Building Good Will

To the senior who watched Bates thrive along for three years, in what he came to call a change of channel, and who now sees much of the reawakening—in fact something little short of remarkable. An efficient Student Council has compiled a summary of accomplishments that add up to a new dormitory and grandstand have been added to the physical plant.

The most important progressive steps are still intangible; the same sentiment toward the College is desirable in alumni and in the minds of those who have never come through his efforts. Good will is not measurable.

One of the prime interests of his department is building a healthy and happy student attitude. To use his own words, "every student is a mirror of the College" and the reflection cast is the future of Bates.

The same attitude toward the College is desirable in alumni and in the minds of those who have never come through his efforts. Good will is not measurable.
