BOWDOIN Game a Tom-top

Bates and Bowdoin match practically town.

In their first meeting this season, which was played at the Barstow Athletic Arena, with sticks and sticks flying and body checking in the manner of the game, a new record was set for the number of penalties. One of the Boston fans, who had been spending the evening with friends on the sticks and in the meadows, was able to get in on the action without being noticed.

At the last minute the Garnet team was able to make a point on the game and after much play, the Garnet fans were able to score a goal on the watchful Bowdoin goalie. The game was then stopped and the boys from Waterville were able to make a goal on the watchful Bowdoin goalie.

A GRAMMATICAL KISS

A kiss is always a bonus, because of its appeal for the senses. It is sometimes accompanied by the caress of the lips and it is always accompanied by a touch. It is a combination, because it consists of two parts. It is no interjection; at least it sounds like one. It is plural, because one calls for more.

Army Pucksters Win Over Bates

For two periods, Bates held the strong Army nettled to a 2-0 score in a game that ended neither team without a chance. But, in the final period, through the efforts of the Bostonians, the defense weakened, and Thistle and Drummond, both of the Bostonians, were responsible for making the score 2-1. Late in the final period, 2-1 Bates was beseiged by the Bostonians. Their efforts however were not sufficient and 2-1 Bates was the final score.

Prof. Ward Lectures On Unemployment

By EDWIN L. LONG

Professor H. Ward of the United Theological School, N. Y. City, lectured on the topic of "Unemployment." in the Little Theatre on Friday evening, Jan. 26th.

In his opening statement Professor Ward pointed out that the country has never experienced such a mass movement of office-holders, workers, and idle men being out of work, due to the present state of depression.

According to Professor Ward the college student finds that he can no longer fulfill the responsibilities expected of him, and that he is now in the position of having to make both college and home ends meet. He feels that his education is being put to a test in these trying times.

The lecture was well attended and Prof. Ward was able to give many interesting examples of how the college student is challenged to consider the lack of efficient leadership in our society.

Prof. Ward also informed his audience that the present leaders were not the leaders of their youth. They make false and false proclamations, by filling the public with promises of cheap bread, quick method, and articles filled with sentiment instead of truth and facts.

This is the time that the country has been expecting a world depression. This depression comes at the climax of a period of excessive expenditure and making. The collapse of the rubber market, the depression in the coal market, the change in the coal market due to the present state of depression, has made it necessary to pay the consequences.

He further states that the causes were not the same, more general. The overproduction of goods, due to great improve-ments in Capital plant, due to the lack of efficiency, was the main cause, while the cost of living was put to a test in these trying times.

The lecture was well received and Prof. Ward was able to give many interesting examples of how the college student is challenged to consider the lack of efficient leadership in our society.
