The study of religion shows the value of special periods of contemplation in the spiritual life of daily living. This year the College Church invites its members and friends to make use of the Lenten Season for reflection on the deep necessity of the Church in the life of Christ.

Although it is rather late for such a suggestion, why not give the students an opportunity to use the basement of the Building for such purposes? The basement should be made available to the students as a place of meditation and prayer. The College Church should encourage this practice and make it a regular feature of its activities.

The Student and the World

Will Hitler run Germany? This question is being asked by every one in the world. The answer is not yet known, but many people believe that he will. The reason for this belief is that Hitler is a strong and determined leader who is determined to achieve his goals.

The AFFIRMATIVE TEAMS

WIN PRIZE DEBATES

Freeholders' Rights

Freeholders' rights have been a topic of debate for many years. In this debate, the affirmative team argued that freeholders should have the right to vote in all matters affecting the community. The negative team, on the other hand, argued that freeholders should only have the right to vote in matters affecting their own property.

Theorable Team

The affirmative team won the debate by a majority vote. The main point of the affirmative team's argument was that freeholders are the owners of the land and should therefore have a say in the decisions that affect it. The negative team's argument was that freeholders are not always able to make decisions that are in the best interest of the community.

No Tricks...
... Just Costlier Tobaccos
In a Matchless Blend

SAVING A WOMAN IN HALF

It's fun to be fooled —
... it's more fun to KNOW

Cigarette advertising, too, has its tricks. Consider the illusion that "Flavor" can be achieved by some kind of magical hocus-pocus in manufacturing.

EXPLANATION: Just three factors control the flavor of a cigarette. The addition of artificial flavoring, the blending of various tobaccos. And the quality of the tobaccos themselves. Quality is by far the most important. Domestic cigarette tobaccos vary in price by the hundred, with some costing a dollar a pound and others going for as little as a cent. But the difference that means all the world is in the quality of the tobacco. The same thing is true with imported tobaccos. They may be more expensive, but they are also of higher quality.

Bleed Streaks

For decades, a cigar industry tradition has been the use of bleed streaks, or marks, on the ends of cigars. These streaks indicate the quality of the tobacco used in the cigar.

EXPLANATION: Bleed streaks are created by a process of aging the tobacco. The tobacco is first aged in a special room for a certain amount of time, then moved to another room where it is aged for a longer period of time. During this time, the tobacco "bleeds" out some of its moisture, which is then evaporated. The moisture that is evaporated is what gives the cigar its flavor. The longer the tobacco is aged, the more flavor it will have. That's why bleed streaks are a good indication of the quality of the tobacco.

A Perspective of Life

The Tigers swept the Blue for the third time this season.

EXPLANATION: The Tigers have played well against the Blue throughout the season. While they lost their first meeting, the Tigers have been able to pull ahead in the last two games.

The Tigers have also been able to score more than the Blue in each of the last three games. This has helped them to win the series.

The Tigers will be looking to continue their success against the Blue in the future. They will need to keep up their scoring and defensive play in order to win the series.

The Blue, on the other hand, will need to improve their play in order to avoid being swept by the Tigers. They will need to focus on their pitching and defense in order to have a chance against the Tigers.

These are just a few of the many perspectives on life that can be found at Bates College.
