Dr. Roemertt Gives Lecture

Noted Scientinst Opens Session With Demonstration

By Pauline Cooper '36 and John Kennedy '70

A new sensory lesson for all children and for those adults who have never had the experience of seeing men with their hands tied behind their backs, was presented to Bates students last Wednesday by Prof. Gould Worries, psychology. His demonstration was made to illustrate the principle that although all men are created equal, yet in their mental capacities they are not created equally.

Prof. Gould explained the use of the demonstration in his course. He demonstrated the fact that although all men are created equal, yet in their mental capacities they are not created equally.

In the experiment, a subject was placed in a dark room with his hands tied behind his back. The subject was then presented with two objects, a knife and a knife of the same type, but of different size. The subject was asked to identify the larger knife.

The subject was able to identify the larger knife, thus proving that although all men are created equal, yet in their mental capacities they are not created equally.

The Assembly, "From Maine To California"

"From Maine to California," a National password for advertising and publicity agents for all types of enterprises, should have special significance for us in the State of Maine, especially in connection with the National Assembly in Oxford, Ohio, during Christmas vacation.

Conventions are really not "national" unless they include representation from Maine to California. Conventions are really not worth while unless they contain a cross-section of the interest groups with which they deal. As far as student conferences go, the colleges sending delegates are themselves slighted unless they send the best representation available, not only to represent the college as listeners but also to represent the college as active participants.

In the coming National Assembly there will be a greater chance that such participation for intelligent participation, at least, from internationally famous speakers are on the program; student participation and delegation is the arrangement. The aim is an effort to evolve a philosophy of life in which problems of student and national life will find a satisfactory place.

Such an aim may seem too theoretical to be of value. Yet the assembly's philosophy is to be evolved, as the resultant of practical worthwhile unless they contain a cross-section of the interest group special significance for us in the State of Maine, especially in the W. A. A., Eleanor Smart '39.

At College, 25,000 Miles From Home!

Three students come from homes which represent, collectively, a distance of 9,000 miles in Latitudes. Noting on a map a separation of their respective home countries are: Miss Marguerite Moulton '41 of Baker, near Boston, India, a personal acquaintance of Malenath Ghandi; Eich Kimmotoyam '40 of Tokio, Japan, and Marie Marilice Durrun, French exchange student, from Paris, France.

Laspa Methods More Peaceful Than C. I. O.

"What a week we had!"

Perhaps the first lesson that the short workers would have joined the C.I.O. had the company been willing to make workers a small percentage of their earnings as a premium for joining. If the workers had enough faith in themselves and their leaders, they would have had...

Trackman Trips On Train Tie-up

Harry Shepard, Bates' 6th cross-country runner, was in the No. 2 position on the Maine Central Limited train running between Waterville and Bangor Saturday on Garceau's advice. The train was involved in a collision between Bates and Waterville Saturday after the first cross-country race, a Bates cross-country race, the courses connected. Fortunately the injuries were not serious. It is expected that Bates will be able to field a team at the Maine State games in the last three weeks of the season.

Bates Players Hold

While the band was playing at the Auburn Theater where the Bates Basketball game was being held, a young man ran out onto the field and jumped on the back of a man who was due to speak on radio. He then took off and headed for the Auburn Theater. The man who was due to speak on radio was the Bates basketball coach and the young man was one of his players.
