Junior Class Meet At Chapel To Present Annual Ivy Day Program

Students Acclaim Ivy Hop A Huge Success

A good orchestra, a good crowd, good decorations, good speeches and, of course, good dance! This is the consensus of opinion heard about the annual Ivy Day Hop last Saturday night. The program was directed by George Billing, with traditional gowning, horning, and a horse-drawn carriage ride on the walks, and multiple- colored lights streaming over the ceiling. Ballrooms gave a festive air.

The highlight of the evening came following dinner, when Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Williams, President and Mrs. Decker, Professor and Mrs. White, and Professors and Mrs. Comstock, arrived in formal attire. A committee of the juniors, under the guidance of President Phillips, Mr. Mayor Decker and Mr. Mrs. Davis, directed the dance. The Decker victory, however, was indeed close, as the count was 1,493 to 1,002. That night, Edith Routier was the winner of the senior class, while the juniors elected Miss Patricia Handler, Alice Stone, and Roberta Sweetser for the senior class council, and Miss Edith Horn was head of the freshman class. A piano solo by Jane Blossom, Lila Kumpunen, and Madame A. M. Morse, along with the recital of Edward Glass and Miss Patricia Handler, provided the music.

Future Teachers Take Pledge of High Ideals

By William Perkins

“When I first came to Bates, there was no organization on campus for future teachers, says Bob Vail. Coming here to Bates, Vail knew that Bates had a core of people interested in becoming teachers. Most important of all however, is the fact that most of us were not yet sure. We realized that Doctor Pomeroy is a member of the Associated Press, the National Education Association, and has been many times the representative of the men and women. They are the representatives of the state and the school system at work. The FTA has a list of six definite goals:

(1) To develop among young people an appreciation of the profession of teaching.
(2) To acquaint teachers in training with the national and state education associations.
(3) To give teachers in training an understanding of the professional in a democratic way in the profession and the community.
(4) To interest the best young men and women in teaching as a career.
(5) To give students careful selection of persons untrained to schools, and subjects that have been in school.
(6) To study the development of education in the United States and the world, and to prepare for the future teachers in their knowledge of education.

The national Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers are the organizations of the men and women. They are the representatives of the state and the school system at work.

Spring athletic awards and intramural awards for the year were presented last night at a banquet given in the Student Union. President Phillips and the coaches were present. A list of recipients.

College Band Teams End Year; Lose to Colby

The Colby Bandsmen completed their season by losing to Tufts, Maine, and Clark. The last two games were State Series encounters, and the Bates Bandsters wound up in the cellar with a record of one win and five losses.

In the Bates Band's only win last fall, Coach Dicky Daycall, who is to concentrate on football this spring, did not lead the Bandsmen to any victories. The Bates Bandsters were largely composed of men who did not turn in their names because of other school commitments.

At one point during the season, the Bates Bandsters were seriously handicapped by the absence of their best trumpeter, who was taking a course in music at the State School. This absence, however, was not felt too much, as the Bates Bandsmen were more interested in football than music. The Bates Bandsters were not among the best of the college bands, but they did their best and won one game against the University of Maine.

Council Passes Report On New Frosh Rules

A new booklet of frosh rules was presented to the Student Council by its seven member committee yesterday. The Council approved the rules after several weeks' study of the subject. These rules will go into effect this fall, Adair stated, and make it mandatory for the freshmen to read them. The rules will be administered by the student body and the faculty, and will be based on previous rules and suggestions by the faculty. The rules are divided into three parts: rules for the freshmen, rules for the sophomores, and rules for the juniors and seniors. The rules for the freshmen are the most comprehensive, and include rules for grades, hours of study, hours of work, and hours of recreation. The rules for the sophomores are more detailed, and include rules for grades, hours of study, hours of work, and hours of recreation. The rules for the juniors and seniors are the least detailed, and include rules for grades, hours of study, hours of work, and hours of recreation. The rules are based on the previous rules and suggestions by the faculty, and are designed to keep the freshmen and sophomores on the straight and narrow, and to keep the juniors and seniors from getting out of hand.
