JORDAN SCIENTIFIC EXHIBITION

Last evening found the annual exhibition of the Jordan Scientific Society in Carnegie Science Building in progress. The exhibition will be continued through this evening. Every floor has been used in order to accommodate the large number of exhibits which are on hand, and the exhibits are held by the society, and maintained by the students who have prepared the work.

In past years, the exhibition has been reported as one of the major events on the college Calendar; and seldom from time to time, however, have students and members alike gathered to view the exhibits. However, this year, the exhibition has taken on a new aspect, and is a great advertisement for the science departments of the college.

Special invitations were sent to the high and preparatory schools of the district and many preparatory school students have already visited the campus to see the exhibits. Other invitations were extended to the public and others are expected to be present.

All available space in the Science Building is being used. The first floor is given over to the Biology department. The biology department is expected to exhibit various insects, earthworms, and other such specimens. The chemistry department will exhibit a variety of chemicals and apparatus. The physics department will show various instruments and models. The art department will exhibit various paintings and drawings.

There will be a game of bridge in the basement of the library. This arrangement of affairs is so well planned that all students will find interesting and enjoyable activities. A change of environment is also a change of mental atmosphere.

When the men finish their Lab. work, their themes. History as we know it, are to be exhibited in the Clarence Hall. Theseinclude the various courses which are taught in the various branches of science. Some of the exhibits are the manufacture of various instruments and models.

The Flapper powdered her nose, took a quick glance at herself in the mirror, and then walked back into the room. She was very effective.

The last tableau was very effective. The Spirit of Resurrection, impersonated by Miss Helen Brown was accepted, the women's role of the stage. The other characters were grouped together in an orderly fashion. The last tableau was followed by:

Katherine Fuller, Tabitha Marjorie Wellington, Virginia Hahn, Elizabeth Williams, Verna Prior, Ruth Cushing, Betty Stritch, Jennie Robertson, Josephine Baker, Helen Brunner.

The Referee of the Biology, which was held in the chapel and the library, Miss Ruth Chalmers. The last tableau was very effective. We would like to point out that the exhibits will be on view this evening.

SPECIAL ELECTS SPEAKERS AND COMMITTEES FOR CLASS DAY

Prophesies for Men and Women to be Omitted

At a meeting of the Senior Class, Tuesday night, a special committee was appointed to prepare the place of the class prophecy which has been in the charge of the committee, but has not been finished. The new committee will consist of John Bussey of Manchester; Pauline Graham and Raymond Chapman of Auburn; and H. E. Johnson of South Portland.

PERSONALS

The girls of the junior class who were present at the student council meeting last Monday night, were invited by Miss Ellis and Mrs. Kenneth M. Sin-ger, the Chairman of the council, to take a midnight walk. The girls accepted the invitation and all went to the beach. They had a wonderful time and the moon light was reflected on the water, making it very beautiful. They all enjoyed the outing and plan to meet again on another night.

The annual homecoming dance of the Bates College football team was held Saturday night, with a large crowd in attendance. The dance was very successful and the currency was prosperous. The band played popular tunes and the girls and boys had a wonderful time.

Another dance was held at Chase Hall on Sunday night, with a large crowd in attendance. The dance was very successful and the currency was prosperous. The band played popular tunes and the girls and boys had a wonderful time.
