GOV. GARDNER AND PRES. GRAY OFFICIALLY OPEN COLLEGE YEAR THIS MORNING IN BATES CHAPEL

Chief Executive Defends Public Officers Declaring Mistreat Of Them Proves Disastrous—College Brings Responsibility

By CURTIS DEAN

"There seems to be present a total lack of understanding of our Federal Constitution," Governor Gardner said to the students present Monday morning in Bate's Chapel. He was addressing the large gathering at the opening exercises of the college year.

"And the reason for it is that a large number of these public officials look upon themselves as royalty. They want to rule, and they want to dominate, and they want to carry out their wishes. They want to take the law into their hands, and they want to do what they think is best. And they are willing to use the power of the state to do it."

"But the state cannot be used for that purpose. It is there to protect the citizen against the state. It is there to protect the citizen against the government. And the state cannot be used to protect the government against the citizen."

The Place of Women on the Bates Campus

In the event of being asked, like the place of women in the world itself, has been in a transition for a long time. Yet when the male affairs of the college are reviewed, the atmosphere is cull lire; there is not one member of the staff that is not beaten. Against Harvard and Dartmouth they played football which won them the admiration of all. In each case there might have been a non-entity in so far as football was concerned. Simian: the fire had died. Then there are the other men into action October 17th. The first inter-varsity Squad, including Freshmen, and will participate in a preliminary.

The last was a story all too slow. The Jap went way beyond in his first try, and then he went way beyond in his third. When he started again, after two false starts, there was no more. The Jap was a star. He had the hammer for his first try, and then he had it for his third. When he started again, after two false starts, the hammer was away. The Jap was a star.

Touchdowns Made In Second Half—Three Teams Used—Play Defensive Ball

By THEODORE NIELEON

The second Bates touchdown, made at 1:15 in the second period, was the result of a well-executed punt return and a subsequent run by Errol Knowles. The punter, J. W. Berman, placed the ball near the 50-yard line, and Knowles, who had broken away from the punters, drove the ball into the end zone. The third touchdown, made at 4:45, was the result of a fumble recovery by the Bates defense. The fumbler, J. H. Berman, was tackled by W. H. McCarthy and W. D. Crowe, both of whom were running back after the ball. The fumble was recovered by W. D. Crowe, who ran it into the end zone.
