Richard Nixon Receives First of Bates Student Communications Awards

1979, The Bates Student

On Monday, February 26, Richard Nixon was presented with The Bates Student Communications Award at his estate in San Clemente, California. Editor-in-chief of the Student, Robert Cohen, travelled to the west coast for the presentation. The award, honoring President Nixon for his accomplishments in the field of international communications, was the first of four such awards to be presented by the student newspaper, each honoring an individual who has excelled in a different area of communications. President Nixon was chosen to receive the award by a special committee appointed from among the staff members of the Student. Following is the text of the presentation speech:

On behalf of the THE BATES STUDENT, the student newspaper of Bates College in Lewiston, Maine, I am pleased and honored to present to you the Bates Student Communications Award. This annual award is presented to you, Richard Nixon, for your admirable efforts in the field of international communications. Beginning with your initial diplomatic missions to Asia and the Far East as Vice-President in 1963 you have, in the words of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower, "proven yourself an able and popular 'Ambassador' to our friends in many other parts of the world."

The courage displayed in Peru and Venezuela on your 1968 South American trip and the level-headedness and staunch determination of your 1979 trip to the Soviet Union and the ensuing "kitchen debate" serve as illustrations of the patriotism and diplomacy exhibited during your two terms in the vice-presidency.

During your tenure in this nation's highest office, your success in both strengthening ties with our allies and taking a stand of strength and honesty in negotiations with our potential adversaries must be recognized as the actions of one who held foremost the best interests of both the United States and the world. Lastly, your historic visits to the Soviet Union and to the People's Republic of China opened long-hindered channels of communication and created an atmosphere that will, hopefully, lead to eventual world peace and cooperation.

For your many efforts and successes in the field of international communications, you are to be commended. President Nixon accepted the award, an engraved Bates College plaque, and expressed his appreciation and pleasure at being chosen. Directly preceding and following the presentation, President Nixon was kind enough to talk informally with Mr. Cohen. Subjects discussed included Professor Fetter's upcoming China trip, President Nixon's personal advice for young people, Mexican-Americans, sports, the China/Russia situation in relation to the United States, and a variety of other topics. A tour of the President's office, rich in memorabilia from around the world, was also given. Richard Nixon was an amiable and hospitable host.

Bates College Endowment

By Kristen Anderson
Senior Reporter

Bates College has one of the smallest endowments of eleven of the northeast's comparable prestigious colleges. Throughout Bates history, it has always had a comparatively small endowment. Upon asking Jim Weston, Business Manager, about the reason for this, he said, "Probably every person involved with Bates' finances has a different theory as to why we have a small endowment. It is true, however, that through the years many Bates graduates have gone into professions such as teaching or the ministry (there used to be a divinity school here)." Whereas other private colleges were turning out doctors and lawyers, Bates was turning out people into professions commanding lower salaries. "The endowment is a sum of money which the college invests in various areas; the principal remains untouched, while the interest is used to help run the school. The student tuition is not enough money to keep the school in the black."

The endowment interest is used to help run the school. According to the president, the Bates' history, it has always had a prestige of the college. Throughout the years, many Bates graduates have gone into professional fields other than teaching or ministry.

Security Utilizing Every Resource Their Budget Allows

By Thomas Yannah

Bates College Security consists of Security Chief Chester Emmons, who works days, and four other security officers who work at night. The Security department also utilizes four watchers on campus. At night there are a minimum of four people on call.

Problems of security range from the protection of property to the protection of Bates residents and personnel. In past years the Bates college campus has had to deal with rape, theft, and vandalism.

The Bates Student, on February 27, spoke with Dean Mary Spence regarding the potential problem of rape and assault on the Bates College Campus. "Rape is not a potential problem," said Spence, "and the incidence of rape is low." When asked if the Bates College Security acted in such a way as to prevent possibilities of rape, Dean Spence replied, "Yes. Security has responded and is ready to respond to any case of rape." Said Spence, "Bates is located in a small urban area. We have to be conscious of this. Each student is responsible for their own welfare. Our campus security is very good. We prefer preventative measures rather than reactionary ones.

On Saturday evening January 27th a woman, employed by Bates College was walking on campus at 11:15 p.m. She became aware of a man in an automobile following her. After hurrying to nearby Rand Hall, on College St., the woman asked to use a telephone in order to call security. She reported: "I think a man in a tan car is trying to pick me up." Security arrived within 10 minutes at Rand Hall to take the woman's information and drive her home.

The Bates Student then contacted Chester Emmons, security chief at Bates College, regarding rape. "Rape is a potential problem anywhere that there are men," said Emmons. Because Bates is surrounded by the city, Emmons feels that the services are more readily available to Bates with regard to protection of the campus and the student population. "We have never had an actual rape but we have dealt with two or three attempted rapes." The security at Bates, in the event of a rape "would call in a trained police team." By the patrolling of the campus, Emmons believes that the college is safer. "We try to remain visible and alert." Commented a female off-campus resident, "Often Security will give me a ride home after dark.

The Student then questioned Emmons about theft on campus. "Our job is becoming increasingly difficult with the number of keys in circulation." Most of the theft, suggested Emmons, comes from within the dorm. "There is not much we can do in these cases." Campus residents, locked out of their dorms, need only call Concierge and maintenance is dispatched to unlock the door. There is no checking of identification. This proposes obvious security problems. With regard to the recent slashing of students' automobile tires in the campus parking lots, Emmons claimed that the security car does patrol the parking lots but "cannot protect all of the cars all of the time."

Few major problems have gone unattended upon security. Emmons said, "I think we do a good job with the budget we have to work with."

Still Comparatively Small

FRANKISH CENTER

To the Editor:

I realize that by now many Batesies are bored with hearing about the Freshman Center. Consequently, I feel obligated to respond to the letters printed in The Bates Student in the past two weeks. I agree with Ligon Scale in that I like living in the Freshman Center. I also agree with Ms. Proud when she stated that students must come completely and honestly advised regarding the nature of the fresh," blaming the incoming freshmen for being underminded. I feel that the freshmen ready to "make the best of it" while rooming there. Ms. Brown has overupperclassmen meeting freshman seems a little unrealistic to me. Many freshmen have gone out and participated in college (Continued on Page 12)

EPC.
To the Editor of The Bates Student:

I have attended several of the recent meetings at which the EPC proposal for a modified distribution requirement was discussed. I believe that the students who spoke up at these meetings are a reasonable sample, students objecting to the proposal, not because it is different from the existing set of requirements, but because it represents the concept of requirements of any kind. An objection to requirements generally stated is that they are an understandable reflex response, but I hope, after some reflection, the reflex nature of such objections will be replaced with some constructive alternatives.

Any attempt to define "a liberal education" will be unsatisfactory to at least half of the Bates student body. As I define such a concept it is an understanding of the nature of the world, the context of our human activities, and the values which guide our behavior. Mr. Bernard Carpenter, Treasurer and Vice President of Financial Affairs, announced on Tuesday that the college is looking forward to having the State of Maine conduct its P.E.T.s this spring. Carpenter went on to say that the college has been anxiously preparing for the state inspection and is trying to get up to speed on the requirements so that the college can pass the inspection. Carpenter also stated that smoke alarms have been installed in all of the buildings (except the battalion buildings) and that the college expects to have the installation completed by the end of the week.

The college has applied for a grant to help with the cost of installing smoke detectors in all of the buildings. The grant application is due by the end of the month, and the college hopes to receive funding to help with the installation.

The college has also been working on improving the safety of the campus. A new security system has been installed, and the college is in the process of hiring additional security staff.

Faculty Turnover Disclosed For Coming Term

by Laura Radack

The number of faculty members who have remained stable within the last few years and, following this trend, there is no expected change in numbers for the 1979-1980 academic year. At the present moment, sixteen faculty members will be leaving Bates after the end of this year.

The departure of these faculty members, however, is in question now, with the upcoming role of the Educational Policy Committee (EPC) report on updated graduation requirements. The request for expansion of a department comes under rough scrutiny by the administration.

There are several conditions which a department must meet to qualify for additional faculty members. In determining whether a department qualifies, a committee composed of the Dean of the Faculty and the three Division Chairmen of the faculty look into the kind of curriculum offered by the department. The purpose here is to make sure that all the basic fields of this department, essential to a good undergraduate education, are covered. Another very important aspect examined is the future of such needs. The committee must ask themselves if there will be any positive or negative trends concerning a particular field of interest. The amount of student interest and enrollment numbers are also important factors.

Due to the commotion which occurred as a result of the large sizes of classes such as Psychology 101 and Biology 153, Dean Straub has commented that popularity for a particular department does not necessarily qualify for a certain number. He emphasized that a department which needs additional faculty members to uphold a basic undergraduate education would be better qualified. The general education needs of the college must also be met. If hiring a new professor would meet certain needs, departmental expansion would be justified.

The committee makes recommendations to the President of the College according to priority needs once the examination of the overall needs is completed. If the president approves the expansion, the search is made within the college budget to see if it is feasible. If all is "okayed" then the search is in progress for possible candidates who go through a rigorous interview and testing procedure.

Departmental needs are updated every year. In the past, this process has occurred in October, but this year it will take place in the spring. For the first time, the Educational Policy Committee will involve itself in another Asian conflict, however. He also pointed out that the Chinese with whom he talked emphasized the fact that they considered the Taiwan question as one to themselves, that they did not want to go to war against their fellow countrymen, and that even if they did China lacked the ability to stage an amphibious invasion of the island.

The questions strayed from the subject of China to include the topics of health care and transportation in the U.S.

Unplanned Pregnancy: How To Deal With It

In the February 2nd issue of "The Bates Student" an article, "Birth Control: Facts and Fallacies," was published. The point was brought out that no method of contraception is 100% perfect, and that the choice for any form of birth control be truly effective, the basic procedures for its use must be followed to the letter. In almost any sexual liaison, pregnancy is a possibility.

What does a woman do if she suspects that she may be pregnant? The first and most important step is to confirm the pregnancy. This can be done at any time in the interval between the Bates Health Services. The test is a simple, quick urine test which should be done 14 days after the menstrual period should have begun. The test is best taken in the morning immediately after waking. If this is impossible, a urine sample should be taken then and refrigerated until it can be taken to the hospital lab as soon as possible.

Home pregnancy tests, as advertised on TV and in magazines, are not generally recommended. Although a positive test is theoretically a sensitive method usually confirms pregnancy, a negative result does not guarantee that a woman is not pregnant. The overall accuracy is questionable. Another interesting point is that marijuana and even some other medications can cause a false positive test result in hospital pregnancy tests.

Once a definite positive result has been obtained, a very serious decision needs to be reached. In medical terminology, there must be made whether or not to "terminate" the pregnancy. By no means should this decision be reached alone, according to the literature on the subject. The woman should have a consultation with her partner and with various other people who are available for counseling.

Counseling services are available through the Bates Health Services with either Dr. James, college gynecologist; Dr. Akerburg, psychiatrist; or Susan Kalma, nurse practitioner. In addition, there are several counseling agencies outside the Bates community. Some include: Life Quest, at 382 Sabattus St. in Lewiston; the Department of Human Services, at the location. After a routine physical examination, a local anesthetic is applied as the cervix is slowly dilated. A small plastic suction tube, which widens - three to ten millimeters or approximately one hour is a standard procedure.

Legal and physical exams following the abortion are highly recommended along with subsequent counseling. Additional information and counseling is available through the Bates Health Services. They are printed on all American sold cigarettes and, with increased awareness of the harm tobacco may have on smokers, a concern for the non-smoker who has been forced to breathe air thickened by burning cigarettes, has arisen.

Although the effects of tobacco smoke in the air on a non-smoker are difficult to define, there exists some evidence that the chemicals in the smoke of a burning cigarette can do more harm to the non-smoker as to the smoker. Many non-smokers suggest that second-hand smoke stings the throat and eyes, as well as smelling unpleasant. Recent laws concerning smoking in the workplace may or may not have smoke have been passed in the United States. All beaches and parks must have signs for smokers apart from sections for non-smokers.

Newly Acquired Beach Land Intended For "Living Laboratory"

Bates College has recently obtained a large tract of beach land located near Bath, Maine. The barrier beach, known as Seawall Beach is part of a tract of land adjacent to the larger area of "unspoiled" marsh and uplands which has been donated to the college by the Barshinger family. The land was donated to Bates by the St. John family.

This tract is itself fifteen miles south of Bath, located adjacent to Popham Beach State Park and between the Kennebec and Sheepscot Rivers which are tidal rivers. The land, including over 150 acres of salt marshes, is rich in rare biological specimens. As the potential danger to such plant and wildlife is great, the beach will be used for scientific and recreational purposes only.

The college plans to keep the area as a "living laboratory." President Reynolds promised that the land would be kept in "natural" state. It is hoped that students from Bates and other institutions can use the land to work on projects of (Continued on Page 12)

College Displays Concern For Non-Smokers

Cigarette smoking has been determined to be hazardous to the health of smokers by the Surgeon General of the United States and the American Medical Association. Similar warnings are printed on American cigarette packages, and a movement exists attempting to educate smokers regarding the dangers. Although a positive test then only if the pregnancy greatly threatens the woman's health. In the first three months of pregnancy, abortion is relatively simple procedure. After a routine physical

The following states essentially require up to one year in prison and/or fines of up to $1000:

Bates College campus. The library (save the Smoking

The move to protect the non-smoker is also reflected on the Bates campus. The college does not allow smoking in hospitals, courtrooms, and federal and state municipal buildings. Many establishments have followed suit, with some restaurants providing operate sections for smokers and non-smokers and some theaters and arenas discouraging smoking. Smoking on elevators is also prohibited.

The attempt to educate the smoker is also present on campus. The Health Services have made available literature on the effects of smoking and Nurse Practitioner Susan Kalma is researching the effects of the smoker in "quitting the habit." The Health Services also provide consultation with regard to smoking, and will aid students who are attempting to stop smoking.

There exist additional problems to living in a dorm and smoking. Some students have complained that there is a "smoke" that comes in near constant contact with cigarette fumes. A further problem is the second-hand smoke which people smoke is the chance of fire. Many students do not smoke cigarettes generally, with the increased knowledge concerning the damage a cigarette can do to one's health, people at Bates and outside seem more willing to answer "no" to the familiar question, "May I smoke?"

Does Bates adequately provide for handicapped students? Relatively few handicapped students apply to Bates. However, according to Admissions Director Bill Ellis, the school's policy is "considerate," and a student who has been pre-admitted to the applicant's handicap. Should the student be admitted to Bates, the school will make reasonable adjustments to meet the student's special needs. For example, the college has a special program for handicapped student who wishes to take a French course normally held on the third floor of Hubbard, the meeting place of that class would be switched to a more accessible

Treasurer Bernie Carpenter explained that the law does not require that all buildings on campus be provided with access ramps. Rather, it requires that of that would be prohibitive for a small college. However, the law does require that handicapped students must be expected to make a representative selection of experiences available at the campus. Here, therefore, at least some buildings need not be renovated and equipped for ramps or elsewhere. The college is also working on a number of ramps which can be installed to make access easier to various buildings around the campus should the need arise. The college also reviews the situation periodically in meetings (Continued on Page 12)

Nixon Commented that the Chinese officials are very good about sightseeing, wanting their guests to see all points of interest. He urged the students making the trip to make an effort, as one should in any totalitarian country, to communicate with the common man. Nixon described the average Chinese native as "enormously curious" and friendly. He added that the Chinese, regardless of occupation or education, are a people of great subtlety and dignity," very different from the "sloppies" of days past. The average man in China or Russia can Americans and always remembers his "first friend." It is important, according to Nixon, not to talk down one's self to the Chinese.

He also suggested visiting the Chinese universities. He described the students, only the best of whom are able to attend, as "very intelligent" and extremely hardworking. The Chinese system includes a comprehensive examination given to all students in sixth grade. Those who pass go on to higher education while those who fail move into laboring occupations. In this way, a screening process resembling that of China's enormous population, only the "best" of the students are concentrated in the educational system. The problem created by such a system may be realized when considering Winston Churchill, who was inefficient in math and was 15 years ago while campaigning for a candidate in Maine. Throughout our discussion, I was impressed by President Nixon's good humor and entertaining conversation. Following is a summary of his remarks:

President Nixon spoke at length regarding Professor Peter's upcoming trip to China. He prefaced his comments with a bit of humorous advice to those students travelling to China—one doesn't to worry about getting his Revenge. Nixon warned not to expect the exotic and interesting food that is prepared in Hong Kong and Bangkok, adding that Americans' conception of Chinese food is totally foreign in comparison to the actual cuisine. In reality, most Chinese do not even know what Chop Suey is. Excellent, clean, and nourishing food, far surpassing the days when dog meat was regularly prepared, may be expected. One may expect to eat a good deal of food, but neither lose nor gain weight. Although little meat and fish are served, the Chinese do "marvelous things with vegetables," according to Nixon. He concluded his discussion of cuisine mentioning that the Chinese cooks may be considered "the French of Asia" as a result of their many talents in food preparation.

At the 1969 meeting with the students, Nixon was not impressed by President Nixon's good humor and entertaining conversation. Following is a summary of his remarks:

He concluded his discussion of cuisine mentioning that the Chinese cooks may be considered "the French of Asia" as a result of their many talents in food preparation.
Nixon next brought up the use of college-age individuals of his personal advice for people in that age group. "I said urge the young people one day, ... (do..) broaden their education by travel." Though also mentioning that it is the time to read the books you'll never read when you're older," Nixon stressed travel's value as a primary goal, insisting to borrow the funds if necessary. He suggested Asia as the most interesting and worthwhile location for travel, stressing that we don't know everything about it and that Asia will possibly play the dominant role in the future." Europe was mentioned as a great experience, but much more like a vacation. In the words of the ex-President, "Asia is a different place."

The subject of China and the S.S.R. was briefly discussed. Nixon commented that if we are to have a chance for a peaceful world, the United States must play a part with both countries, according to the often expressed opinion about the benefits of the two Communist entities being at odds with each other. Nixon asserted that "setting one against the other" is not in the best interests of the United States and that a war between the Communist countries would most likely spread worldwide.

On the subject of sports, Nixon noted the recent U.S.R./American All-Stars hockey games, pointing out that this is the only season for the U.S.S. loss may be the team sport nature of hockey. He feels that a team like the Canadian black team, having traveled together for many years, may have beaten the Russians. When blacks in sports were mentioned, Nixon recognized the major contributions that blacks have made to all sports, with the exception of hockey—a humorous note considering recent loss. On a more serious note, he pointed out that blacks' success in sports is "good for (blacks) and ... good for sports." Nixon also expressed amazement at the current salaries being paid to sports figures. As an example, he mentioned the rise in golf purses from $10,000 to $250,000 in the past few years, also commenting that the increased money in sports "revolutionizes everything."

Nixon's most interesting comments were in reference to Mexican-Americans. He is of the opinion that "the Mexicans will soon pass the Italians" in their numerical minority status. Speaking primarily about California, Nixon labeled the immigrants as good, hard working people and expressed concern over the seeming ridiculous situation of having such a large number of people breaking the law by their mere presence in the United States. He feels that something must be worked out with the unions and the federal government so that these people, many of whom occupy jobs that would otherwise be vacant, may work in the United States legally.

President Nixon was extremely cooperative during the entirety of our conversation. His topical remarks and willingness to allow me to take notes were greatly appreciated. Also appreciated were an item by item description of the many novel moments in the San Clemente office, a tour of the office complex, and the courtesy and cooperation of President Nixon's entire staff.

NIXON — Richard Nixon autographing a copy of his memoirs. The president has signed approximately 35,000 of the books since its publication, including an initial 15,000 for the special edition. At one time, President Nixon was able to sign 400 copies an hour and still sign over 100 per week. President Nixon mentioned that the material collected for his memoirs, including 20,000 yellow legal pad sheets, was substantial enough to have produced a three volume work.
Several Colleges' Grade Distribution Statistics Compared

by Lori Borst

Recently there has been increasing interest in Bates' grade distribution, especially in comparison with other schools. Dean Carignan has compiled a survey of fourteen participating colleges marking the grade distribution at their respective schools for a four year period.

In comparing the number of A's given in the different schools, there is a broad range. Bates gave, on the average, 23% of their grades as A while other schools such as Colby, 53%, and Bowdoin, 52.5% gave much higher percentages. The percentages of B's also varied greatly from and to

Southside Johnny And The Asbury Jukes
To Appear At Bates

Southside Johnny and the Asbury Jukes will be appearing at Bates College Wednesday, March 15 in Alumni Gym.

Though they have been recording and touring only since 1975, the band has already received national recognition. This is not only because their home ground is Asbury Park, N.J., in legend the new rock Valhalla, but there is something magical at work. Call it conviction.

The band's lineup includes: lead singer and guitarist for Springsteen were born. It has over adversity, escaping the seaside slums, but there is a broken-life in a Chicago ghetto. Their original name was the Dubs, which they changed to the Asbury Jukes in 1971. The group's sound is based upon something deeper.

Cheap Trick: Rock 'n' Roll Band In Greatest Tradition

The Fools

Cheap Trick at Budokan (Recorded Live)

Punk rock hmmm...... no. Cheap Trick is not a punk rock band, though they started as one. Cheap Trick's musicianship and unique style of songwriting (masterminded by lead guitarist, Rick Nielsen) qualify the band as a fine rock 'n' roll band in the greatest tradition. As Rolling Stone has said: "This band may be the hope of rock..." The album "at Budakan" was recorded live during the band's tour of Japan. Unlike most live albums, it consists only of one record, recorded during the show, including the opening and encore songs. The album has ten cuts, none of which are "throwaways."

The familiar songs are there "Surrender," "I Want You To Want Me" and " Ain't That A Shame" being an awesome three in a row on the second side. The less familiar songs are also very strong, all delivered in Cheap Trick's auspicious, "controlled frenzy," metal heavy style. The energy level never falls during the concert and the rousing encore "Clock Strikes Ten" proves this band's quality.

Another impressive thing about this album is that all the songs are polished to show quality, without losing the fine edge of excitement that accompanies a live rock concert. This is not a rare achievement. The only factor which hurts this album a little is the tendency of Japanese recording engineers to use an University of Southern Maine, call Dow Natural Sciences Center 771-2578 or University of S. Black Arts Week Highlighted By Poets' Readings

by Melissa Weinstuch

Senior Reporter

Lectures by two black poets and a series of films highlighted Black Arts Week, sponsored by the Afro-American Society during February 5 through 10.

The purpose of Black Arts Week "was to give the campus a better awareness of black culture through black poets and black authors," said Benny Blanton, one of the Afro-Am members who played a major role in bringing the speakers to the Bates campus.

R.F. Miaz, a former prison inmate, read his poetry on February 8. Miaz was born in Alabama and dropped out of school at the age of 13 to live the street life in a Chicago ghetto. He was sentenced to five years in Leavenworth Prison for possession of marijuana. In his book, "Soul Work," Miaz wrote about serving that sentence, I resumed my views were moderate, leaving the Committee. Maiz also became interested in the literature and mathematics that I could get my hands on. Following his release from prison, Miaz became a honor student at the University of Kansas. Bates College, sharpening his comprehension skills. At this time he was also interested in the civil rights movement, and joined the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee. After leaving the Committee, Maiz became a "pamphleteer and self-appointed" black human rights. Maiz describes his views at this time as "not very popular view" with my colleagues. But I was very interested in the modern and moral and most of my colleagues preferred a more "neat and tidy" existence. We gave lip service to moderation. Following his lack of success as a liberal, Maiz became involved with drugs again and was sub-

The men's varsity basketball team has continued its spectacular form as they reeled off victories in their last six games. Their current winning streak has put them in the uppermost position in the New England College Basketball Conference. The Bobcats, with a solid defense and strong offensive play, have clearly dominated their opponents. The team's consistency has been lauded by many basketball enthusiasts.

In overtime. The win makes the Bobcats even more formidable. They have strengthened their hold on first place by scoring a decisive victory over the Roger Bill Celtics. The Bobcats have been the dominant team in the league, and their victory over the Celtics is a testament to their skills.

The win over Roger Bill also contributed to the Bobcats' lead in the league standings. They now have a 5-4 record, while the Celtics have a 3-6 record. The Bobcats' victory over the Celtics has put them in a strong position to qualify for the playoffs.

In the West Division, the standings are tight. Smith South, the defending champions, remain undefeated, with a perfect 10-0 record. Adams 2 and Milliken-Hedge are in second place with 6-4 records, while Smith Middle is in third place with a 5-5 record.

In conclusion, the Bobcats have started the season on a high note. Their strong performance has set the stage for a successful season. With their current form, they are likely to continue dominating the league and competing for the championship.
Whitehead, Massachusetts, in reference to his high school senior project - the building of a full-scale replica of the Wright Brothers' original 1903 airplane. The plane was built principally in Beverly and then moved to the home of Ted Walsh, who originated the idea after seeing a television program about the Wright Brothers during sophomore year at the Pingree School. During that year, Campbell and Ted researched the plane and obtained blueprints. They then researched the mental attitudes of the men and Campbell researched the airplane and its make-up. They continued into junior year when the cost for the project was first estimated to be $1,000, but later raised to $1,500.

The Boys had parents who helped them finish the project and were quite impressed when it was actually completed. Campbell described the work as being "mentally time consuming and takes lots of care." Reverend Robert Brian took the boys to the Wright Brothers Trophy Banquet in Washington, D.C. Campbell was a member of the National Pilot's Association. They were further honored when they were flown into a field in Milton, New Hampshire, where the entire school had assembled during a false fire drill staged to keep them from school work.

The sewing of the plane was scheduled for the week at the end of the project, but in fact took all summer. The completed plane was sold to the San Diego museum. General Electric also expressed interest in using it in its Centennial Celebration. The company sent Campbell to the Pingree Gym where the plane was receiving the final work before leaving touching stages. During the first week in September, Rohr industries, which does contract work for General Electric, filled the final stages of construction. The boys worked until midnight and early the next morning before General Electric came to pick up the plane. The plane was first brought to a plant in Lynn, Massachusetts, before travel to Rutland, Vermont. Aircraft Engine Group, in Hockessin, New Hampshire, then completed the plane. The Boys flew by private plane to Rutland and driven to Hockessin.

Women's Track Team Wins State Championship

The Bates women's track team walked away with first place at the state meet obtaining 55.5 points. First place went to Biddeford High School. The 2 relays with record breaking times in both. In the 4x400, Denna Lawrence, Donna Broadway, third and fourth, and in the 4x200, Allyn, Donna, and Thomas placed third and fourth. In the shot put, Ann Marie Caron, and Julie Thornton took third and fourth. Other events included working with numerous newspapers including the Portland Press Herald, the New York Times, the San Diego Mirrorhead, The North Shore Sunday and several other local newspapers. In fact, the project never ran coverage. Campbell lives in Smith North, right here at Bates College.

Lawrence took fourth. Donna Broadway took first in the long jump with a new record of 184.5" and Anderson placed third. Sue Simpson and Fred Marquis took second and third, and fourth in the 220. The Bobcats showed their strength in the track and field.

The Bobcats also had a meet versus Fitchburg St., who they competed against in the distance portion. Other events included working with numerous newspapers including the Portland Press Herald, the New York Times, the San Diego Mirrorhead, The North Shore Sunday and several other local newspapers. President To Present Tax Revolt Symposium

by John Aime

In an effort to make it easier for students to contact the student organizations on campus, Dean Brian Fitzgerald, Coordinator of Student Activities, is trying to make the second floor of Chase Hall a central point for the operations of clubs. He feels that if each club were represented in Chase Hall with a spool of office space, there would be more "access for the individual." This would mean "hiding" it in a new corner instead of being "hounded" by a more formal meeting with "fifty people sitting around the room."

As Dean Fitzgerald first came to Bates three years ago, he stated, "There was no physical presence on campus for most of the clubs. To contact one, they would have to go to an officer in his room, or contact the organization through the mail. With this in mind, the members would be easily accessible to those interested in the organization member. About 50 recognized student organizations on campus, however, there is a a spool of office space. Hall Fitzgerald has requested and received access to an additional floor area to be added to the Campus Association. This room will be turned into an all purpose room that can be used by any club. In this room is a micrograph machine and a spool of office space available for use by any club. One room may not sound like enough, however Dean Fitz-

Fitzgerald Envisions Chass Hall

With the number of recognized clubs doubling in the last seven years, Dean Fitzgerald says that there is a real need for more space, especially when one considers that "essentially the campus hasn't expanded," since the major renovations at the beginning of the decade. And the pressure is being felt on the second floor of Chase Hall, as elsewhere.
