This is the only way to carry on the business of the nation.

Bates says "How could you? Our boys are all veterans."

One of the biggest problems of the season is the pitching situation. Only two veterans, one of whom is a right-hander, are available. This makes it necessary to get as many capable men as possible and develop the talent we have in mind. This means not neglect the underclassmen.

One capable of putting the ball past the plate in the freshmen class is Frank W. Luukko. The other veteran is Albert M. Black, who showed some promise last year.
