GRAD JACQ '38
Has Passed

In memory of Agnes C. Macphail, the last woman member of Canada's parliament, who died last Saturday, a mass and requiem will be said in the church of the Holy Name, at the corner of 11th and Harrison streets, at 6 p.m. tomorrow afternoon.

Canadian educationist, politician, and advocate of woman suffrage, Miss Macphail was one of the more colorful figures in Canadian political life. She was a member of the provincial assembly of Ontario from 1917 to 1921, and of the federal parliament from 1925 to 1931.

Miss Macphail was also known for her pacifism and her support of women's rights. She was a strong advocate of women's suffrage and was one of the first women elected to the Canadian parliament. She was also a prominent figure in the anti-war movement.

The service will be held in her honor, and her contributions to the cause of women's rights and peace will be remembered.

College Newsman

Center in N. Y.

Sue Ann Hyman, director, and James H. Ginn, editor, of the "Student" at the College of the Holy Cross, have arrived in New York for the annual convention of the Association of College and Student Presses.

The convention, which is held annually, brings together college and student newspaper editors from across the country to discuss issues and trends in student journalism.

The College Newsman Center is a group of student journalists at the College of the Holy Cross who produce the "Student," the campus newspaper.

Its mission is to provide a platform for student voices and to promote the importance of free speech and democratic values in higher education.

The convention will be an opportunity for the College Newsman Center to engage with other student journalists and to learn from each other about best practices in student journalism.

The convention will also feature workshops, panels, and keynote speakers who will discuss topics such as media literacy, ethics in journalism, and the role of the media in a democratic society.

The convention will conclude with a closing event that will provide an opportunity for network building and to celebrate the achievements of student journalists.

The College Newsman Center is one of many student newspapers across the country that are committed to providing a voice for their communities and to promoting the importance of free speech and democratic values in higher education.

"Happy New Year"—Again

Goodness knows where the phrase "happy new year" originated, but it indicates many things when this world of ours, which man has conventionally divided into years, is annually on the verge of adding one digit to its age in the scheme of things.

Some thing, I mean, that "happy new year" has lost the traditional stigma, that it is now mere sentimentality, if not a heartrending expression. On the other hand, however, it indicates a friendly attitude, also a desire to be optimistic—"This is a new year"—as the saying goes.

Perhaps, in the years since, 1930, the optimism phase of the sentiment has been more in evidence during the past year than ever. Last year brought plenty of experience for the working lives. There were strikes, floods, riots. Now there are parks, cinemas, control projects. The reason for the rise may be because it is against a background of the recent optimism that we are facing the problem of the depression. The "happy new year" sentiment may be the result of this fact.

For the people of the world, the "happy new year" has lost its meaning. It is no longer considered a matter of importance, but rather is a matter of indifference. The people of the world are now more concerned with the present than with the future.

However, the "happy new year" sentiment is still present in the minds of many people. It is a symbol of hope and optimism, and it is a reminder that the new year is a time to start fresh and to make the best of the year that is ahead.

The "happy new year" sentiment is also important in the context of the New Year's Eve celebrations. These celebrations are a time for people to come together and to celebrate the new year. They are a time for people to reflect on the past year and to look forward to the future.

In conclusion, the "happy new year" sentiment is still present in the minds of many people. It is a symbol of hope and optimism, and it is a reminder that the new year is a time to start fresh and to make the best of the year that is ahead. The New Year's Eve celebrations are also an important part of this sentiment, as they provide a time for people to come together and to celebrate the new year.

Christmas Festivities Are Same World Over

by Patty Hall '38

It seems that "Merry Christmas Happy New Year" is virtually the same whether the French "Joie de vivre" goes with it or whether it is said in the oriental manner.

Jerry Newton and Minouche, our two kids from across the sea, have just enjoyed their first American Christmas. As for Jerry, she claims that she has never seen Christmas in the same manner we do. "But the snow is what makes me enjoy Christmas the most. Of course we don't have it here, and you can bet your boots I enjoyed it—it was wonderful!" said Jerry, in talking things over.

Minouche being a stocky this year instead of putting on a show in front of the fireplace, and in America the Christmas tree celebration is not as festive as in France. Aside from this that Christmas was much the same as it is at home—even in the big dinner. Jerry had her holiday with relatives in Augusta, and Minouche visited friends in Andover; so they both had a taste of a regular New England Christmas.

Both Relay Teams Shape Up Well
As Track Season Approaches

Prospects for the relay one mile and two mile relay teams appear to be fairly good this year. The two mile team should be comparatively as strong as the mile team for the last year's group is all back. This group was composed of: Ben Bridges, Dana Balisle, James Myrick, Howard Yaros, All Sorensen, and Bill Woodford. The first three and Woodford were fifth in a field of eight at the B.A.A. relays a year ago this February.

A strong group of sophomores should help, for Harry Sheppard, John Story and Charlie Crooker have all had experience at the half, especially the latter. Crooker turned in a beautiful max against Bridges' former record fast, Bob Stimson, last spring, though he failed to win. The mile team has three of last year's veterans back, in Eddie Howlett, George Lythcott and Bill Luukko. A strong group of sophomores will take Keck's place. Should Keck come around all right, however, both teams should be fairly festive as in France. Aside from that the fireplace; and in America the Christmas Eve celebration is not as wonderful!" said Jerry, in talking things over.
