Albert Einstein—Communist

A prominent world authority, as well as widely known for his scientific work, has recently received some publicity for his position as an editorial writer to the Department of Immigration that Prof. Albert Einstein is a member of the world communist organization.

This position was held by the professor in 1923, and since then he has been a member of the executive committee of the Communist International. He has also written several articles on this subject, and has been active in the work of the organization.

The professor, who is well known for his work in the field of theoretical physics, has been a member of the National Academy of Sciences and has received many honorary degrees from universities around the world. He is also a recipient of the Nobel Prize in Physics.

It is possible that the professor's views on communism may have influenced his decision to join the Communist Party, as the party has been active in promoting communist beliefs and ideas around the world.

Despite his scientific achievements, the professor has been criticized for his political views, and his membership in the Communist Party has been the subject of much controversy. Many people believe that his work in the field of physics should not be overshadowed by his political beliefs, while others argue that his political views are irrelevant to his work in science.

DR. AND MRS. HOVEY FIND DESERT DRIVING HAZARDLESS

Tulane 8000 Mile Motor Tour of States—Visit Spanish Colonies in Texas

By M. H. Hovey

It was with the highest interest that we at the University listened to the story of Dr. Fred G. Hovey and Mrs. Hovey’s recent trip through the United States. Their journey was to replace the old-fashioned automobile with a more modern vehicle, and their aim was to travel the entire country, covering a distance of 8,000 miles. The couple set out on their journey and didn’t return until late last month. The trip started in Los Angeles, where Dr. Hovey owns a research laboratory, and ended in Boston. The route was marked by a variety of experiences, including high-speed driving through the desert, long hours spent at the wheel, and the joy of discovering new places.
