PROF. MYHRMAN

Welshman and poet, Prof. S. H. Myhrman, Y.M.C.A. lecturer for the third successive year, spoke to the organization on the "spirit of dedication to the discussion of the problem of personal religion and the meaning of life for further consideration in the open forum." Mr. Myhrman was in town three days ago.

Tennis Tournaments Are Now Under Way

Both Varsity and Freshmen Open Fall Contests

On the Courts

For the second successive year a tennis tournament was held for the students of Bates College. The tournament was played at the Bates College courts and was open to all men of college age, whether they played in the varsity or varsity. The first two sets were to consist of two sets of 12 games each, with a maximum of 10 points being scored in any game.

Preparations for the third set were made very difficult by the fact that the court was not in the best of condition and the weather was not favorable. The tournament was therefore cancelled.

Freshman Gridders Defeated by M. C. I.

In Opening Game

The Team Shows Up Well

Especially in Line

The strong Maine Central Institute football team defeated the Bates varsity 14-0 last Friday on Chace Field. The victory came in the first game of the season when Williams, the football program of the institution, played a shutout game. The final score for Bates was 0-0. Williams stars were Kelleher, Hoy, and Jordan.

New Members Initiated Into Phi Delta

The first meeting of Phi Delta Kappa, held in Room 94 Gymnasium Monday evening, was attended by a large number of students and faculty. Initiation into Phi Delta Kappa is always a joyous and successful event, and it need not be explained that Prof. Donaldson did not see much occasion for worry in the matter.

The program was a simple one, consisting of a few songs, a few verses, and a few words of wisdom. The meeting was held in the Buhl Room of the Bates College Union.

Robert Scott

The Robert Scott was held on Saturday afternoon, October 15, at 2:00 P.M. in Hathorn Hall.

President Grant Receives 1933

President Grant this year invites the Robert Scott to a reception to be held at his house on October 24th, 22nd, 29th, and November 5th. All students desiring to participate in the program are asked to make arrangements accordingly.

Bates Meets Rhode Island in Last Out-Of-State Game

Outcome of the Contest is Doubtful. Due to the Fact That Most of the Backfield is on the Sick List

Game to Serve as a Take-off for the Series

When the Bates team plays its second home game of the current season, on November 1st, against Rhode Island, it will be the third meeting of the two teams. Last year the Bates team was 1 to 0. For the season also shows no games scheduled by the two teams for this year. Optimism though generally high at the Bates, is somewhat depressed when the facts are considered.

The Bobcats thus far have had a too successful season, while the Bates have been defeated by Maine Central Institute.

Although the Bates team has not been as successful as expected, they have been quite successful. Their team has started early to make plans for this important game of the season. Their team is the one that has been defeated by Maine Central Institute.

A game at the Harvard bowl; 38,000 watching a small college play, and Coughlin and Kelleher enthusiasm singing every tune as the "Bobcat" forever and singing the "Alma Mater" means time to retire. They will mean a lot when you hear them whistled ten years from now. I hear you say, "Naturally we didn't sing ours there because we remember his football days. No, there was a lot more to it all. It is an objective. It has bequeathed a gateway to all knowledge, to all the world. It has been the means of opening the eyes of the masses to the possibilities of higher education, to the beauty of life and love, and to the higher truths of the universe. It has been a source of joy and安慰 to many in their trials and sorrows. It has been a source of comfort to many in their trials and sorrows. It has been a source of comfort to many in their."

Osgood, friend of Sociology 1, has said that cultural change is not necessarily the product of biological change; that biologists have the tendency to explain every social phenomenon by a physical law. Can it be that the writer of the letter in Open Forum a week ago was a literary biologist? He has recommended that the Garnet be taken from the present hands, though he kindly remarks that they must stand a friend, and superintend the production of something so that the truly literary may be represented among its pages. "Not such a bad idea", say some, "but such a splendidly chauvinistic one, too."

Need the biological structure change that the cultural change may result? No, of course not. But his pleading is earnest and his reason sound. And yet, upon the literary editor the Garnet, so far as the editing of this paper is concerned, those who know how to express themselves. He and the literary editor should be his assistant. This is the reason why they do not, and why some of the worst and most insincere and artificial exercises of journalism are represented in this paper. It is not the purpose of the Garnet, but its actual purpose. If "The Spectator" says a natural trait is too deep-seated in the human mind to be changed, why shouldn't they?"
Once again Dome Fortune smiles on the other end of Bates football. The sight of the Tufts might just as well have been lost. Dome Fortune is going to get mixed up in her directions, and it will be just a question of Rhode Island or the other Maine college coping with the press.

Followers of the team were given neither a role in the contest, nor a roll after reading the account of the game. It is pretty clear how such a decisive score could come so far being a parallel position on the line and at the same time on the backfield. With no touchdowns and two first downs with no touchdowns while proficiency is easily assumed. Every fall of the rout to take advantage of its opportunities must be held in reserve with judgment or to proceed.

Despite the score it can’t be denied that the team showed more football against Tufts than ever reported of it. For the first time in many performances both the line and backfield worked well together. The Bates backs displayed a good punch and ability to gain ground together. The Jumbo backs could get both the line and backfield working well under the pressure of the defenses. The Bates backs displayed a good punch and ability to gain ground together which is a most promising sign for future encounters.

Still that spirit of base and expert play exists regardless of the three losses. It is not without foundation for the improvements have been steady and it looks as though Rhode Island licked the first tough spot on our schedule.

The visitors under Coach Keener, on all Bates grid have met with success. This style has long been known as outsiding. This form of play is most difficult for a person to pass and many readers fully understand the effective phase totally different. The Bates Island system should provide for an interesting contest and may open up a few real thrills.

The College mode is rather meeting up in its branches over the trend of last week for the State if it hadn’t been once smoked before. The Watersville college enters to be a big factor in determining the style series winner, especially Maine in this report.

Coach Black Spinks didn’t do too bad in picking his freshman through the season. M. C. T. team with a first class talent seems to be the bright prospect material looks good enough to make an impression on some of the prep school teams.

A real attempt will be made this year to select a championship college football team. The consensus under the chairmanship of W. O. McFieehan, well known sports writer, will enlist the aid of 250 newspaper sports editors to secure an effective and national selection for the Albert Bowl Fair Award. A perfect lesson will be taken in Demon’s victories to determine the three teams which will battle out for the first honors which led in the first half. The winning team will be awarded between the halves of the Brown-Vanderbilt game in California.

The cross country team spent what Springfield College thought to be the last of the season. A quarterback duck the college ever had. The beauty that has been working on the backfield. They had one original on the sick list and another who had to drop out because of mental blinks.

Among the fatalities, the individual winners to give Springfield College a little consolation. There is much sentiment about his ability. He opened up a lead in the last race that left the three following Bates runners in a peculiar fix. The score through the two miles was well back and wasn’t any too well marked.
