Dr. Stinchfield talks on Spoken Word. Ascend Judgments

Dr. Frederick H. Stinchfield, chairman of the Committee on Speech, said at the annual banquet of the National Association of American College Debaters in December that the debate had reached a new level of sophistication and that the future of speech was promising.

Twelve thousand students must be willing to attend the Bates-Toft football game, according to the committee. The game is scheduled for November 10, and is expected to attract a large crowd. The team is in preparation for the game, and the students are enthusiastic about the prospect of a home victory.

The committee is considering various ways to improve the student body's experience at the game, including adding more food vendors, increasing the number of student sections, and improving the seating arrangements. The students are also being encouraged to wear college colors and to show school spirit.

The Phi Beta Kappa society is a prestigious honor society for undergraduate students, and is open to those who have achieved high academic standing.

In 1837, this western college opened its doors, and the charter for Bates was granted on August 15, 16, and 17; in Kobe on the 18th. The college has continued to grow, and is now one of the largest institutions in the country.

The Bates chapter was organized in 1896, and has been active ever since. The chapter has received numerous awards and recognitions for its contributions to the Bates community.

The Bates chapter of Phi Beta Kappa is an affiliate of the national organization, which has over 200 chapters across the United States.

For membership in this honor society is extremely limited, and the number of members is carefully regulated. The Bates chapter is proud to be a part of this prestigious organization.

Simpson, Simpson, Simpson and newspapers continue to show the need for an open house on Saturday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the Little Theatre.

The Simpson family has been a part of the Bates community for many years, and their contribution to the community is greatly appreciated.

On the other hand, the opinion expressed by Mr. Dexter Gray of granting a holiday will be declared a week from today, with the game of football with Tufts being held at Medford a week from Saturday afternoon after their meeting there.

The BATES STUDENT, OCTOBER 6, 1937.

Black Friday

The unprecedented radio speech by Associate Justice Hugo L. Black Friday night leaves a Nation condemning, wondering, hoping that the best can be made of an unfortunate situation.

Mr. Black, judging from facts which have so far been brought to light, is first of all to be condemned for placing his Protector, Franklin D. Roosevelt, in an unfortunate light by maintaining that his political and judicial principles were being set by the country pointing fingers querying at the vacationing and silent Mr. Black. While the occupant of executive would have taken whatever actions were necessary to protect himself and his relations from the adversary, it appears that the President was not even aware of these new facts yet. Are there facts yet to be revealed regarding President Roosevelt's knowledge of his first appointee to the Supreme Court?

Mr. Black, in the second place, is being condemned for affilating (which he claims he dropped) with the Ku Klux Klan. Carefully and in sincere tones which circled the world known to radio he placed himself in the ranks of his black tracks which inflicts every implication of racial or religious intolerance.

Yet the Nation wonders. Mr. Black was vague and evasive in his statement at the Klan censure meeting with the Wilsons. He claims that his membership was a political one, dropped after his election. But they have come back for a second go. However, that may be, the new facts as revealed in this speech reveal an entirely different man who is not a justifiable figure in a right trial.

Bates Men Vote Wet

Many of the more than 1000 members of Stu. G. last fall sat in a thrilling 21-15 football game and are hoping that the University administration will approve a special train for the Bates game a week before he sat in his first Supreme Court Session.

Mr. Black's speech on the basis of his record as a Senator which "refutes the opinion."

The League's condemnation of such subversive elements in the country on the contrary seems to have been proven false. Or are there facts yet to be revealed regarding President Roosevelt's knowledge of his first appointee to the Supreme Court?

Goodspeed Reloses South Africa Tour

By Leslie Warren '41

A three months' trip to the Union of South Africa enables Goodspeed to tell with authority, "It's a well place to visit, but as far living, nothing." The high salaries earned by the English in South Africa are not reflected in the wages of the workers, according to Goodspeed, who believes that "there are some people who are way ahead of us in America."
