On Friday, November 12 the Chase Hall Committee presents THE JOHN PAYNE BAND with guest star MISTRAL featuring RANDY ROOS in concert at 8 p.m. in the Chapel.

The John Payne Band, led by star multi-instrumentalist and composer John Payne, is said to be one of the most interesting new groups in today's contemporary music. With its roots in rock and blues and influences spanning many eras of jazz, the group has incorporated elements from the entire musical spectrum to present its distinctive brand of dynamic fusion music.

John Payne, who plays saxophones, clarinets and flutes, won his standout reputation from his inspired work on albums by Van Morrison and Bonnie Raitt. As a result of this work he won nominations in Playboy's prestigious Jazz & Pop Poll for both 1974 and 1975. Payne formed the quartet to pursue his own musical ideas and compositions; the lineup currently includes three other extraordinary musicians.

Louis, Levin, on piano, clarinet and EMS synthesizers, has been a vital force, both as a composer and player, since the band's formation. Rounding out the band are Scott Lee, who plays acoustic and electric bass, and Gerald Murphy, a drummer with an international reputation.

The John Payne Band has already released two exciting albums -- "Bedtime Stories" (Arista/Freedom), their debut album, and "Razor's Edge" (Arista). But as good as these albums are they don't compare to the exciting concerts given by the band.

Appearing with John Payne will be Mistral, featuring Randy Ross. Mistral is made up of the guitarist Randy Ross (formerly of Orchestra Luna), Ron Marcolian (tenor sax), Dewey Delley (bass) and Don Mulvaney (drums, also formerly of Orchestra Luna). The group performs virtually all original material, with an occasional standard or Coltrane piece thrown in. The group has been together since last November and has already gained acceptance in the Boston area.

Tickets are $2.00 Bates advance and $3.50 at the door. They will be available in diner lined and in the CSA office. This dynamic jazz presentation should not be missed!

Executive Comes to Bates

By MARGARET JORDAN

During the 1977 winter semester, Bates College, through Dean Carriage, is participating in the Business Executive in Residence Program. This program serves to "strengthen lines of communication between the top management of the life insurance business and the liberal arts community."

Beginning January 10 and continuing for three weeks our "Executive in Residence," Kenneth Nichols is scheduled to pursue a variety of activities. He will either be participating as a student or as a guest lecturer in many different classes and seminars. Through the Office of Career Counseling, he will be available for one-to-one contact with any students interested in a business career.

In addition to this, he will be conducting workshops, seminars and open lectures for any interested students in an attempt to dispel some of the myths concerning opportunities in the business world. Emphasis will be given to many different aspects of this area including the particular problems of women and minorities.

After all, Mr. Nichols will be easily accessible for students, faculty and extra-curricular organizations to discuss and to work on some of the major concerns relative to their areas of interest. One session with the Medical Arts Society dealing with National Health Insurance has been suggested.

Mr. Nichols is Senior Vice-

RA Sets Budget

By TIM LUNDERGAN

Monday night at 7:30 in Skelton Lounge, the Representative Assembly met to approve the Budget Committee recommendations for allocation of funds for extra-curricular organizations for the 1977-78 school year.

The Budget meeting first considered the large, well-established organizations' budgets under their own individual headings, while new groups and clubs and those with budgets under $500 came under the Representative Assembly's own budget allocation.

These latter groups, according to Charles Zelle, President of R.A. would be provided with more money next year from a special fund if and when they showed a marked increase in student participation and popularity.

These budget recommendations are expected to be approved by the Extra-curricular Activities Committee early next week. This group will hear the R.A. explanations for its decisions, plus any appeals by groups which feel they did not get a fair deal in the budget.

The trustees, after hearing the R.A. explanation of the EAC budget, will make the final decision on the student activities budget.

The recommendation granting the Mirror $6,300 was approved, as well as $450 to pay half of the debt incurred by previous yearbook staffs. The remainder of the debt will hopefully be paid by next year's staff, with the R.A. again providing funds for this purpose. The Mirror budget rose $300 over last year's sum.

The Outing Club was granted $5,225, a $100 increase to cover phone bills. Formerly the Outing Club had used the CSA phone, but student organizations are no longer allowed to use it.

The first real discussion centered on the Garnet. The budget committee favored allocation of $1,400, an increase of $175 over the 1976-77 budget. The Garnet, no longer taking money from a fund left over from a year when it did not publish, wants to go to press twice a year instead of only once. This would improve the quality of material submitted and the coherence of the organization, which might tend to disintegrate after publishing just one issue a year.

Opponents of the increase argued that many people did not read the Garnet, and that printing
Social events: spread the wealth

If it were anything but a simple timing mistake, it would be extremely upsetting to examine the busy schedule of social events planned for this weekend. There is a marvelous selection of social events to choose from this weekend: two major concerts, a movie, and Afro-Am’s Disco party. All are great ideas which we applaud. But do they all have to come on the same weekend? Not only a large collection of events on a single weekend, but they all fall on a weekend just before vacation when students have a lot of school work to catch up on.

Too many of one semester’s activities are bunched into too few weekends. Couldn’t we spread the wealth more evenly throughout the semester? It would be better to bunch programs on weekends in the early part of the semester when students have the least amount of school work to do.

Brian Fitzgerald, Co-ordinator of Student Activities appears to be very concerned with this problem.

At a recent Student Activities Advisory Committee meeting Brian brought this concern to the fore. In the discussion that followed, it was obvious that the leaders of student organizations were also concerned.

We realize all too well the difficulty in planning concerts and lectures, many of which must be set up a year in advance. There are also difficulties with late cancellations and last minute rescheduling.

A more equitable distribution of activities throughout the semester would probably help to insure good attendance.

An increased use of the services provided by Co-ordinator of Student Activities during the summer months to finalize programs and reschedule cancellations would be one positive step towards this goal.

Another suggested solution would be the formulation of an Executive Committee made up of leaders from all student organizations to which all proposed events would be brought for planning and scheduling.

Finally, we propose that elections for the leaders of organizations be held in the winter semester and that elected officers serve for the calendar year rather than the school year.

This proposal would allow those students who have the fall semester events to also be involved in the actualization of their ideas.

The Advisory Committee is discussing these suggestions as possible solutions to what is generally recognized as a problem characteristic of the fall semester. We are encouraged by their efforts.

Arts society fills void

Last night at the R.A. meeting there was much discussion over the advantages of giving the new Art Society $1,000 to continue their activities. Many felt that it is a redundant organization, and that it is “stepping on the toes” of well established campus organizations such as Chase Hall, Film Board, and C.A.

We feel that the Art Society is filling what has been a huge void on campus. While concerts, movies, lectures, and workshops may be presented by the older organizations, it seems ludicrous to complain that the activities sponsored by the Bates Arts Society are a duplication of efforts. More of these activities on campus will hardly hurt, and these larger organizations are doing all that they can handle.

Further, we highly approve of the Art Society’s efforts. They are offering a new and vibrant start to Bates life. Workshops, such as the weaving workshop, are highly successful, and provide an excellent way of bringing crafts to Bates.

The trip to Boston was well priced, well planned, and well advertised. Attempts to bring Bates to culture (if culture will not come to Bates) successfully expand this sort of horizon at Bates, just as the Outing Club expands its own sort of horizon.

Lengthy RA budget procedure

The procedure the Representative Assembly used in considering the student activities budget for 1977-78 was very interesting though a bit drawn out.

The budget was presented in the order of its suspected controversial nature, with the least controversial to be considered first.

The first controversy, however, arose on what seemed a sure-pass budget presented by The Garnet which included an increase to help fund two editions for the next year’s Garnet.

One R.A. member made the motion that $100 be cut from the Garnet’s budget, naming what seemed only an arbitrary figure. Debate then focused on why the Garnet should print two editions a year, some going so far as implying that they thought maybe the college didn’t need a literary magazine at all.

Eventually The Garnet’s budget was passed with no additions or subtractions; debate surrounding its consideration seemed healthy and useful.

The next big issue was the budget for Afro-Am. This organization asked that money be reinstated to their budget request to help fund a Sub Fresh Weekend for prospective black students.

The R.A. accepted this request, increasing Afro-Am’s budget by $200. We feel this program is a good idea and deserves funding.

However, we were surprised when the Assembly voted not to reinstate any of the $700 cut from the Film Board’s budget request of $3,700+ the same amount as this year.

This came after the R.A. had accepted the budgets of the Chase Hall Committee and the Campus Association which combined grant a total increase equaling $1,100.

When considering budgets it is inevitable that someone will get cut, however, it is unfortunate that the Campus Association, which had already received an increase in the budget Committee, also received an additional increase of $50 to fund a “Plant Clinic.”

The Student’s budget was pared down to the minimum, prior to the meeting, remaining the same as this year. A budget of $6,100 (not including $1,400 received from college for subscriptions) plan for student newspaper seems hardly unreasonable when compared to the Williams Record’s budget for 77/78 of $14,000.

Naturally, we supported the Publishing Association’s budget very strongly. It will include small salaries for the Editorial staff of this paper, which we feel is necessary to encourage continuity and professional development within the newspaper organization.

In the future, we suggest that the R.A. devote two evening meetings to consideration of the student activities budget, which is perhaps its most important responsibility.

The biggest problem Monday night was not the budget, but the length of the R.A. meeting itself.
On cultural studies

To The Editor:

I would like to thank the Student for publishing photographic evidence that "Cultural Studies is an action page," and at the same time suggest that the next photographer be given the more interesting assignment of catching Miriam Levering, newly appointed instructor in Cultural Studies and Religion. Such a photographer would provide confirming evidence that CS exists.

More importantly, an interview with Ms. Levering might suggest more than four years here. No one student. The reason no one has gotten into the psyche of a college activities, perhaps it is time that you a letter. Is the action page. So we wrote ourselves in with "What's Happening." We are scanning the paper, and, therefore, this is a mouthful. And that is a mouthful.

To The Editor:

We are sure that you are all thinking of our own Robert Rimmer as an exception to this rule, with his Harrod Experiment. Everyone knows that he was talking about Bates, but since he pretends that he isn't, let's play his little game, too. What the rest of the world doesn't know won't hurt it.

In order to help our "image" as an academic environment with a highly competitive atmosphere of admission, we decided to admit everything we know. This shouldn't take long, so please bear with us. First of all, there is the matter of the Lawrrence whiskey caisse. Poor job so far, campers. If you want to get into grad school, you are going to have to do better than this: Some cries are heard for more clues. All right, but they won't be easy. Look for something that you would ordinarily avoid, especially when you are driving a long way. Answer this riddle: "What did Jim tell his narcotics cohort before they went to the porno flick?" Now really, you can't claim that we are being hypocritical by using the same question two or three times in the paper, but so does the football team, debating team, WJR, editor of The Mirror, and the list goes on forever.

If one really wants to improve the quality of the newspaper why not throw Andrea Proctor? It seems to us that this would bring in qualified and motivated people to run the newspaper. If the R.A. is satisfied with the quality of the newspaper why pay them? As it stands now the P.A. board can't even make up their own minds. It states in the P.A. Constitution that one cannot receive salaries. An amendment can not even get passed to change this. The only possible explanation to us is that it would tie the newspaper to the people who sign their checks. Freedom of the press is an awful privilege. It is not a luxury, and it is not a duty to be paid for by the school.

The assistant editor also gets $150.00. Why can't we get some money for studying more than above average, cheering at football games, and not cutting classes for two weeks in a row? We feel it is a privilege to be the editor, a privilege that has no price tag.

Sincerely,

Paul DeLouis

Air, space, water, and the atmosphere. The air is a complex mixture of gases, the predominant component of which is nitrogen. Oxygen is also present in the atmosphere, along with smaller amounts of argon, carbon dioxide, neon, helium, and other gases. The atmosphere is a dynamic system, constantly undergoing changes due to solar radiation, wind, and other factors. It plays a crucial role in regulating the Earth's temperature, weather patterns, and climate. The atmosphere is also home to a diverse array of organisms, from bacteria and fungi to birds and insects. Understanding the atmospheric processes and their interactions with the Earth's surface is essential for predicting weather and climate, protecting human health, and managing natural resources. The atmosphere is constantly being disturbed by natural and human activities, leading to a wide range of environmental challenges, including air pollution, climate change, and biodiversity loss. It is crucial to monitor and study the atmosphere to better understand these processes and develop strategies to mitigate their impacts.
Burgeoning Barristers to hear Carignan speak

By TIM LUNDERGAN

Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. Dean of the College James Carignan will speak to the Burgeoning Barristers of Bates, B3, the recently formed organization for those interested in law. Carignan will discuss good and bad reasons for entering law school.

Peter Bridges, president of the B3, emphasized that this meeting in open to anyone, not just "hard-core" pre-law people. Non-members are encouraged to attend if they are even vaguely interested in considering a career in the field of law.

The purpose of the club is to help people who don't know what they want to do by exposing them to varied aspects of law, not just to aid those who have already decided on law school.

After Carignan's speech the meeting will turn to a discussion of possible future speakers, and possible topics.

The program will serve a ten-week internship during the summer of 1977. Beginning about mid-June, they will intern with a state, local, or federal agency in the South. During the winter, they will spend the Fall semester at either Alabama or Kentucky. All the fellows will attend the winter and spring quarters at Tem-nessee.

Candidates must be American citizens who will have completed a bachelor's degree by June, 1977. No specific major or area of study is required. Fellowships are awarded on the basis of high academic achievement and a real interest in pursuing a public administration career in the South.

Applications must be received by March 1, 1977. For information and applications write to: Colonel B. Rassowe, Jr., Ed-ucational Director, Southern Regional Training Program in Public Administration, Derrick 1, University, Alabama 35486.

Fasters remember hunger

World hunger will be the issue of the day on Wednesday, Novem-ber 17, as students are given the opportunity to involve them-selves in the annual pre-Thanks-giving fast. The WORLD HUN-GER FAST is designed to involve the participants on two fronts: first, by raising money for food development programs and, second, by creating an atmo-sphere of concern and knowledge about the world food crisis.

The fast actually begins Tues-day evening with participants having the option of fasting for any number of hours ending through Wednesday night, at which time a "break-fast" will be held in Chase Lounge. Sign-ups for the fast will begin tomorrow, Friday, November 12 in the dinline line.

The proceeds from the WORLD HUNGER FAST will go to OXFAM, an agency involved in supporting many self-help food development programs through-out the third world. OXFAM does not run these projects, but in order to be in business they must meet certain requirements. Only rarely is OXFAM involved in direct food relief programs.

For those who choose, there will be a collective "break-fast" Wednesday night at 9:00 p.m. in Chase Lounge. In the past the "break-fast" has been either a third world meal or a complete vegetarian meal.

The "break-fast" will also in-clude brief informal talks by Charles Gould, an expert on the world food problem from the University of Maine Extension Service, and by Peter Crysadale. Crysadale has been involved in studying the world economies of food for several years, and has come up with an interesting relationship between that and the current situation in Maine.

The way of education, the New World Coalition, which is sponsoring the fast, will have a display table in the Library. The table will include informative literature concerning the issue of food in today's world.

Through a fast at Bates last Spring, over $400 was raised by the nearly 500 participating stu-dents. For each meal missed by a student during a scheduled fast, the College allocates the estimat-ed cost of that portion to the fast fund. For the meal missed to be counted, each student involved must turn his or her college "i.d." card into the Concierge or to the CSA office before the scheduled opening of that meal.

It is too much to expect that you will really understand hunger by one day of fasting," said New World Coalition member Ian Horse, "but we hope that the WORLD HUNGER FAST will be a day of remembering that there is a hungry world."

By BRAD FULLER

Bates College debaters have been extremely successful this year at both, the varsity and novice levels, and the greater portion of the schedule is yet to come.

Last weekend, the sophomore team of Tom Connolley and Jim "Sterno" Veilleux competed against 110 teams from 27 states at Emory College in Atlanta, Georgia finishing 20th with an upset win over high-ranked Georgia and a close loss to Iowa. The close loss to Iowa kept them from being one of the three schools that qualified for the elimination rounds.

With a final record of 5-3 at the Emory tournament, the Bobcats were close behind two Harvard and one Dartmouth team, finishing fourth among New England schools. "This excellent showing in the Quiby Council's first national debate tournement complements well their early season showing in New England regional competitions and bodes good things for upcoming national tournaments," commented debate coach Tom Foley.

In the Vermont Novice Tournamen, the Bates team of Tony Derosby and John Stillman compiled an 8-0 record in the prelim-inary rounds. Although the

Two freshmen lost to Dartmouth in the finals. Coach Foley called their performance "outstanding." The Bates team of Cathy Klein and Nancy Levit was also successful at Vermont, with a 6-2 record after the opening rounds. The Bates women ultimately lost a tough. 2-1 decision to Dartmouth in the semi-finals.

Coach Foley feels that the debaters' fine performances this year, including an outstanding performance by Jim Veilleux, Dan Modes and Todd Robinson, and Tony Derosby at the M.I.T. Tournament earlier in the season, indicate that the Bates program is competitive with any in the East. He feels that the number of teams entered in each of the recent tournaments (22 teams from 13 schools at Vermont, 36 teams from 17 schools at West Point) is evidence of his debaters' ability.

The Bates debaters will have two more chances to show their speaking skills in national tournamen-tas at Georgetown and Wake Forest during the Thanksgiving recess. If the recent tournament results are any indication (13 trophies in 3 tournaments), it looks like the Quiby Council will continue their success.

Campus Association President Sandy Peterson has accepted the resignation of Jean Metzger, class of '78, who had been serving as Assistant Commissioner of Community Services. Metzger, appointed to the position last April, offered no explanation for her sudden decision to leave the CA, stating that her motives were "personal." As Assistant Commissioner this year, Metzger headed the

Ms. Metzger's departure leaves an important vacancy in the CA cabinet which must be filled as soon as possible. The position of Assistant Commissioner of Community Services is open to any Bates student who is NOT presently a senior.

Inquiries may be made by seeing Larry Block, or you may simply apply for the position in the CSA office - the deadline to sign up is November 19.

Indians are amazing:

By RICHARD ROTHMAN

"Americans are amazing. They're really hard working, ambitious, competitive - extreme- ly competitive." President Ford didn't say that. No, those are the words of someone from India who is looking at America objectively, he's a foreign student at Bates, sophomore Anil Shah.

"What really impressed me about America are the skyscrapers, bulldozers, hamburgers, and blonds," says Shah. "The skyscrapers symbolize ambition, the bulldozer is the power that this country has, hamburgers and fast food symbolize the moving, churning economy, and the blonds - I think they're lazy.

Like other foreign students, Anil came to Bates to experience a different culture. He feels that "the important thing in Western culture is that you're not tied down by hierarchy or social standing, but here you could be Howard Hughes' son, or a janitor's son. It doesn't matter, because people respect you for what you are as a person, not where you stand socially."

American culture allows me to develop myself as an individual because it's very independent and makes me stand on my own two feet. In America you get a sense of self respect from what you do, not from what your ancestors did. I like that.

After a year and a half in the U.S., many distinct characteristics of both America and Americans have become clear to Shah, especially in comparison to India. Some of what he's observed makes him see his home country in a better light.

In contrast to American dualism, Shah sees Indians as "a lot smarter, a lot more hospitable - it's a different kind of society. For instance, American society is geared to the young, and almost like a crime to grow old, ericans to be outwitted emotionally; they try not to show their emotions. For instance, I've never had an American sit in front of me and cry, even when they're really felt like doing it."

Another thing Anil has learned in America is "how valuable time is here. It really gives a definite structure to people's lives. It's good for a crazy kid like me to be structured, because it's a monstrous thing building up, and there's no way to let out the tension for some people till they explode."

"In college back home there's much less study, and a kid has a lot more free time, more than he knows what to do with. In comparison, Bates has much better academics, but along with academics a student must be with friends, move with them, do things with them, or else he crashes up. I see that happening here."

"The problem is, that there's a lot of importance on academic success, and it hardly gives you time to breathe, and go out and meet people. That's the concept. Because students tend to stay in cliques."

I never thought that we would come to find ourselves upon these rocks again. From this cut the listener feels a realistic comment on a present situation. "If it Doesn't Come Naturally, Leave It", possibly the most forceful cut, speaks again to a realistic vision but goes beyond that and speaks to the essence of the Year of the Cat. This essence appears to be the natural journey from the real world to fantasy and back again. Stewart does not dig himself into a realistic hole of commentary but, as we all do, finds the fantasy world an essential part of living. Stewart stands "On the Border" of reality and fantasy.

"The wind whips up the waves so loud The ghost moon sails among the clouds And turns the rifles into silver on the border." Indeed a surrealistic vision! His singing never hits hard but fits his lyrics coming upon the listener as a soft sunset flowing in pastels. "Broadway Hotel" and "Flying Sorcery" mark Stewart's influence, i.e., The Moody Blues and Fairport Convention. But his singing style takes him toward a uniqueness.

The last cut proves to be the best. With a subdued intensity that occasionally bursts forth through the sax work of Phil Kenzie, Steward endulges once more in the Bogart movie. He moves with the sense of a director approaching the fantasy world, "by the blue tiled walls near the market stalls! There's a hidden door..." Yet reality cannot be so easily escaped by walking through a door. "But the drumbeat strains of the night remain/So you have to stay on."

Musically the production is British sound at its best. The only weak point of the album may be its lack of intensity and drive. With the exception of "If it Doesn't Come Naturally, Leave It" all the cuts are similar in musical tone and mood. Perhaps the overall affect of this natural flow is what Stewart wants - it is the affect he gets. Music provides an escape for a lot of listeners and the journey Stewart provides is a refreshing escape without forgetting staring through the door. We all indulge in fantasies which come to be an essential part of living. "It's like a chord that rings and never dies/For infinity." Year of the Cat provides a refreshing listening experience, to say the least.

Bates loses Bowlid confrontation

By NILS BONDE-HENRIKSEN

Star running back Jim Soule rushed for 260 yards and two touchdowns to lead Bowlid to a 20-14 win over Bates at Garcelon field this Saturday. The senior tailback scored on jaunts of 62 and 2 yards and set up the other Bowlid score with runs of 24 and 11 yards. The second and third games were tense and exciting: long rallies and spectacular defensive plays were common throughout the match. Despite team work and an aggressive offensive effort, the Cats were defeated, 7-15, 3-15. Bates' third opponent of the season was Portland-Gorham. Fresh from the UCONN match the Cats were psyched and eager for a victory. After a sporadic start, the Bobcats were able to defeat POGO, 15-5, 15-4. The final match of the day pitted an exhausted Bates against the high- ly regarded University of Vermont. Bates was not able to generate any type of an offense and lost to UVM 2-15, 8-15. It is difficult to single out any one outstanding player, the entire day was a total team effort. With the State Tournament in a week Coach Crosby feels that because of the results against UCONN and the increasing level of play against Maine teams throughout the season, the Bobcats are in fine shape for the states.

Bates College will host the 1976 Intercollegiate Volleyball Tournament on November 12-13. The "B" division tournament gets underway Friday at 10:30. Teams from Portland, Augusta, Fort Kent, Unity and Ricket will participate in a round robin to determine the "B" division champ. The "A" division tournament gets underway at 10:30 on Saturday. Machias, Farmington, Orono, Presque Isle and Bates will compete for the "A" division crown. This is the first time that Bates has hosted the State Volleyball Tournament. It is also the last time you will be able to see the team in action this year. Make an effort to come and support your team and cheer them on to victory.

Bates Spikes U Maine

By PAT MADON

On Saturday, November 6, the Bates Volleyball team hosted the University of Maine at Augusta. Portland, the University of Vermont and the University of Connecticut. Bates' first opponent was Augusta; the Bobcats handled them easily, 15-2, 15-8. The second match against UCONN was one of the finest matches a team from Bates has ever seen. Bates applied an ear- ly lead in the first game and managed to hold on and defeat UCONN 15-10. The second and third matches were tense and exciting: long rallies and spectacular defensive plays were common throughout the match. Despite team work and an aggressive offensive effort, the Cats were defeated, 7-15, 3-15. Bates' third opponent of the game the Bobcats started to fight back. With Hugo Colasante at the helm Bates moved 80 yards in 13 plays to move within 7 points of the visitors. A third down pass to Dell'Erario at the Bates 33 kept the drive alive. After good runs by Pugatch and Dell'Erario, Colasante hit split end Kip Beach on the Bowlid 31. A second down pass to freshman receiver Marty Pugatch was good for 15 yards and a first down at the 11. Then freshman running back Tom Denegre took over, running the ball four times before scoring on a one yard plunge. The third quarter was dominated by Bates but to no avail. Neither team managed to score in the third quarter, but the Bobcats managed to mount a drive early in the fourth. The Bobcats moved down to the Bowlid 23 before an interception on fourth down gave the Polar Bears the ball on their own 15. The Polar Bears then used one of their two successful passes for the day to move the ball out to midfield. On third down Soule took over, moving the ball 46 yards to the 2 yard line. One play later, fullback Dave Seward, who rushed for 92 yards, took it in for the game winning points.

The Bobcats were in desperate trouble. Down by 14 points they could do nothing but watch as Bowlid moved the ball 42 yards to the Bates 15. The Bates defense kept their team in the game, stopping the Polar Bears on a fourth down pass from the 8 yard line. Again Colasante led his team on a long drive. This time it was 92 yards, capped by a 28 yard pass to Pugatch. Pugatch, who ran for 101 yards on the day, used a super effort to get into the end zone and put Bates within one play tying the game.

With 1:31 left in the game Bowlid took over when a Bates onside kick attempt failed. Once again the Bobcat defense held, stopping Seward on a fourth and one situation. The Bobcats had just one minute in which to do the impossible. As the final Bates pass fell to the ground it was all over and the Bobcats had lost all their chances of the CBB title and a winning season.

Booters Wait 'Til Next Year

By MARK REINHALTER

The Soccer Team ended its season on November 6 with a pair of close losses to top caliber teams. The losses left the Bobcats with a final record of 3-9. Last Wednesday Bates dropped a well played game to Bowlid by a score of 1-0. Saturday also found the Bobcats on the short end of things as Tufts University recorded a 2-0 victory at the Bobcats expense. The CBB title was at stake against the Polar Bears but Bates couldn't quite get off a strong performance. Bowlid, ranked highly in New England, always seems to inspire Bates soccer teams and this was no exception. Hard, fast, up and down action by both teams failed to produce a score until midway through the second half. Bowlid's Ed Quinlan scored a picture perfect goal off a header on a great individual effort for the games only score. Goalie Jim Hill played well in his first appearance since being injured but there was no stopping Quinlan as he found the upper left hand corner.

Saturdays contest against Tufts marked the last game in the Bobcats colors for eight seniors: Captain Jim Tonrey, Mike Cloutman, Fritz Foster, Claudio Iada, Steve McCarren, David Matties, Stan Pelli, and David Quinn all played their last soccer game for Bates, but Tufts failed to allow the Bobcats to make it a memorable occasion. With a strong wind and a tough, low sun as factors the Jumbos beat Bates 2-0. The Bobcats had the elements in their favor for the first half but, despite some good efforts they could not convert any shots into goals. Ten minutes into the second half Tufts went ahead when they scored on a loose ball following a corner kick. Play was even from there on in, with Tufts registering a second goal on a penalty shot with only a few minutes left in the game.

The Soccer Team's season is not a fair indication of the kind of year the soccer team had, however. A combination of bad luck, tough injuries, and some costly mistakes produced a losing record but there were no losing players. The squad, the Bobcats were in every game and spirit on the team never waned.
Field Hockey Tournament at Brown

By MARY PEASE

The Bates field hockey team spent three days at the EIAAW/U.SPHIA field hockey tournament at Brown University. Fifteen teams were represented from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island and New York. The tournament was double elimination until the team had to lose twice to be eliminated. Bates was seeded eighth.

Bates went off to a slow start early Thursday morning against Northeastern University who was seeded ninth. It was a close game, but Bates wasn't awake enough to take it. The Northeastern team put in two goals making the final score 2-0. Bates was then in the consolation round.

That afternoon the Bobcats played U.N.H. seeded fifteenth. Priscilla Wilde was back on the stick scoring three goals for Bates. Stacey Stover flicked in the fourth goal on a penalty stroke. The final score was 4-0. Bates was still alive.

Friday morning the Bates team took a trip to the casino. It was a little fuggy and misty as the bus travelled on the back roads. They finally pulled into a farm. The field was surrounded by woods and a stone wall. What a perfect, peaceful place for a game.

Bates broke their early morning losing streak and took Bridge-water 3-2. The game was tense and a close match, with Bates playing well and together. Renata Cosoby got the team going by scoring the first goal. Allyson Anderson followed suit and Pris-cilla Wilde put in the final touch. This Bates put in the semi-finals of the consolation round.

The tied Bates team played U.N.H. seeded second, in the afternoon. Bates lost to them in regular season play 3-1; this game didn't turn out too much differently. The first half UNH played right around Bates. UNH put in the first goal in the first minutes. The score at the half was 0-5. The exhausted Bates players were impressed that their opponents did well lost, relaxed and played great hockey in the second half.

UNH only scored one goal in the second half. Priscilla Wilde scored the one Bates goal on a beautiful loose effort. Her career record is 119 in four years.

UNH tied 0-0 with Bates. Bates had put in a good showing at the tournament.

UNH won the consolation finals on penetration time. They tied 0-0 with Brookport. Springfield College won the whole tournament in a beautiful, wide open game against Southeast Connecticut. The score was 2-0.

The Bates field hockey team had the best goal with a season record of 9-7-1.

RA sets budget for student activities

so many copies was a waste of money. This view was challeng-ed, and it was pointed out by John Howe that the main cost of printing lies in the setting up of the print itself, not in the paper it is printed upon. The clincher to this argument came when Kevin Ross pointed out that using this basis of judgement, they would have to re-visit the Student budget because not everyone reads the Student, the Mirror because not everyone picks up his copy, the WRJR because not everyone listens to WRJR - Charlie Zelle ended the discussion here. "I think the point has been made," he said. An attempt to cut the Gourmet budget by $100 was defeated.

The RA approved the WRJR fund of $4,455, a decrease of $100 from last year. This fund will be used to replace tape decks, pre-amps, and other equipment which is wearing down. New equipment, as opposed to these maintenance costs, would cost about $13,000.

The New World Coalition bud-get of $600, an increase of $100, was approved.

The Afro-American Society sought an increase in funds to encourage black enrollment at Bates and to provide information about Bates to potential black applicants. Transportation funds for an Afro-Am sponsored sub-fresh weekend and for a pamplift for black applicants had been disapproved by the Budget Com-mittee, not on their merits but on the applicability of student funds to areas which the committee felt to be the sphere of the Admis-sions office.

After prolonged discussion, several points emerged. Recruit-ment of blacks by Bates seemed ineffective. Attempts by the Afro-American Society to increase such enrollment, according to an Afro-Am spokesman, had been met by "wissy-wasby" administrative support. Providing transportation for black applicants and, indirect-ly, more blacks to the campus would benefit not just one group but everyone, bringing blacks and whites into closer contact.

A motion to provide $200 for a sub-fresh weekend was approved in the words of one R.A. member, with the hope that the Administration would "pick up the tab in the future if this 'one-shot deal' proves effective." The motion received solid support, the argu-men ters centering not on increasing black enrollment but on whether approval of funds not available to all students conflicted with R.A. guidelines. Letters to the Admissions Committee and the EAC will be sent explaining the R.A. position.

The total Afro-Am budget, including Dicos, plays, and films, amounted to $1,575.

The Campus Association bud-get of $10,835 passed with an additional $50 for a plant clinic, while banquet funds for Big Brother/Sister programs and a retreat for officers were curtailed.

The increase over last year amounted to about three hundred dollars.

The Chase Hall Committee reported that it was satisfied with its $16,215 budget, an increase of $900, the first raise in that fund in five years.

The Student reported that it was satisfied with its $6,100 allocation. The film Board received a cut of $275, down to $3,000 for this year. This cut, which the Board felt would limit their ability to provide films of cultural interest, was approved over their opposition.

Lively debate arose over the Publishing Association Budget, which included the payment of editor-in-chief $300. Business Editor $150 New Editor $150 These per semester payments, which outgoing editor John Howe supported, would encourage continuity in the staff. "It would encourage students to start at the bottom and work their way up the staff," he said. Rather than spend the particular dues of newspaper publish-ing by the time they became editors," The Publishing As-sociation, represented by Jon Derick, felt that by controlling the editor's pay they could prevent any "slant," which might arise in any given year.

Howe noted that editorial jobs take days to fill, and that it might be to the advantage of editors to be in line of time every week, and that the newspaper cannot be scheduled around class work. He also noted that most schools comparable to Bates have paid editors.

Over the objection that other students work hard for volunteer organizations without pay, the funds were approved by a six vote margin, with two abstentions.

The special R.A. funds were approved. Many members thought the Society for the Arts with $1,000 allocated, was receiv-ing too much money compared with other new groups, and that its function overlapped those of many other clubs. The response was that by large turnouts for its programs the Society had already proven itself, and that no one club had quite the same function as the Society for the Arts.

The other debate focused on Women's Awareness which lacked budget committee support because the committee felt that the group had not yet proven itself effective, having become disorganized several times in its seven year history. The budget committee proposal was approved after it was noted that Women's Awareness, like other groups, could draw on the special funds for groups which increase in popularity during the year.

other small group allocations were as follows:

The R.A. Support For the Innov-a-tive Ideas Fund was set at $1,950. $600 will be held in escrow in a Sinking and Investment Fund. This will help organizations experience financial difficulties due to inflation of fixed costs, such as printing, and to aid organizations threatened by bankruptcy.

At 11:00 o'clock, a bare quorum approved the budget, which totals $63,700, an increase over last year's budget of $4,730.
