VICTORY OVER PENN ENDS LONG SEASON

Debating Season Brought To Close by Waley, Guttip, and Davis

Rutgers finished its longest and hard-earned season Saturday at the Big Ten Congress in Chicago. The program was too much for the Little Giants, and a tough battle was fought for the final round. The Bobcats, with a lead of 9-0, defeated the Grand Valley in the first preliminary round. Bobcats went on to defeat the Little Giants 5-0 in the second preliminary round. The team won the third preliminary round against the University of Idaho, 7-0, and won the quarterfinal round against the University of Iowa, 10-0. The semifinal round was against the University of Illinois, and the final round was against the University of Minnesota. The Bobcats won the final round 8-0 to win the Big Ten Congress. The season was a success for the Bobcats, and they finished the season with a record of 10-0.

The plans for the Big Ten Congress are ongoing completion. The event will be held in Chicago in March. The program will consist of debates on a variety of topics, including current events, social issues, and historical events. The Bobcats are expected to participate in the event, and the team is currently preparing for the upcoming season. The Bobcats finished the season with a record of 10-0, and they are looking forward to the upcoming season.

Are You Going Into the Bond Business?

There is a cycle of fashion not only among the college men we hear for but for the line of work which it does.

But your job has to fit your interests in your hot,

for it has to fit your state of mind.

Like your hut also, your job needs to fit your tastes.

There are several reasons, one that brings not only satisfaction in service but in financial return.

Selling life insurance satisfaction in service and uses that does just this.

It takes:

Intelligence, Zest and ability.

It gives:

Liberty of action, the philosophic satisfaction of selling future security and present protection to living people, and a response, immediate and gring the well-deserved reward.

SPORTS NOTES

JOHN HOOVER, EDITOR

We, Agnostics, that is, are all

and his dray company on tender green grass.

The July Floods and his gores for golden.

It is an unspeakable at Bates—this Sport Football—and a far idea.

No longer will we see nary to brilliance in the晓mornm-and strong and glowing in a strong.

Sport practices in this best thing that might have happened for Bates athletics.

It is in line with the modern trend toward making all the athletes on the track and of the field.

This is a duty of all freshmen.

He should make it a matter of individual pride to be the first to the bell rope in spirit of victory.

Crows

In a field in sunny Spain stands a stone mortar.

Crowes hover around it, picking up bits of grain and chaff—cawing.

Here Marcheta, in the fresh beauty of her youth, will come to pound maize.

The stone will stand up under the blows;

the black gives upon a woman aging early and bents with toil.

Old Marcheta—still in her thirties.

The American woman does not pound maize.

But she is deep carper; she still pounds clothes; she still pumps water.

She exhausts her strength in tasks which electricity can do better, and in half the time.

The high ideals of a community mean little when women is still doomed to drudgery. But the miracles electricity has already performed indicate but a fraction of the true better living and the tremendous opportunities which the future developments in electricity will provide for the college man and woman.
