Freedom Train Program To Be Given In Chapel

The Freedom Train program to be presented at Bates on Wednesday, November 11, will feature a series of programs that are designed to educate and inform the campus community about the importance of the civil rights movement and the struggle for equality. The program will include lectures, discussions, and interactive activities that are open to all students, faculty, and staff. The event is sponsored by the Office of Diversity and Inclusion, and is part of the college's ongoing efforts to promote a culture of inclusivity and social justice. For more information, please contact the Office of Diversity and Inclusion at diversity@bates.edu.
Billias, Gold Run The Show

By Marilyn Bayes

Now that the summer is over and the campus is slowly settling into a new year, it's time for a new season and a new show. For the past few years, the Student Council has steadfastly maintained its reputation for excellence in putting on a lively and engaging show. The upcoming show promises to be no exception.

The show itself is titled "Billias, Gold Run The Show," and it is set to take the stage on November 3rd. The production is divided into two acts, with the first act focusing on the challenges faced by college students in balancing their social and academic lives, while the second act delves into the dynamics of campus life, exploring the power struggles and alliances that emerge.

The cast is led by a talented group of student actors, with performances from some of the brightest stars of the Bates drama scene. The show promises to be a hilarious and thought-provoking experience, with a message that resonates with students across the country.

The Student Council is excited to present this production, and we invite all members of the Bates community to come out and support the show. Doors open at 7:30 PM, and the show begins at 8 PM. Tickets are available at the door, and we encourage you to purchase them in advance to ensure your seat.

Don't miss out on this fantastic event! We hope to see you there.

StudentCollectGems, Elephants, BeerLabels

By Steve Linn

Gem stones, foreign shells, elephant tusks, pottery figures, conch, bird nests, and grizzly are among the many items casually collected, processed, and sold to instrument day from day to day by the more ardent of Stu-C student activists. This diversity of collections was revealed in a recent poll conducted by THE STUDENT.

One student has a collection of 30 perfume bottles. Another has an extensive collection of animal bones. The elephant collector has 386 and another aquatic life form lives in its glass, one of those many display in Paris.

One girl collected a few items in the field and was said to use them up and put salt on them. It all started when she found out that her and her sister and her friends collected a few items in the area.

Two of the students pulled out their collections, and there are a few others who look at the world is their own way. China and other areas are the joy of one. The first student had a glass playing card collection of over 100 pieces. The other students had a difference of 15 pieces, and one of these was a collection of 15 pipes, smoked.

Some collect items from different countries and places. This included 30 men and women who had only visited several places.

The primary objections to the Student Council's action were: 1. the fact that the students don't have to rebel. 2. The gathering of the freshmen and the administration are not in the spirit of defiance to the council. The ruling of the Student Council was merely for the purpose of investigation of a rumor and seems to be twofold. First, the gathering of the freshmen was not in the spirit of defiance to the council or the Rules Enforcement Committee. If this is true, why didn't the freshmen do it? Title Game Played Today; All-Star Team Revealed

British Hockey Coach Judges WAA Matches

Latest summary alternate Miss D. L. MacNaughton scored two goals at Bates hockey on Sunday afternoon, but the women's team was defeated by the University of New Hampshire, 4-3.

With the campus sports calendar back to normal, the President's Cup hockey meeting between Bates and the University of New Hampshire was played.

The game opened with the university team winning a 3-0 lead after the first 10 minutes. Bates, however, fought back in the second period, scoring three goals to tie the score at 3-3. In the third period, Bates scored again, taking the lead 4-3.

The game ended with Bates retaining the lead, winning 4-3 and securing the President's Cup trophy. Bates now occupies first place in the standings, having won both previous matches against the university.

The victory marks another milestone in Bates' successful sports season, with the team continuing to impress with their competitive spirit.

Don Connors in Old Guard Position

Don Connors has been a regular fixture at the Bates varsity tennis team for the past two years. His performance and dedication have earned him the respect of his teammates and coaches.

Connors has been a consistent player, with his steady approach and strategic gameplay constantly putting pressure on his opponents. His ability to adapt to different playing styles and his strong mental game have been key factors in his success.

Connors' dedication to the sport is evident both on and off the court. He is an active member of the Bates community and has contributed to various initiatives, making him an ideally suited candidate for the role of a team leader.

The position of the Old Guard is a significant honor, signifying the player's seniority and experience on the team. It is a recognition of Connors' contributions to the team and his ability to mentor younger players, ensuring a smooth transition for the upcoming seasons.
