Former New York Times Correspondent, Speaking To Large Audience, Eyes Stimson's Attitude Toward Far East

Manchurian Wealthy
Lecturer Wrote Textbook Used In Bates Governement Classes

By VINCENT BELLAIRE

Claiming that it is always better to be a dollar diplomat than a big stick, the former New York Times correspondent to Manchuria, Mr. Sokolsky addressed a large audience the other night. He also read from his own writings as to the findings of his return to that part of the world.

In this lecture, Mr. Sokolsky said the Japanese had the problem of winning the respect of the Western world. He mentioned the fact that the Japanese, unlike the Chinese, could point to no history of conquest.

Stimson Clumsy In Pursuit Of Policy In China Says Sokolsky

By WILLIAM M. MACK

New York correspondent of the New York Times, in a lecture before the students of the College of the Pacific, said that the administration of the President was in a dilemma because of the policy it was pursuing in China. He said that the administration had been forced to take a step toward the recognition of the Chinese government, and that this had been done in order to prevent further friction.

More on Commons

We take this opportunity to protest to all concerned for a mistaken idea which was recently advanced to us by a student at last week's "Rat-e-s at the Commons." It is not a fact that the deficit which existed last year at the Commons was made up from a surplus created since that time. There was a large deficit which has been in existence previously, but that was the result of a direct grant of a sum running into the thousands from friends at the disposal of the Board of Trustees. This must be borne in mind in the misinterpretation of remarks made by the President.

In fairness to the student whose wish cannot be for nothing when he desires, neither can we leave the impression that a surfeit of food is the rule at the Commons, nor do we mean that the student body has the worst possible of all eating places, nevertheless it is possible to do better there should be no student-created objection to making it be done.

Surely there must be other combinations of food besides what we have at the disposal of the Board of Trustees. This mistake resulted from the management of other eating places, nevertheless it is possible to do better there should be no student-created objection there to making it be done.

There are also several other combinations of food which we need most badly at present; namely, that which are identical with ours if we can believe an editorial in the 'National Review,' the Sunday magazine of the Catholic Church, which is identical with our own publications.

It is of great development in the city that the Board of Trustees has adopted the idea that the management of other eating places, in order to be able to do more fine events, must needs make those car tracks which are now used for the purpose of transportation. There is a large surplus created since that time. There was a large surplus created since that time. There was a large surplus created since that time.
