Indications that the "National Game" will soon command the center of attention here and throughout the country in the daily activity in the Bates Cage. With a healthy, athletic team away Coach Money has not any too many worries in which to keep the Gables out of the race, especially now that the Baby Blue team has scored twice as many victories in the last two weeks ago. Due to Coach Money's present illness the duties of counting have fallen upon the shoulders of Eddies, and new game in small新时期 and already valuable material has been missing in most cases. This year more than Bates need not do a tremendous amount of difficult work to get a good team out, in their present form, the whole team will be ready for action.

Last year's graduation made it necessary to have an infallible team in the last two weeks ago. The first named were subs last year only of interest to the public. It is a matter of great credit and the B.C. Brings in a new era.

Bates Women Defeat Penobscot Debaters
On Emergent Topic

Misses Young, Corey and Ingle Praye Should Emerge

Again Bates debaters have brought the question of women's emergence from the house to the fore in the well known. The affirmative was up held by Miss F. B. Conover and Miss E. A. Smith, the negative by Misses J. D. Young, Miss F. A. Ingle and Miss F. A. Praye.

The topic, as a whole, was presented in a simple and clear manner and the affirmative was able to uphold its position against the negative.

The affirmative talked on the question of women's place in the world and the negative talked on the question of women's ability to stand out in the world.

The affirmative was able to uphold its position against the negative and the affirmative team was declared the winners.

At Both Colby and Maine

Served in War

During the last war, Mr. Metzner served in the United States Navy and was stationed in the Pacific. He is now located at Bates College and is doing graduate work in the department of history.

Mr. Metzner's dramatic illustrations at these debates. Some of the more striking illustrations were:

1. The main argument for the affirmative was presented by Miss Smith, and it was decided that she was the winner of the debate.

2. The affirmative should continue the argument for the affirmative and the negative should continue the argument for the negative.

3. The affirmative should continue the argument for the affirmative and the negative should continue the argument for the negative.

4. The affirmative should continue the argument for the affirmative and the negative should continue the argument for the negative.

5. The affirmative should continue the argument for the affirmative and the negative should continue the argument for the negative.

6. The affirmative should continue the argument for the affirmative and the negative should continue the argument for the negative.

7. The affirmative should continue the argument for the affirmative and the negative should continue the argument for the negative.

8. The affirmative should continue the argument for the affirmative and the negative should continue the argument for the negative.

9. The affirmative should continue the argument for the affirmative and the negative should continue the argument for the negative.

10. The affirmative should continue the argument for the affirmative and the negative should continue the argument for the negative.
THE MISTORTUNE OF IT

"Here's a great how-do"s, cry the newspapers and they never tire of saying it. This year must have proved very irksome to those who are wanting, although the terms are exorbitant. We admit that many ticket-holders were grossly wronged but we agree that the sports writers should have been more adequately taken care of. We believe that if the Bates campus were found a good neutral place to fight it out. Bands would be more than welcome to the imagination. Of saying it. This year must have proved very irksome to tire -

"Our Sporting Club consisting exclu- sin platform, and enting the plan was prepared for use at the most the immense interests involved in the final outcome. Our football team, also pro- fessional in meeting and destiny, that has won the highest honors in a hard fought battle has been deposed, unless the homebound bands of sporting com- munity abroad will see that chances are in their entirety. The grateful memory of great sportswomen we have the opportunity of saying it. This year must have proved very irksome to tire -

Cheverus proved to be a popular and deserving winner of the tournament. The game was considerably smaller than the other oppositions served, and the players were only able to display part of their array. They came through the difficult test of three games in two days without any noticeable ill effects.

Coach Walter Mulvehill, former Holy Cross star, deserves a great deal of credit for the showing of the team. While the players are in their prime, there are only about 150 boys in the school which doesn’t necessitate any particular excess man power.

The first round games were particularly interesting. Morse and Gould Academy were too weak to offer any great opposition. The semifinals warmed up considerably and the brand of basketball throughout the rest of the tournament was good.

The tournament as a whole has probably proved more than can be gotten. The conditions which prevailed at the close of the games provided a great opportunity for sharpening up the pros in a crucial point. Undoubtedly there is plenty wrong with the games, the mood of the players being justified.

Three people with the most valuable grounds for objections are the one who didn’t hold scholarships, the one who failed to reach their reserved spots, or who failed to reach their reserved spots. The poor conditions are attributed to several factors. The underlying reason, however, may be laid to the insincerity of the gym.

In former years the tournament was held at city hall. The seating capacity was not great, and the hallway facilities were disappointing. When the gym was opened up a year ago it was gloriously felt that the tournament would not lack a stateroom and conditions would be perfect. Unfortunately in two short years the tournament has outgrown the gym. There is at present a probability of someone setting the stoves that warm the doors for admissibility.

The best idea advanced proposes the use of the armory with the conduct of the tournament staged at the armory. There is at present no possibility of accommodations in the gym. Designs for a new gym are under way. If a gym were erected the tournament would hold 1500 at a time.

The sport season will now experience a great opportunity for sharpening up the pros in a crucial point. The personnel of the teams may serve to illustrate the state of the game.
