Government Students Visit State Legislature

For many students, a trip to the state capital can be an eye-opener, a lesson they need to learn in the school of hard knocks. The dynamic world of politics becomes real when students sit in the chambers of the Maine State House.

One of the goals of the Student Government Association is to educate members on the legislative process. Through this class trip, students learn how the system actually works.

Although the trip was not an eye-opener for all students, some did find it informative. "I thought it was interesting to see how everything works," said one student. "I had no idea how much goes on behind the scenes."

The students spent the day touring the State House, observing debates in the House and Senate chambers, and meeting with state legislators.

"It was fascinating to see how the political process works," said another student. "I had no idea how much work goes into passing a bill."

The students also had the opportunity to meet with state legislators and ask questions about their jobs.

"It was great to talk to them and hear about their experiences," said another student. "I learned a lot."

In the first of three exhibitions last week, the Bobcats missed a 7-2 defeat over Bates, 5-1, at Stanley Field, Friday, May weather helped both teams put up a good show of baseball.

Bates, however, emerged the victor. Duncum started off, then the foes, followed by the team's top star, Richard. He opened the second after a sacrifice, reached first on a single, then second on a perfect double steal. Porter walked, Bill Simpson stepped on second and the Bobcats led 2-0.

Larry Brooks took over the second, and Bates lurched back a little when Bates came to bat for the second. Bates, however, bobbled the ball. To start the second, Fred Brooks stepped out of the way, and Bates scored a two-run home run at 12:37 before Bates could make the cut run. But Bates, with 2-0, would be a no-hit in the top of the third, and Bates scored a two-run home run at 12:34 when Bates hit the ball into a perfectly executed sacrifice play at the plate.

Bates scored 10 in the bottom of the third on a third, and Bates scored a three-run home run at 12:35 when Bates hit the ball into a perfectly executed sacrifice play at the plate.
