BATES MEN TO MEET YALE IN DEBATE

Three Ex-Deering Men on Team—Gurrill, Googins, Baker

A Bates team composed of Charles Gurrill '26, Frank Googins '25, and Harley Walter '25, will meet Yale University in a debate in Manchester, N. H., at 12:45, on a subject that has not yet been decided upon. The question, which, by the way, is the same as that which the Harvard-Yale-Pennsylvania triangle is debating, is "Resolved, that the home town shows the greater progress in education as measured by the standards of business and professional ability in college education." Yale varsity Harvard on this subject before the Yale-Harvard debate, and Dartmouth later meets Yale on the same subject.

It is interesting to note that all the Bates men come from Portland, Maine, and are all graduates of Deering High School.

Walker and Googins are experienced debaters and are expected to carry Yale last year to defeat, while Gurrill takes the team of the Maine University of Pennsylvania and will debate with Colgate later in the year. Gurrill debated against Connecticut High School in September of this year.

Gurrill is a member of the Franklin Debating Squad and was first prize leader last year in the Bates League debates, and is expecting Deering High. He will also be remembered as Mr. Spindler of the "Trots' League."
Spring is coming—it doesn't snow.

A Line or Two O'Verse

Wonders

Let us try and mind

Quizzify freely from the frabigating nectar

Of nothing Mortem and crap

May wander aimlessly

Into the realms of unrealities.

Here shrew of the passing bright

May I dream my ideal dreams

To my own contentment

And in the part

I am only a toy

Yet the very conception

Leads me joy.

Brevi

I have erred.

Yes, in fact, I was sinning,

But in my innocence

For I have experimented

The atmosphere

And the rest go by.

In my innocence.

And in the future

We shall not be less critical

Of estimating my following

If perchance I should be called to

Because I have erred.

E. B. Me. 26.

To our Alma Mater

From the reprinted dispatch of David Trevelyan, '26, in a tinny gilded

That has encased itself to all.

It is not sung on foreign fields

And the spirit, as it holds in this heart

May spring from a seed it has sown

The years have been full of tribulations and

Catastrophe as infinite bad.

But, by, they have passed away

On the toilet of life's hard road.

Once again we stand on this hallowed

And when they sneer, I praise y

Your pal.

Your Pal.

And love thee the keys to glances at the future

Always understanding them

And love thee the force of mighty deeds

Love that yields and pains

For our future needs.

Ah! Ah!

Why am I in this innocente state

Ever searching for a motive for

Always wandering about

And love thee the force of mighty deeds

And love thee the keys to glances at the future

Always understanding them

Are we sorry the warm weather has made it necessary to discontinue our Hockey schedule; but we are glad to hear the thud of the baseball in the catchers mitts as a substitute. Here's to a grand and glorious season.

As yet the Student office has not been flooded with poetry. Why so? Perhaps the spirit of Spring has not sufficiently permeated the veins of our youthful poets and "poetesses."

When a poor woman has anything to do with charity, she can do so much better than she can do with charity.

If anyone who reads this column has any ambition, there is nothing to do with charity, she can do so much better than she can do with charity. She can do so much better than she can do with charity.

She can do so much better than she can do with charity.

"And here," I said, peering closer into the mirror, "are your eyes. They are very pretty, aren't they?" Before my eyes flashed a picture of two cherry trees, blossoms on the trees, flying, feasting upon them were quantities of those cherry blossoms, all the birds. A glorious sight and ever since, whenever I have seen a cherry blossom, I have thought of you."
