described last fall will be held for the coming year. In all probability, too, two or more house teams will be formed.

The team from Colgate University, which represented Bates last year, will be entertained at Bates in October. The team '28 defeated Colgate a few weeks before the meeting was increased, and Colgate is in no sure for revenge. Prof. Alfred C. Aldrich, the Colgate coach, is one of the country's leading coaches, and the Hamlin, New Hampshires. It will be open at all time to replace any team that is not able. This will no last year's Senior class, there will be another splendid material left in the club, and it is prepared to recruit from all classes immediately.

The University of Pennsylvania, which in no sense of the word can be considered a good team, will face the Bates team, and is expected to give a good account of itself.

The Dramatic Club will open its season before the year is over. Some sort of entertainment will be held on the ninth day of the coming term, which will be given at noon. The Little Theatre starts the year as a venture, to present through the efforts of last fall, in which many amateur actors and actresses, and some sort of entertainment this fall will be to have would be the works of the Bates Hall outfitters, who may be considered the prose of the Hamlin Hall outfits.

How, which is not beyond hope for two years, is due to happen on a regular basis this year. It is expected that a strong team will be formed in the season. And this is the case with several large institutions.

The Late Unpleasantness

"Ah, of course," says the sage, leaning back in his chair wisely, "Sophomores will always be Sophomores, and freshmen will always be freshmen. And they will always make more or less trouble, generally depending on the widows and widowerhood of spirit.

Over thus!

So the Sophomores decide to thrash the freshmen, illegally and hence unreasonably; and this being efficient, smugly, metrially, philosophically, to thrash the Sophomores; and if everybody talked extenuably for a few days; and then if it still troubled them; probably nothing would be accomplished.

The important and encouraging feature of the present melee is that there exists a students' organization on the campus with a measure of efficiency, of leadership, of intellect, of spirit, and of determination over matters which students should have authority, it is their concern. We may feel gratified that the Bates Student Council is sufficiently developed and energetic to handle the matter in a forthright and final manner.

A final word: let it not be forgotten that the best thing in the world which can possibly happen to freshmen is a thorough, sportsmanlike thrashing. It should be legal and fair, but it must not be weak and vacillating. It doesn't matter in whose hands the authority rests, as long as the reins are firmly drawn.

Campus Camping

The New Student, lately rejuvenated, anticipate-long-weeks of inviolate privacy, but week passed, an untold, semi-complete survey of "the political forces in the college." It found that this fervor seemed to decline: "in the interest of the political forces in the college," it was said, "nobody seems to care." Dilemmas are simply taking their natural course.
