Abraham Lincoln Walks at Midnight

By W. M. LINDSAY
2

It is a perfect night, and a thing of state.
There is no difference between a little town,
And a city, and no difference between the great
And the small, save the name.

The old court-house and the courthouse stump,
Near the old courthouse up and down,
And the old court-house and the courthouse stump,
And the old court-house and the courthouse stump.

A broken link in his suit of armor black,
A broken link on the iron chain.
A broken link in his suit of armor black,
A broken link on the iron chain.

He cannot sleep upon his hillside grave,
He is among us—in times before.
And there two men and his wake for his Breadth sleep, and to, to his past, the door.
He is broiled; he thinks he sees and kings

Too many thousands in black terror sleep.
The sides of all the woods, blood his heart
He saw the boughs hanging, hanging eyes.
Carries on his shoulder-levend shoulders now.
The crowd of several hundred under
The brow of the hill. Valery

But he cannot rest until a quotidien
Shall come—the shining hope of Europe free.

The he who, in the witchcraft of the storm,
To do the things for which they were here;
The he who, in the witchcraft of the storm,
To do the things for which they were here;

It breaks his heart that kings must murder still.
Shall come—the shining hope of Europe free.

The wand that he sways in his hallowed hand
Is stilled by intently eyes;
And he who, in the witchcraft of the storm,
To do the things for which they were here;

Breathe deep, and

It breaks his heart that kings must murder still.

Shall come—the shining hope of Europe free.
LOST OF COUS

According to figures given The Student upon request by the Registrar of Bates College, 148 students had been expelled from the college and 149 students had lost their admission last year for various reasons, exclusive of the class of 1932. The cases of four students and one instructor were also under consideration at the time of the interviews. The word "expelled" is used in the broadest sense and includes all those students who are not in good standing.

The rule governing the condition of students must be enforced to the best of the registrar’s ability, and if a student is found in violation of the rules, he will be expelled from the college.

The registration of the new students is being held this week. The registrar’s office will be open from 8:00 A.M. to 12:00 noon and from 1:00 to 4:00 P.M. daily. All students are required to register before the beginning of the term.

A Grand Piano and Music

With the rise of Bates music groups in the campus and the increase in the number of students taking music courses, there is a greater demand for a grand piano. The administration is in the process of acquiring one.

This year, the music department will offer a course in music appreciation to all students. The course will be taught by Professor Wright and will cover the history of music from its beginning to the present day.

A Counterfeited Bond of Honor

Some time ago, a student at Bates College was accused of counterfeiting bonds of honor. The general consensus is that this is a serious offense and should be dealt with severely.

The student was found guilty of the charge and was expelled from the college.

Weekly Poem

You COME TOO LATE

By STEVEN CLARK

You come too late—my need is
For I have trod upon the term
And I have not the strength to

And as I come too late to
I have none to help me

My life is closed and SAP
For I am the one who

The poem was written by a student who was expelled from the college.

Debate wins

Discuss Timely Subjects

As the last day of February ap- proaches, the trend in spring and summer activities of the Senate is becoming apparent. The Senate is making a determined effort to fill the prize gap with a variety of worthwhile activities. A theme has been introduced on the Senate floor which is anticipated to lead to a high-level debate. The debate is expected to provide the students with an opportunity to express their opinions and engage in a healthy exchange of ideas. The debate will take place on the 28th and 29th of February in the Lecture Theatre. The Senate hopes to attract a large audience and encourage active participation from all members.

The freshmen boys, who have taken the lead in debating, will present their arguments for and against the motion on February 28th and 29th. The debate will be held in the Lecture Theatre, and the audience is encouraged to attend to witness the event.

The debate is expected to be a lively and engaging experience. The freshmen boys have shown an enthusiastic and competitive spirit, indicating that they will bring their best efforts to the debate. The Senate looks forward to a captivating and enlightening conversation on the topic.

Carnival Queen

Though the carnival queen of the college will be crowned next week, the identity of the woman now holding the title is still a secret. With the exception of the college president, the name of the carnival queen has not been revealed. The carnival queen is a symbol of the college's spirit and is elected by the students. The pageant is one of the college's main events, and the carnival queen is expected to play a significant role in the upcoming activities.

Debating League

The debate league is in full swing, with the teams practicing hard for the upcoming matches. The league is composed of several teams from different colleges, and each team is working to improve its performance. The matches are scheduled for the next two weeks, and the league is expected to provide an exciting and competitive platform for the debaters to showcase their skills.

The league's strategy session continues on page 3, where the teams are discussing their tactics and preparing for the upcoming matches. The league is committed to fostering a spirit of fair competition and intellectual exchange, and the teams are eager to take on the challenge.

Acrobats

A group of acrobats, comprised of students and faculty members, is performing at the college on Friday night. The acrobats are expected to put on a spectacular show, showcasing their skills and talents. The performance will be held in the college's gymnasium, and the audience is encouraged to attend.

The acrobats are led by a master coach, who has been training the group for several weeks. The coach is known for his expertise in acrobatics and has been working closely with the student performers to ensure a successful event.

The performance will feature a variety of acrobatic acts, including aerial tricks, balancing acts, and synchronized movements. The acrobats are expected to impress the audience with their agility, strength, and coordination.

The acrobats are excited to showcase their talents and bring joy to the college community. The performance promises to be an unforgettable experience, and the audience is invited to join in the fun.
