Dr. Adler Comes To Bates

Dr. Mortimer J. Adler, a New York social philosopher, is on his way to the campus of Bates College, a private liberal arts college in Maine. According to his book "The New Republic," Adler is known for his work on the social and political implications of the world wars.

Dr. Adler's visit is part of the Adams Lecture Series, which invites prominent thinkers and leaders to speak on a variety of topics. The series is named after George F. Adams, a former president of Bates College.

Adler's talk is expected to focus on the role of the intellectual in society, a theme that has been central to his work. He is known for his advocacy of a liberal education and for his efforts to bring intellectual life to bear on the challenges of the modern world.

The event is scheduled for Tuesday evening in the college's chapel, and is open to the public. Those interested in attending are encouraged to arrive early, as seating is limited.

For more information, please contact the Adams Lecture Series office at 207-790-1300.

Early Loses Put Bates on Short End of Long Record

By John Keleher '44

For all the triumphs of the first Bates black bear in the annual State Series, none was ever harder won than the first game. Against the Black Bears this year Bates was run into the ground by the New England two mile champions—Rutgers and Harvard. Bates lost both ends of the contest, 6-0 and 6-3, and was run into the ground by the Scarlet and the Crimson, respectively.

The Bates team is well balanced is the verdict of the meet. Carpenter won three events. Carpenter, Cumberland, and Campbell were the meet. Carpenter, Cumberland, and Campbell were the meet.
