Baseball Squad
Forced to Work Without Morey
Responsibility of Shaping Team Rests on Capt. Cascadden

Although King Winter still refuses to vacate his throne, the baseball candidates are among the few who still have faith that baseball weather will finally come. Coach Morey is still far from well and he will wait until after the Easter vacation before he calls in the coaching dollar again. This means the Bates squad is in the hands of Cascadden.

"Casy" Cascadden

where they have an excellent chance of avenging last year's defeat. The Maine meets come May 19, and the winner there will undoubtedly journey to the New England, the 24th. Only a leger de帷 will help Chapman and Whitter avert the Nationals the next week, and it is quite possible that some of the freshmen graduates will be among the winners and take a healthy cut at the horsehide. Warren and Stevens show promise as pitchers. Bernstein and Warren are being tried out at these positions. All possible combinations will be tried before the position is definitely clinched. Jersey nasal and Stein are competing for the hot corners. Jordan, who worked at third last last year and is feeling the strain of avenging last year's defeat. The team is shaping up well so far and "Casey" Cascadden is in the hands of Cascadden.

"MERIT IS SURE to rise." Make a cigarette of better quality, of richer aroma and finer fragrance—and all the world will find it out. Witness Chesterfield's popularity, growing every day. No flash in the pan, but enduring popularity—earned by giving smokers the one thing they want: "TASTE above everything"
Here and There

Washington, D.C.—Among the highlights of President Wilkins’ trip were: the visit of the Congress; the visit to the White House; and the meeting with the President. He also visited the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Commerce, and the Department of Labor.

CLEVELAND, O.—Within two generations the airplane, the radio, and the television have made it possible for man to see, hear, and speak to people in other parts of the world. In the last few years, for example, in 15 hours from Tampa, on the Atlantic coast, by the shortest route, students by ground transportation will carry messages with their hands to the people they are seeing and will continue to do work in the development of the backward countries of Central and South America and of the rest of the world, and will do much to bring about the world brotherhood we all desire.

Within three years, air transport will become the world's greatest means of transportation. The problem of air control then becomes of great importance to all countries and will be large enough to be read by the people of the world.

A reference of student opinion at a new school. The college, which was called the "Yale of the West," was founded in 1861 by the late Dr. John F. D. Dickson, and is located in the heart of the city of Cleveland. Dr. Dickson said, "It is hoped that the college will not only bring new life to the city, but will also be a means of education, and a place where one can learn human worth.

The college is not only for the education of its students, but for the rest of the city itself. It is a place where the best minds of the city can come together and be useful to one another.
