Robinson Players Plan Unique Production

Show Offer Short Plays, Cuttings, Mar. 19-20 "Lincoln" Productions

It was announced early this week that the Bates Players, in cooperation with "Lincoln" Productions, will present the following plays in the Davis Music Hall, Wednesday, March 19, at 8:15, and Thursday, March 20, at 8:00. "Lincoln," which is based on the historical material of Mr. Jean A. Green of the University of Massachusetts, will be performed in both acts. The play, which has been described as a "living history" in the lawyer's own words, will be presented by the Bates Players and the cast of "Lincoln" Productions.

Meeting of the Northern New England College Broadcasting Network.

The statements made by the author of the novel "Lincoln" in the play are exactly the same as those made in his book. The play is a true and impartial account of the life of the great statesman, and is presented in such a way as to give the audience a vivid conception of the man and his times. The production is under the direction of Mr. A. D. Williams, who has been associated with the "Lincoln" Productions for many years. The play is a tribute to the memory of the great man, and is a fitting monument to his achievements.

Paintings, Sculptures, Beauty Library Rooms

By Ella Barrett '43

Most students think of the college library as the place where reference work is done. To many, the library is a place to study, to read books, and to work. But the library is also a place where people can find inspiration, beauty, and solace.

There are three floors in the library, each with its own unique collection of paintings and sculptures. The first floor features a beautiful collection of portraits, including a life-like portrait of the man who donated the library itself.

On the second floor, there is a wonderful collection of paintings, including works by some of the greatest artists of our time. The third floor is dedicated to sculptures, with a magnificent statue of Apollo at its center.

The library is not only a place for study, but also a place for reflection and enjoyment. So the next time you visit the library, take a moment to appreciate the beauty that surrounds you.

Scene Around

By Dorothy Holby '38

The scene was set on the rooftop of the main building. The sun was setting behind the mountains, casting a warm glow over the campus. The students were gathered around, chatting and laughing.

One of them, a tall, dark-haired boy, walked over to a group of friends and introduced himself. "Hi, I'm Tim. What's your name?"

"I'm Sarah," one of the girls replied. "And this is my brother, John."

"Nice to meet you," Tim said, shaking hands with John.

The conversation continued as the sun set, turning the sky into a canvas of orange and pink. The students talked about their classes, their dreams for the future, and their favorite memories of Bates.

As the night deepened, the stars began to twinkle in the sky. The friends sat together, watching the stars and reflecting on the meaning of life. It was a moment of peace and tranquility, a reminder of the beauty that can be found in the simple things.

New War Cabinet

By William Churchill '42

There have been changes in the new war cabinet. The new prime minister is Lord Beaverbrook, who was Minister of Aircraft Production. His government has been "streamlined" and "unified," and it is now the business of the Cabinet to make the U.K. a fighting power. There are seven members, most of whom have had a great deal of experience in the war effort.

The new government is not only a political body, but also a military and economic one. It is the job of the Cabinet to ensure that the country is prepared for war, and to make sure that the military has the resources it needs to win the war.

The new war cabinet is a strong and capable group of men, and it is likely that they will be able to lead the U.K. to victory. But there is still a long road ahead, and the work of the Cabinet is far from over.

Snowden Bid For State, ISU Titles

Tomorrow afternoon the varsity field will become the host of the ISU Track and Field meet, the most important competition of the season. The title will be awarded to the team with the highest number of points, and every effort will be made to ensure that the best of the boys and girls compete.

While the ISU championship is of great importance, the meet will be focused on the State Meet where the national record pool will be significant. In four miles there will be a larger number of entries, and the competition will be even more intense. The Terriers from Moline, from whom the meet was sponsored last year, is expected to make things hot for the State boys. The Terriers have dropped two times consecutively by the local team, and will not be satisfied with second again. They will be led by John D. Altenhag, who will also be expected from Frank, McMillan, Wright, Hill, and Stover. This meet will be one that everyone will want to attend, and the meet will be held on Saturday.

A performance of "Pyramus and Thisbe" will be presented by the school play.
