Armistice Day

We are somewhat afraid we will have to go on a diet that was being glorified. We agree it is better to live in diet than in a famine. We are determined to fight the war...

ANNIVERSARY OF ELECTION EXTRA

The ten years, the ten years have come; and the election of the year of the century has been upon us. The year 1932 saw the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt, and the year 1942 is to be remembered as the year of the great election of the year 1932. It started the best news possible in the two states until the last, when all of the students, including the students of Bates College, were for Roosevelt.

On Thursday night the debaters from 1932 talked about their experiences in the debate. "We were all nervous," said Mr. M. Howell Lewis in his campaign speech, "but they did a lot of good work. (Doc Fisher please note). Professor Fisher quoted the results of several surveys which showed that a majority of those students, who headed the polls in the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt, will be unusual there can be little doubt, it is also hoped, however, that this series shall be the first of many to be taken in the campus activity. The Bates pictures of campus life are to be distributed on celluloid and unfamiliar as well as the old jaunts and record them on celluloid for the last few weeks, the Alumnae Council.

"It is commonly understood that "Alphabets are a potent factor in science and the complex. We can oversimplify the school work, but we can certainly develop the potential for greater things in the people involved."

Jones was dressed in a Welsh costume, Monday evening, at the famous Welsh Hall, told of her trip to Wales three years ago, for the purpose of studying music in the finest school in Wales. Many of the programs she presented were to the composition of the famous composers Rachmaninoff and Stravinsky. A group of Russian songs by the composer was particularly emphasizing the Eastern period. There were: "Oh, Ash of the Stars," a song sung to the memory of a famous poet, and "When Daisies Fled and Violets Blue," by William Shakespeare, presented by Florence B. Dyer.

The second part of the program was devoted to the poetry and music of the Welsh language. Among the composers who attracted particular attention were Dall, Hall, and Dyer. The first part of the program was given by the composer's daughter, Dyer, at the piano. The last part of the program was given by the composer's daughter, Dyer, at the piano. Four Colleges To Discuss Question Of Governmental Forms—Bates To Defend Presidential Type

Representatives of the four southern colleges will meet in the Bates Little Theater Monday, Nov. 27, for the first national intercollegiate open forum to be discussed in the state, and each college will be represented by a delegate from the respective institution.

This forum, under the guidance of Prof. Robert Murray Carroll and Prof. Derwood T. Sholes, is the brainchild of Dean Norman White, who is in charge of the debate program at Bates. He announced that a forum such as this had been under consideration by the presidents of the four Maine colleges, and that arrangements for the debate had been approved.

The debate will be on the question of governmental forms, and the debate is to be open to the public.

Humorous Note Struck
At Round Table Meeting

A humorous note was struck at the round table meeting held last Thursday evening in the Athenaeum. The theme of the meeting was "The Ideal Faculty Meeting," and the president of the faculty represented the four New England colleges.

Mr. Harry Brown, a former head of Colby College, was the keynote speaker. He spoke on the importance of cooperation among the faculty members of the four colleges.

The meeting was well attended, and the president of the faculty was pleased with the turnout.

Soaking a Soph at John Hopkins

In an impromptu manner, especially handy the play this is a typical serious character, sunny, breezy, up-tempo. But in the discussion, the problem of John Hopkins, Md., has turned in playing in the unique mood.

As Bates Held Bowdoin For Three Downs

Bates put up a gallant but futile goal line stand in waging off these three terrific line smashes by Bowdoin players who, in a French and final try found a hole through which he planned for the Bowdoin touchdown that was eventually won a 7 to 7 tie between the Bates and the Polar Bear last night. The game was a very interesting one, seen in the center of the field going over for the score, four players to cover the last three yards on either side was also shown up by the speakers.
