President's Reception
To Faculty, Oct. 16th

Annual Event in Honor of Six New Instructors

The annual reception of President George, given in honor of the new faculty members, was held in the president's home on the evening of October 16th.

The new instructors who were honored were:
1. William Davis, assistant professor of English
2. John A. Brown, associate professor of Mathematics
3. Robert L. Buehler, associate professor of Philosophy
4. Frank W. Northrop, assistant professor of Chemistry
5. Albert P. Jones, assistant professor of Physics
6. George B. Wright, assistant professor of Economics

In the course of the reception, President George welcomed the new faculty members and expressed his appreciation for their contributions to the college.

X-Country Runners Meet Springfield In Season's Opener

With Seven Veteran Men Prospects are Good for the Year

On Tuesday, October 15th, the X-Country team faced off against the team from Springfield College in their season's opener. The meet was held on the chai...
There is an atmosphere about the campus that is not indicative of anything getting settled into accustomed places, but, rather, of unrest that attends preparations for "getting under way". All branches of athletics, things social, and matters of general interest, are being worked over; the law of inertia with trialslides and bounds one by one—like a long train of cars that jerks consecutively down into its creasing length to the guidance and guidance of the last car before it gains complete headway.

There is probably not a single unit in this procession that has not already slowly and solemnly pledged itself to better accomplishment. But we all realize, from experience, that resolutions are soon buried under the dust of forgetfulness and the colloths of laziness. Too many of our clubs have been organized in name only—due to indifference which follows superficial flashes of interest. To "carry through", in the face of natural indolence and numerous evil-doing distractions, after the first bubble of enthusiasm has burst, is the only way to beat our resolve. Anyone can run half a distance at a given pace, but the winner must carry through. Which organization will have the most good for students and college at the close of the year? It might be added, this is equal to an award of annual achievement, along the idea of the Nobel price, for the organization that most capably meets this challenge.

The first Y. M. C. A. meeting of the year was a great success—looking at it from a comparative point of view. Any ‘Y’ meeting at which anywhere from twenty to forty students manage to be present has been considered a great success. The antagonism towards these generally-scorned Wednesday night meetings.

Our search for the cause of this general disdain among male students has been interesting. We have been operating on the principle that if a change is advocated, it cannot be brought about by the present system, but to make it more inviting. A possible solution might lie in the way in which the freshmen are taken into so heartily by both classes. The old established club bearings have made fighting Bates men who would not consider themselves as "students"—would these tender spirits bear any resemblance to their new surroundings. Result—keener interest on the part of upperclassmen.

Those interested in the managing department should get in touch with the Assistant Business Manager, and submit enough material to do so.

The number of freshmen at the College of the City of New York is larger than all but one out of twenty-two colleges in the United States Army, and it is larger than the combined enrollment of all the other colleges above the rank of major. Army Alpha males are not used to work, as the freshmen above those of C. C. N. Y., in which we at Bates are safely at fault, the feature might be truly valuable.

THE BATES STUDENT, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1929

Coach Mensy takes his Bates gridmen along to Medford Stadium with little better chance of making a showing there than they had last week. The outcome has fully restored to the deluge of touchbacks it experienced in the Steers. The team will oppose Tufts with a much stronger team than that of last year. Furthermore favor, Fisher and Chamberlain will be available for action.

Tufts is expected to occupy sort of a middle ground between M. A. C. and Harvard. The Jumbos is considered stronger than the Aggies and of course not in the class with the Crimson. All though Bates lost to M. A. C. at the Steers a closer battle, "Tuftsammies" have been working the team day and night so that many of the boys could probably run signals to their coach.

Bates has had much success against Coach Sampson's teams of late years. Tufts has won for the past three seasons. Most of the games have been hard fought for some encounters. There is no time like the present to knock them if the hands can find themselves and lift their stride the foot may be accomplished.

Bates was well represented at the Steers but unfortunately her banner was not carried over anywhere else. The home side is crowded with a delegation to form a real cheering section.

In the future for important games some home observations should be made to advance to the local delegations to form a real cheering section. From several sources comes the report that the "Alumnus 130" wasn't the most promising song placed in the Steers. It seems that this line will appear on the board. The course will be made up in a race to count. The team will oppose Tufts with a veteran team.

An improvement over last year's times.

A single game rule. Hal Louder re- turned to enjoy their favorite pastime with the boys. The Garnet now has seven men running in a race to count. The team will oppose Tufts with a veteran team.

Many Members of Class of 1929 Turn to Teaching

Many members of the class of 1929 turned to teaching in the fall. Among the new professors and considerable number of the previous season's graduates who were to be found in the teaching profession were:

Royal H. Adams is teaching science at Westminster School.

R. St. George Russell is an instructor of English and Mathematics at Harvard University.

Cecil Miller is running over fields in the Springfield meet. The first six from Bates are showing real class as a cross country runner. Yvonne M. Monahan is teaching at Westminster School.

Putnam, qb, Valicenti, qb, V. H. Stevens, M. C. Barrett,ight, White, showing.

For Bates: Fitzer, Puller, Quimby, Charnley. Officials: Ref., John E. Ingraham, southeast of a line; Madison, seat of the Lincoln Scientific Society held its first meeting Thursday night and added several new members to its ranks.
