The decision of the Federal Circuit in the Hazel-Atlas mill that sets the tone of the insured policies for the future of the industry is the partial removal of the last brick in the wall that has been built to protect the American factory system. The decision affirms the Hazel-Atlas position on the liability of the insurance company for the loss of the insured property, and it lays the groundwork for the future of the factory system. The decision is the partial loss of the last brick in the wall that has been built to protect the American factory system.

Council Asks Co-operation

These false alarms are not infrequent, and in most cases the alarm is sent out, but the college authorities are not notified. It is necessary to send these false alarms at once, but we think that it is advisable to state the gravity of the situation, and that it will be necessary to co-operate with the college authorities in the matter.

In the case of the recent false alarm, the college authorities were notified at once, and the fire department was called out. The alarm was sent out from the Chase dining room, and the fire department was on the scene within five minutes.

THE TIME HAS COME, everybody said, to talk of caballades and kings and New Year's resolutions. All at once man becomes so earnest as to undervalue the jesters of that generous process made up of the indomitable amusements of existence. The result is that, as we start back into the past and gazing forward into the future, we.don't think what we shall be doing.

We shall deal with medium serious to polite pecuniary situations which we feel arise in regard to standardized Bates institutions.

As we shall do with us in such an institution, the first thing is to give a maximum amount of publicity to facts throwing light on shortcomings of the Bates set-up. This, of course, means that we will speak at the wrong time and use these facts according to our best interest.

Probably the most somber aspects of American life are (1) the sanctity of private life, (2) the right to privacy and the right of commercial people to conduct their trade at will, and (3) the right of organizations to conduct their business at least as long as the directors see fit.

Let us train ourselves to rigid personal discipline. Your only consistent course is to go on with the business at hand.

We feel that an attorney should be as true and undeviating a friend as a priest at the altar of Eternal Truth. This is the only course and the only way out. It is also a very good course for the time being.

The proof of the cigarette is in the smoking... and it always will be

Smokers—both men and women—want a cigarette to be mild—not that or insipid. At the same time they want a cigarette that gives them taste—taste they can enjoy.

Chesterfields are outstanding for mildness—outstanding for better taste. You can find that out by smoking them.

Just try them—Chesterfields are what they say they are.
