BATES AGAIN DEFEATED IN MAINE SERIES

Bowdoin makes winning score during last period. Bates men fail to score but gave the Bowdoin men a hard fight.

Bates and Bowdoin again faced each other in contest last Saturday resulting in a score 7-0 for Bowdoin. A feature of the game was the true sportmanship of both teams.

During the first half Bates seemed to have an advantage and Bates rooters were earnestly hoping that a score would soon decide matters. But from the beginning of the second half, the Bowdoin men worked better and in the last period scored a touchdown.

Davis made several pretty end runs and also punted well. Merrill was continually breaking thru the line. Several fumbles were costly for the Bates men and several losses were made on open plays. Capt. Dewever played his usual fine game. Several Bowdoin men were injured and time was called for two or three of the Bates men. A field goal was attempted by both teams and each time failed, that of Bates being blocked.

Leadbetter was the star for the Bowdoin team, making a splendid gain of 40 yards which made possible the single score of the day. The way the Bowdoin men returned and overcame the apparent advantage the Bates men had during the first half is a credit to their team. The game was interesting from the start and both teams played real football.

CROSS-COUNTRY

Altho the Cross-Country team at Orono last Saturday were completely outclassed by the strong University of Maine team, they were not disgraced. Every member of the team fought for all that was in him and the team as a whole finished close behind the Maine stars. This showing is encouraging when we think of the chances to beat out Bowdoin and Colby in the State Championship run to be held at Orono next Friday, as it is the unanimous opinion of many experts that Maine has the strongest Cross-Country team in the country not even making the exception of Cornell, when the fact is taken into consideration that there were one sophomore and three freshmen who never took part in intercollegiate competition, it is thought that with Saturday's experience the team ought to make a fine showing Friday.

Everyone ought to take advantage of the fine weather we are having this fall. This is especially true for any men who are interested in track work. By doing something this fall it will make things far easier for all in the spring when the team has to be whipped into shape. At present there are 92 men out for track, but only three-fourths of these are regular and faithful. Cross-Country work will be continued until the snow falls for this is the only way we can hope to develop first class men for the half, mile, and two mile events. A series of handicap races will be held and in this way the development of experienced men will be more rapid. Some of these meets will be held before the winter comes on so every man is expected to remain faithful and continue in the work in order that he may be in good condition when the relay season opens a little later.

Last Tuesday, the executive board of the Girls' Athletic Association enjoyed a chicken supper at the home of Mrs. Kendrie.

Thursday evening, after a short business meeting, the members of Nowadays, adjourned to attend Dr. Tubbs' lecture on the European War.

Both the sublime and the ridiculous met last Friday evening at the Hallowe'en masquerade party, and each received a most cordial welcome and a right good time. The prizes for the best costumes were, however, reserved for Mr. Caverly, '17, Mr. Upham, '17, and Miss Smith, '16, who, in the opinion of all assembled, earned them most honorably.

The next frivolity for the girls will be in the form of the annual Children's Party to be given by the Y. W. C. A. in Rand Hall on this Saturday evening at 7.30 P.M.

Last Saturday evening, the peaceful quiet of Lewiston was somewhat disturbed by the not altogether unpleasant sounds of laughter, songs, and cheers as the girls of the Sophomore class drove through the streets in two great hayracks filled with straw. This ride was the prize awarded by Miss Bell to the class of 1918 for their success in the pay-up-dues contest held last year by the girls athletic association, and as such was doubly appreciated and enjoyed.

Don't forget the Literary Societies Friday night!

Miss Marjory Bradbury recently spent the day in Portland.

Miss Mary Cleaves and Miss Celia Smith spent last Sunday at Miss Smith's home in Hallowell.

Miss Mona Hodnett, president of the Bates Y. W. C. A., represented the Association and gave an address on "The Y. W. C. A. in the College" at the Semi-annual Convention of Congregational Churches held at Fryeburg October 27 and 28.

Misses Julia Farnsworth, Harlene Kane, Pauline Jameson, Gladys Logan and Annie Smith entertained guests here over last Sunday.

Miss Buswell and Miss Cutts were at home to the faculty ladies for an hour on Monday. afternoon, in order that they might meet Miss Cutts' guests, Mrs. and Miss Cutts and Mrs. and Miss Farnum.

Miss Genevieve Dunlap, '17, and Miss Ida Millay, '19, spent Sunday at their homes in Bowdoinham.

How about somebody giving our Cheerleader a little assistance in his feminine affairs so that we can have him with us when we march to the field?

Dr. Tubbs lectures in Augusta tomorrow afternoon.

The Senior class have elected officers for their annual, the Mirror, as follows: Editor-in-chief, H. J. Cloutman; Business Manager, W. Webster McCann; Social editor, Miss Harlene Kane; Athletic editors, Raymond Stillman, Miss Alice King; Personal editors, Dana M. Russell, W. M. McConnell, K. A. Bright, Miss Googins, Miss Marion Hutchins, Miss Hazel Mitchell; Artists, William Boyd, W. M. Scott, C. S. Rankin, Erland Townsend, Miss Gladys Mower, Miss Elmor Knowles, Miss Marguerite Girouard, Miss Agnes Thompson, Miss Amy Hayden.

At the weekly meeting of the Y. M. C. A. last evening, Rev. I. A. Bean of the Hammond street Methodist church addressed a large gathering of the boys.

After the Y. M. C. A. meeting last evening, the members of the Politics Club and the Military Science Club and some others of the students listened to a talk by Dr. Levermore, acting director, World Peace Foundation, on International Relations.

The Sophomores have begun the trials for their prize speaking division. The judges are Harold Buker, '16, Miss Agnes Bryant, '16, Miss Harriet Johnson, '16. There will be twelve selected from the class of about one hundred and twenty-five.

The Sophomore classroom debates begin in two weeks with three teams debating the question, Resolved, that the Federal Government should immediately provide for a more rapid annual increase in the navy. These in the first division are; affirmative, Miss Mansfield, Dyer, Quimby; negative, Miss Burr, Miss Drake, Spratt; second division; affirmative, Miss Tinker, Clifford, George; negative, Miss Leathers, Miss Phillips, Ken-
Colby Saturday! Now it isn’t a hopeless case—far from it—and there is always a chance to surprise people. Have you compared the Colby-Maine and the Bates-Maine scores. What we want is lots of speed flavored with an abundance of “pep.” We want a surprise just like the one that happened in Orono last Saturday. But that will come only if everyone gets a big lot of fight and puts it all into the four quarters of that game. And then every rooter must come out with the idea that he is going to be right with Cheerleader Cloutman every time he says the word, even if it takes out of him the last yell he has. The man who comes away from the game with half a yell left should pay the price.

The time seems to have come in the history of our college paper that we should consider seriously making the BATES STUDENT a real newspaper. Under our present conditions space is very limited. It has been the policy of the present board to present the news rather than the literary element of the college, circumstances making it practically impossible to do justice to both. If the change is made the advertising space will be increased and likewise the space for news will be greater. At present we are using a larger type than necessary for the newspaper. There are many lectures given on the campus which deserve a more detailed and complete report than can now be given. Our college games cannot be fully reported. A complete report of one football game would require nearly all the space available for athletics. Such are some of our problems. Shall we have a real newspaper at Bates?

The following extracts from a letter from Nicholas Andronis, Bates, 1914, now a student in the Medical Department of the University of Texas, describing the great storm which swept over Galveston in August, will be of interest to readers of the Student.

Galveston, Texas, September 2, 1915

To write even the slightest account of the storm would be impossible. It would require volumes to describe the confusion, fear and misery it caused. The newspapers have served their purpose, namely to give a general account, but they have not touched upon the individual cases, which are not few. A man told me yesterday that a week before the storm he was offered $30,000 for his cattle, and after the storm he was penniless. His farm, one of the best down the island, is nothing but a pile of sand. Such cases are many. The loss of life, fortunately was nothing as compared to that of the 1900 storm. The reason for this was the different conditions existing in the city at the time. The storm was more severe than that of 1900. In 1900 the city was at a lower level than it is now, the people were unprepared, and the buildings were not so strong as they are now. The storm in 1900 lasted only four hours; this one lasted fourteen hours. I cannot say what the city would be today if it had not had that wonderful structure, the sea-wall. As it was, we had from four to twelve feet of water in the city. The loss of life was only about 400 along the coast. In Galveston proper there were only fourteen lives lost, except those on boats and dredges in or about Galveston.
About the thirteenth of August the people were told that a severe storm was coming about the fifteenth. On Sunday, the fifteenth, people talked about the impending storm. Some took it seriously, others jokingly. On Sunday night, people were leaving their homes to seek places more firm and substantial. In the post-office there were about 4,000 people that night. I chose a place, not safer, but nearer home, the depot. Outside of a few signs of a storm, there was nothing serious that night or the next morning.

The next day, Monday, rumors of different natures spread about the city. Some said the storm was over, others that the worst was to come; others took no chances, nor did they speculate about it, but took every available means of conveyance and went to Houston and other places of safety. In the meantime the beach was thronged with people watching the raging sea and the cloudy sky.

In the afternoon, the wind became stronger, rain came, and it was evident that the storm was coming. A general exodus started, not for Houston or other places, for now there was no communication possible, but for safer and firmer buildings.

About five o'clock, the streets were transformed into a lake, store signs were blown away, electric wires were breaking down, and a general pandemonium began. The real storm was on. About seven o'clock the lights went out, and the city was left in total darkness. About five o'clock I waded to the Tremont Hotel, where I passed the night. No one slept that night. The wind reached its highest velocity about two o'clock Tuesday morning (estimated about 115 miles an hour;) rain was falling fast and hard, and two fires were raging in the city. I shall never forget the time when the lights went out, about seven o'clock. At that time most of the people were on the ground floor, which just then began to receive the salt water from the bay. When the lights went out, silence prevailed, not one word was spoken, but everybody, men, women and children began to march as in a solemn procession, to the higher stories of the building.

The next morning about five o'clock, Tuesday, the storm was over, but the streets were streams. The next problems that confronted the city were those of food, water, light and means of communication. Food was scarce, the water pipes were destroyed, the electric wires were thrown down, and the causeway was broken. As yet there are no trains coming to or leaving the city. (This letter was written seventeen days after the storm.) They expect to have train service by to-day or to-morrow. For water, we depend on the water-wagons of the city. There is a little water running through the pipes in some places, but of course it is not fit for drinking purposes. Light came on about two days ago, and car service began at the same time.

I don’t regret the fact that I went through the storm. It was a great experience.

The leaves have all been raked up from the campus. It looks fine. Now if we will all walk in the paths, it will be the best looking campus in Maine next spring.

Several Freshmen and one or two upper classmen have been noticed down in the city wearing sweaters. This practice is not a very good advertisement for Bates. There is quite a little comment along this line by the business men of the city.

Another big Mass Meeting to-night. It will be short and snappy. The idea is to keep that little spark of “fight” still burning, for the Colby game. We have been beaten twice, there probably are a good many excuses and alibies, but we are not interested in that. The Colby game is the one we are interested in now. There are men who have something to say about THIS game: George S. McCarty, Prof. Macaulay, Karl Bright, Fighting “Buck” Dewever, Coach Green, Coach Purinton.

Hallowe’en parties have been quite common the past week.

The Round Table at their next meeting will discuss Christianity and the present war. The speakers for the evening are: Prof. Baird, Dr. Britan, Prof. Carroll and Prof. Purinton.

The Student Council have been asked to consider with the faculty the matter of Soph-omones Posters. It is to be hoped that a plan satisfactory to everybody can be devised whereby it will appear unnecessary to paper the walls of our reception rooms, the store windows downtown and especially over in Auburn with paste and poster.

Several students are anxiously awaiting the day when Prof. Perkins shall take his turn at conducting chapel exercises.

If some of these notices of meetings contained a day and date, it would be much easier for a student to know what and when his engagements are.

Do you know that it will probably be impossible to send our Football captain to the Yale-Harvard game because the Harvard A. A. issues to only those teams on their schedule?

What would you say to marching down to the station next Friday morning and giving Capt. "Buck" and his men a rousing send off on their last trip of the season?

Here is the All-Star team picked by "Ump" Ennis at the close of the last Baseball season:
Crowell, Brown, P.
Wanamaker, Dartmouth, C.
Volk, Tufts, 1st B.
Stafford, Tufts, 2nd B.
MacDonald, Bates, SS.
Babington, Brown, 3rd B.
Kommers, Penn. State, L. F.
Toolan, Williams, C. F.
Murphy, Dartmouth, R. F.

The Football team are to be given one rousing big banquet at the close of the season. Do you want to have a share in it? Ask Pres. Stillman how.

Among the recent graduates attending the Bates-Bowdoin game were observed; Monte Moore, Percy Cobb, Ralph Cummings, Allan Mansfield, Carl Fuller, George Talbot and Thomas Blanchard.
