Mideast

Speaker Talks on Iran

Suggesting that US culpability for some of the oppressive policies of the deposed Shah of Iran should be shared by the Carter administration in light of the current hostage crisis, American Friends Service Committee representative Joe Gerson added that only caution steps should be taken toward American-Iranian talks on the condition of the Shah himself. Gerson made his remarks at a lecture Tuesday night in Chase Lounge.

The American Friends Service Committee is a Quaker organization with headquarters in Philadelphia. It works on both the international and domestic level.

Poli Sci Prof Speaks Out on Iran

Quoted in the Lewiston Daily Sun Monday, Bates Political Science Professor Moong Yoi called for the immediate extradition of the Shah of Iran to bring an end to the Iranian hostage crisis. "The sooner he leaves, the better for the two countries," he was quoted as saying.

Gyi said that U.S. military action is undesirable unless the hostages are harmed in some way, and that the stubborness on both sides is uncalled for. The two countries just don't talk the same political language, Gyi stated, and American crises of breaches of international law are thus ineffective.

The Bates professor suggested that if the Shah is to be extradited, it could get more frightening and could inadvertently lead to undesirable killing and bloodshed... Are we willing to risk the lives of Americans for that one man?"

Gyi blamed violence in other Moslem countries on the hard line attitude of the United States which, he said, is "wholly unfair and inhumane toward the entire Moslem world."

Continued American intransigence, he said, "may worsen the already smoldering situation."

Lewiston Police Consult Bates Coach

by Diana Silver Assistant Editor

In order to determine the fairness of an agility test used by the Auburn Police Department, Physical Education Professor Gloria Crosby administered the test to female students and professors at Bates with varying ages and physical condition.

Police Department Chief Mador requested Mrs. Crosby's help in determining the fairness of the test in response to a sex discrimination suit filed that year by the police department against the city, currently being appealed by the plaintiffs.

Margarie Reynolds and Connie Hall, charged the Civil Service Commission and the Auburn Police Department with discriminating against women in their tests.

"Although the suit was filed regarding the oral and written tests, the agility test is something we wondered about. It wasn't challenging at all, but the women say they were discriminating, but I want to know if I'm wrong," stated Chief Mador.

The agility test has four parts. The candidate must run the 440' in 45 seconds, be able to jump a 180 lb. body 20 centimeters and carry a stretcher with a 18 lb. body on it 100 feet with the help of another person.

"The wall was a significant problem, because women have a lover center of gravity than men. I think that test should change. Most women could not do the wall," said Mador.

Mrs. Crosby stressed that the grading system of the test should change. Presently, the test is graded, pass/fail. Thus, if a candidate fails one part of the test, she has failed the whole test.

"The grading should be scaled with a range of acceptable times. The test should be made more flexible. The scale should be made up with fifteen seconds on either side of the present time," stated Ms. Crosby.

The written and oral test is administered by the Civil Service Commission. If a candidate fails the written and oral test, she may not take the agility test. This year, the Police Department has started issuing the agility test before the

(Continued from Page 2)

of the present time," stated Ms. Crosby.

Bates women help Lewiston P.D.

Photo by Jon Har

Spence Discusses Resignation: Sexism, Racism Are Issues

by Jon Marcus

Terming her resignation a protest against discrimination and racism at Bates, outgoing Associate Dean Mary Stewart Spence spoke to students and faculty about those issues on November 12.

At the time of her resignation, Spence cited "personal and professional reasons" for leaving the College. The resignation, announced October 22, becomes effective January 1, 1980.

In order to determine the fairness of the test used by the Auburn Police Department, Physical Education Professor Gloria Crosby administered the test to female students and professors at Bates with varying ages and physical condition.

The Bates Student

Landing of the evening with discussion of the Middle East conflict in general, Gerson cited five levels of dispute in the complex problem.

(Continued on Page 4)

Admissions Standards Examined

by Ethan Whilaker

On Wednesday, November 15, the Afro-American Society called a meeting of all interested parties to discuss the future of black enrollment at Bates. The discussion was well attended and appeared to be a "Who's Who at Bates." Among the members of the administration and faculty present were: Pres- ident Reynolds, Deans Reeves, Straw and Stewart, the entire admissions staff save one and Carol Taylor, an English professor specializing in the literature of the African-American people.

Vice President James began discussions by reading a letter expressing concern over Dean Spence's resignation and the recent decline in black enrollment at the College.

President Reynolds addressed the enrollment problem, making a point that black enrollment was given top priority. Reynolds stated that there was only one black student enrolled when he came to Bates in 1967 and thus Bates has improved to a certain degree. Yet Reynolds emphasized that a "college is not laid out like Ford Motor Company — that kind of management is inappropriate."

The College can not fill its ranks with so many blacks, so many whites, a certain percentage of women, etc. Reynolds elaborated that it would be "improper to recruit too hard," and "there may be a certain amount of ambivalence among the student body" that hinders the recruitment of minorities.

This Week

An Iran Update appears on Page 2.

Bates women...- The conclusion of "The State of the Arts at Bates," the Department of Theater and Rhetoric.

Next Week

Inside the Student next week:

- An in-depth interview with outgoing Associate Dean Mary Stewart Spence.

- A Lewiston company keeps up with the times...

- The Bates Lampoon (or so we've been told...)

- Feminism on campus: the story at Bates through the eyes of those who are becoming increasingly concerned about the issue, women students and faculty.

- The conclusion of "The State of the Arts at Bates," with interviews with department heads on the future of the arts and an update on the status of the new fine arts building.

Admissions Standards Examined

by Ethan Whilaker

On Wednesday, November 15, the Afro-American Society called a meeting of all interested parties to discuss the future of black enrollment at Bates. The discussion was well attended and appeared to be a "Who's Who at Bates." Among the members of the administration and faculty present were: President Reynolds, Deans Reeves, Straw and Stewart, the entire admissions staff save one and Carol Taylor, an English professor specializing in the literature of the African-American people.

Vice President James began discussions by reading a letter expressing concern over Dean Spence's resignation and the recent decline in black enrollment at the College. President Reynolds addressed the enrollment problem, making a point that black enrollment was given top priority. Reynolds stated that there was only one black student enrolled when he came to Bates in 1967 and thus Bates has improved to a certain degree. Yet Reynolds emphasized that a "college is not laid out like Ford Motor Company — that kind of management is inappropriate."

The College can not fill its ranks with so many blacks, so many whites, a certain percentage of women, etc. Reynolds elaborated that it would be "improper to recruit too hard," and "there may be a certain amount of ambivalence among the student body" that hinders the recruitment of minorities.

This Week

An Iran Update appears on Page 2.

This week in the Student:

- A review of the new sculpture exhibition at Treat Gallery.

- A report on Chip Carter's visit to Lewiston and the Bates Democratic Caucus.

- New York City through the eyes of a Bates student.

- A report on some of this year's short term courses, but why do their profits have to advertise?

- Bates women students and faculty help out the

Index

Arts and Entertainment... Page 9

Sports... Page 13

Dining: Lewiston... Page 2

Editorials... Page 10

Letters... Page 10

Music... Page 10

Politics... Page 5

Sports... Page 6

Theater... Page 5

Out... Page 2

World News Brief... Page 2

Chip Carter meets with students and faculty. Photo courtesy of J.W.S.
Irran Update: U.N. Council Meets Tomorrow

This Iran Update was compiled Thursday evening. The Student will continue to update the situation in future issues.

The Iranian situation seems to be in a temporary lull today after President Carter's harangue at New York's United Nations. The President stated that he was not influenced by anyone to grant asylum to the former shah, and that he does not regret that decision. Carter also insisted that he was not influenced by anyone to grant asylum to the former shah, and that he does not regret that decision.

Proposed continuing during a question and answer session, the President stated that no deadline for the return of hostages in Iran will be set and that he is not inclined to bring about a resolution to the problem peacefully. Carter never mentioned the possibility of military force in answer to reporters' questions in that area, but he did not deny that armed intervention is a viable alternative. If a peace agreement has not been reached by then, Carter said, "other options are open to us." He would prefer not to discuss these options at this time.

Meanwhile in Iran the country is the scene of Mahshoor, a huge, emotional Shiite religious period that has focused on the actions of the foreign minister who attended the meeting. The Islamic Republic is a viable alternative. If a peace agreement has not been reached by then, Carter said, "other options are open to us." He would prefer not to discuss these options at this time. Meanwhile in New York Dr. H. Joseph Burke has named the deposed shah; medical officials reported that the shah should be able to leave the embassy early next week, with Mecca as his probable destination.

Irran: written and oral test. No female candidate has ever passed the agility test while all men and women have passed the test. 24 women who attempted the test at Bates, 7 passed it. Generally, these women were significantly less than the other candidates. Four of the women were on the track team. The ages ranged between 18 and 29, between 4 feet 11 and 5 feet 11 and were 112 and 130 pounds. "I think that a preliminary system has been installed so that we can test for the first time the Mosque had been under our control," Sheik Minister, has declared. Sources have stated the Saudis have released part of the Mosque for public worship on Sunday. It was the first time the Mosque had been opened since it had been sealed.

THE KENNEDY CAMPAIGN has not yet caught up to the Carter-Mondale campaign which has been in progress since summer. Carter has not formally announced his candidacy for president, and to date his campaign has been a full-time staff of about 60 to 65 with 45 to 50 of them employees. Kennedy is currently working to complete his campaign staff.

• SATOIJAH KUOULLAIS ON MONDAY that America is now an Islamic country and at war with Iran. Sheik Khomeini declared that "in Mexico, according to Sheik Khomeini, "Every aspect of the agility test is at all discriminatory. If we believe the test should be scaled for it and the plan will be accepted by the committee of whether or not the creation of a special downtown district will go to referendum. The issue could be voted on by Lewiston residents in the June primary election.

According to Lewiston Tomor- row Executive Director Ralph Nodine if the program is installed they would most likely govern it.

The group is planning to meet once a month to discuss a particular country and write letters to the officials asking for the release of prisoners. The country is assigned to the chapter by the central office of Amnesty International as part of a worldwide effort to get those prisoners released.

"Amnesty International chapters all over the world will be organizing and writing letters to this single database for the entire country. We provide information and pamphlets to the state of any case in the countries and our members can write more meaningful letters," Jeff Dowling stated.

As part of their aim to educate the Bates students Dave Solely also plans to go on WURJ once a week to discuss the country of the month, in conjunction with the International Club. It is easy to feel safe, stable and secure at Bates, but we can't just shut our eyes, we've got to do some- thing about it," according to one of the chapter leaders, student Cindy Loveman.

"Amnesty International, a national organization for the freedom of political prisoner and the abolition of torture and the death penalty, has never before had a chapter on the Bates campus. The group, which has hir- ganized the chapter, Cindy Loveman, Jeff Dowling and Dave Solely began preparations this summer.

"It worked at the Amnesty International office in London when I was JVA last year. Dave was involved with them in Maine. In this summer we decided to contact the regional office and ask for a chapter here at Bates," said Miss Loveman.

The endangered whale will be the focus of a major presentation sponsored by the Campus Association next Monday night. Beginning at 7:30 p.m. in Chase Lounge two or- ganizations concerned with the plight of the whale will feature speakers who will address the whale's survival.

The nationally known Greenpeace Foundation will ad- dress the problem of the whaling industry and the efforts made to curb the destruction of these ani- mals. They will show a film which will also question efforts to prevent whale killing on the high seas.

Dated Whale from Bar Harbor will show slides of whales seen off the coast of Maine. In addition, Ms. Ellie Dorse from the New York Zoological Society will talk about the behavior of these animals. Ms. Dorse will also be giving a more personally oriented talk on the results of her work on Monday at 10 in Hirasawa Lounge. Friends of the Earth, also a conservation organi- zation, will be present with a vari- ety of publications and whale-related items.
Intramural Program Without Facilities

by Mary Terry
Staff Reporter

The intramural program at Bates is having problems obtaining both field and gym space to run the program. The sports program has grown markedly during the past few years and intramurals reflects that growth.

The problems which the intramural, as well as other sports programs, faces has recently been brought to the attention of the Bates community through a letter from the Representative Assembly. In an interview with John Gillespie, a member of the RA, the student discussed the goals of that letter.

"We (the RA) want to inform the student body of the problem," stated Gillespie "by putting the problems in the hands of those people that we want them to react to it." The RA does not condemn intercollegiate or club sports, but instead feel they have an important place at Bates. They only want the Bates community to recognize this problem and do something about it.

During the winter, intercollegiate teams would have use of the gym, I just wonder how many people are involved in the basketball programs in the gym. This semester the gym has been compounded this year by the earlier starting date of the basketball teams, according to Hatch. This was a necessary change in order to get the teams back for the start of the year. The gym at Bates has been in compliance with NCAA regulations.

During the winter, intercollegiate teams will have use of the gym, which opens at 6:00 a.m. daily; the gym remains open until 11:30 p.m. This allows the intramural program very little court time. According to Dave Trull, Director of Intramurals, this allotment of time will not allow every team to play weekly, until the end of the season. It has been suggested that teams might only play once a week.

Hatch did mention that the intramural program will have more court time since the month of March then previous. But according to intramural coordinators this is a difficult time to get full participation because of the heavy work load for many students.

At the present time there is a total of 100 fields and 14 courts available, excluding men and women students and students living in the dorms. Basketball is by far one of the most popular sports on campus. The intramural program has possible solutions to the many problems. Both the intercollegiate teams and the coaches of the intercollegiate teams would like to have more playing time in the gym. The necessity of this solution is becoming even more important as the season progresses. It is an absolute necessity for the teams to have use of the gym. I just don't know what to do about it," George Wigton, Mens Varsity Basketball coach, commented.

Historically, Bates has always had both a Varsity and JV Men's basketball team, with the exception of the season two years ago. At that time Wigton tried to combine both Varsity and JV but it was found an unsatisfactory move.

The elimination of the JV team has often been discussed as a partial solution to the problems. Yet, Wigton points out the JV squad has functional purposes. It allows more players to participate in an intercollegiate program and prepares players for level competition.

To the Editor:

This statement is concerned with the status of the intramural program at Bates. Intramural sports have grown considerably in number and in participants over the last few years. During that same period, however, they have had more and more problems in obtaining necessary field space and time to run their programs.

This fall intramural directors Dave Trull and Ann Keenan, had to struggle for field space and time with the Varsity and J.V. soccer, women's soccer, rugby and Freshman basketball. With the strong possibility of women's obtaining Varisty status next fall, this problem will only become worse.

In the Alumni Gymnasium, the bottleneck for time is even worse than outside. The women's varsity basketball team is starting earlier than last year, it will end later. Therefore intramural will have more time in the gym from early March on. However, according to Dave Trull, this additional time in March is not an equitable substitute for less time earlier. For example, in order to complete the same number of games for intramural basketball this year, people would have to play 3 games per week in mid to late March. The need for space here would rather play earlier in the semester when the workload is lighter, than play 3 games per week when the work crunch is on March.

Is it right for a large intramural program to have so little opportun to play? The Representative Assembly thinks that there should be a better way to more evenly and effectively allocate time and space for the whole month of January. Last year 364 individuals participated in the intercollegiate programs in the Alumni Gymnasium, 40 for the whole month of January. The use of the gym is not denied. The problem is that the roof is the glass dome. President T. Hedley Reynolds did assure the students that the roof is fixed and is safe and is inspected every year. Yet he and many others do feel the roof of the gym is glass and expensive to maintain. There are plans to renovate the roof and "make it into a giant solar collector." Reynolds stated, although a date has not yet been projected.

There has been the misconception that the roof is the glass dome. The roof would begin immediately after completion of the gym. There are no basketball courts in the new facility. According to President Reynolds, there are numbers whether students want basketball that much. The moneys of an eventual plan for Bates which might see a new basketball court in the old cage that is the only possibility has been never has been planned on.

The intramural program has a recreational one. Pat Smith expressed difficulty in finding a place to provide a site for many new intramural activities. She cited such sports as tennis, squash and racquet ball. Hatch is hopeful that the used rooftop facility will "give the Bates community the possibility to do things they have never done before." He feels if a kiddy doesn't come in with a good reputation he's given no chance to develop one.

At the present time Bates has use of the Armory for approximately 24 to 25 hours from December 1 to Christmas for intramurals. According to Hatch, this will help alleviate the space crunch somewhat but is not a real solution. The only cost to the college will be the department of men's services when they are necessary.

The use of the Rand gym is not a feasible possibility due to safety factors as well as space. In its present state it is not possible to use for basketball. Major renovation will be necessary before its use could be considered.

There was some fear by members of the Bates community that the roof was unsafe, but this does not appear to be true. The problem with the roof is the glass dome. President T. Hedley Reynolds did assure the students that the roof is fixed and is safe and is inspected every year. Yet he and many others do feel the roof of the gym is glass and expensive to maintain.

There are plans to renovate the roof and "make it into a giant solar collector." Reynolds stated, although a date has not yet been projected.

The intramural program has a recreational one. Pat Smith expressed difficulty in finding a place to provide a site for many new intramural activities. She cited such sports as tennis, squash and racquet ball. Hatch is hopeful that the used rooftop facility will "give the Bates community the possibility to do things they have never done before." He feels if a kiddy doesn't come in with a good reputation he's given no chance to develop one.

At the present time Bates has use of the Armory for approximately 24 to 25 hours from December 1 to Christmas for intramurals. According to Hatch, this will help alleviate the space crunch somewhat but is not a real solution. The only cost to the college will be the department of men's services when they are necessary.

The use of the Rand gym is not a feasible possibility due to safety factors as well as space. In its present state it is not possible to use for basketball. Major renovation will be necessary before its use could be considered.

There was some fear by members of the Bates community that the roof was unsafe, but this does not appear to be true. The problem with the roof is the glass dome. President T. Hedley Reynolds did assure the students that the roof is fixed and is safe and is inspected every year. Yet he and many others do feel the roof of the gym is glass and expensive to maintain.

There are plans to renovate the roof and "make it into a giant solar collector." Reynolds stated, although a date has not yet been projected.

The intramural program has a recreational one. Pat Smith expressed difficulty in finding a place to provide a site for many new intramural activities. She cited such sports as tennis, squash and racquet ball. Hatch is hopeful that the used rooftop facility will "give the Bates community the possibility to do things they have never done before." He feels if a kiddy doesn't come in with a good reputation he's given no chance to develop one.

At the present time Bates has use of the Armory for approximately 24 to 25 hours from December 1 to Christmas for intramurals. According to Hatch, this will help alleviate the space crunch somewhat but is not a real solution. The only cost to the college will be the department of men's services when they are necessary.

The use of the Rand gym is not a feasible possibility due to safety factors as well as space. In its present state it is not possible to use for basketball. Major renovation will be necessary before its use could be considered.

There was some fear by members of the Bates community that the roof was unsafe, but this does not appear to be true. The problem with the roof is the glass dome. President T. Hedley Reynolds did assure the students that the roof is fixed and is safe and is inspected every year. Yet he and many others do feel the roof of the gym is glass and expensive to maintain.

There are plans to renovate the roof and "make it into a giant solar collector." Reynolds stated, although a date has not yet been projected.

The intramural program has a recreational one. Pat Smith expressed difficulty in finding a place to provide a site for many new intramural activities. She cited such sports as tennis, squash and racquet ball. Hatch is hopeful that the used rooftop facility will "give the Bates community the possibility to do things they have never done before." He feels if a kiddy doesn't come in with a good reputation he's given no chance to develop one.

At the present time Bates has use of the Armory for approximately 24 to 25 hours from December 1 to Christmas for intramurals. According to Hatch, this will help alleviate the space crunch somewhat but is not a real solution. The only cost to the college will be the department of men's services when they are necessary.

The use of the Rand gym is not a feasible possibility due to safety factors as well as space. In its present state it is not possible to use for basketball. Major renovation will be necessary before its use could be considered.
Spence Resignation

(Continued from Page 3) nor in an ensuing interview in the Student did Spence ever mention racism as factors in her decision to leave, though she did comment that "there have been rewarding and frustrating aspects" during her two years as a dean. The resignation, held in Parker Lower Lounge, was billed as "a significant event for Bates" and was well attended, Spence said. She responded to a question answering session with a brief statement regarding her impressions, specifics of admissions and hiring practices at the College.

Spence termed as "inexcusable" the low presence of minorities as among the student body and the faculty. "I saw my leaving as critical," she continued, "because when I leave, there is then the reality of tokenism." Later, to a comment that "there have been many women in these times." Spence replied: "I felt I could lobby for more. It didn't quite work in the actual funding of needy students, but all 1,470 students, faculty and campus women's continued effort on the part of students at Bates.

Admissions

(Continued from Page 1) But the President expressed confidence in Dean Hiss to step up the Minority Weekend efforts. Reynolds also expressed concern over the lack of minority faculty as well as the relatively few female instructors as a problem that had attracted a great number of Negroes to the campus, but he was not in a position to reveal the details of it. He pointed out that the increased recruitment of females and minorities was a prime goal of his administration.

The discussion then evolved into one which focused on the results of the Dean of Admissions William Hiss's efforts. Gerson answered: Hiss stated that financial aid and scholarships were not a problem and there was little money for special recruitment or the actual funding of needy students. In fact it was the contention of Hiss that no minority student had ever been turned away from Bates because of need. Hiss also discussed some of the errors made during the past by the office of admissions officers who should be selecting the American Society has rarely been asked to participate in recruiting activities. Second, the Minority Weekend was not held last year, partially due to former admissions officer Dean Marcus Bruce who has since been transferred. Fi- nally, the admissions office pur- chased many recruiting techniques that have already been used by the Student Search.

Differences within the Arab world account for a fourth level of conflict, as many of the countries exhibit different cultural, political, and economic systems and traditional styles of doing business. Finally, the economic and political interests of the world's super- powers, he said, provide yet another complicated problem in the Middle East. Gerson, who recently returned from a fact-finding trip to the Middle East, then went on to explain the U.S. role in the Middle Eastern conflict. Though the U.S. has been a current U.S. policy, he said, is "bilateral relations" — different policies for different countries. Even Iraq is being courted by Car- ter and may, Gerson said, attack some Iranian islands "to sort of punish Iran while the US keeps its fingers clean.

Spence concentrated much of her remarks around her feeling that a minority presence is an important element in a total academic or educational experience. Learning from a broad perspective is important, she said. And a lack of minor- ity models reinforces stereotypes. "When we look at the issues of sexism and racism, let us look at how we relate together as one model." She added that "the cur- riculum itself is biased and sexist. Take American history — there are major omissions in terms of sever- al perspectives."

Asked how she would ac- complish her recruiting aims, Spence went on, "it has to involve physical energy and time resources. Less time and money should be spent on a particular plan of action."

However, she qualified this by specifying that "the issue of rec- ruitment of minority students and faculty at this college is not totally an admissions concern. It's also a concern of the students, faculty and administration to look at the reality of tokenism."

"Initially it has to be a priority. In that capacity you're there to remind folk. I was not unaware that that was a reality at this in- stitution, but the student body probably is true anywhere in these days and times."

"I perceived that to be an important reason for my coming here," she said. "I want to do it for more. It didn't quite work in terms of time spent."

(Continued from Page 1)

Another student, who had

For an Entertaining Evening of Adult Entertainment

Rhetoric 370 Presents

A Night of One-Act Plays

December 7, 8:00

in The Schaeffer Theatre

Spence Resignation

(Continued from Page 3)

October that questions Spence was asked queried whether her departure would be more than just an occasion to bring about change than her con- tinuance in the position. To this she replied in the affirmative and

Youthgrant Expanded

The National Endowment for the Humanities has expanded Youthgrants program will offer more than 100 awards towards motivation and enrichment of students and other young people in their teens and early twenties to pursue independent projects in the humanities. The deadline for submission of completed applications has been extended to tomorrow, December 1, the only deadline during this academic year. Application forms should be on file in college offices, which deal with federal grants.

The awards range up to $2,500 to individuals and up to $10,000 to groups. They are in- tended to cover those who are between the ages of 15 and 25 and who have not completed academic or professional training. While the program supports projects, scholarship support or financial aid for thesis work, undergraduate work which is not associated with a degree is supported. Students the National Endowment for the Humanities has stated that the grants include such subject areas as history, ethnic studies, folklore, anthropology, linguistics, and the visual arts.

Youthgrants have been used by young people who can carry out a wide variety of projects such as exhibits of documentary photographs, prints of a person's local history, and films on ana- lytical subjects.
Volleyball Places Second in State

The Bobcats met their toughest competition of the day in the finals against UMO. Bates had defeated UMO earlier in the season for the first time. Later in the season they lost a close match to the Bears, but the teams were evenly matched. In this game, Bates suffered an injury which forced the team to break their concentration. This game gave UMO the advantage and Bates lost the initial drive and fought too hard to win. Despite both teams, 10-11 and 15-7. This placed Bates UMO first in the State and left the Bates team to face UMF in the consolation match. Both teams had no problems beating UMF, 10-9 and 15-10. This match placed Bates second in the State in Volleyball.

At the State Tournament, the first and second All-State Volleyball Teams were announced. Each team was made up of six players. Bates was well represented with two out of the six players. Sue MacDougall and Sophomore Ellen Wilkinson were picked for their first team. Junior Mindy Hampen to the second. Throughout the season the coaches voted on the outstanding players of each match. The 12 players receiving the most votes were selected to the two All-State Teams.

Mac on Sports

Fact: A school of Bates' size needs two gyms. This fact is proven year after year as the team has to sacrifice something at Bates as going over the gym for a pick up game of 3 on 3, unless you areburning calories. The noon hour, when many of us have to eat lunch, attend classes, or get lab out in their home opener. I'll see you at Tufts tonight by beating Husson College, 7:00 p.m. UMF with scores 15-2 and 15-5.

The Bobcats, under the coaching of Ma. Gloria Crosby and led by senior tri-captains JoAnne Braniby, Kippi Fagerlund and Anna Schroeder, ran a standard formation which proved successful in both offense and defense. Spikers Sue MacDougall and Ellen Wilkinson headed the team on offense aided by Joanne Brandybuck and Alison MacDonald. Anna Schroeder and Mindy Hansen shared the setter position and Kippi Fagerlund saw much action in both positions. The team was rounded out by Monica Holmes, Suzanne Alley, Carolyn Evans, Jeannie Grant and Larissa Marston.

Their 25-7 record qualified Bates for post season play. Bates participated in the state finals the weekend of November 9th. They entered the tournament seeded 1st out of 16 teams, ahead of rivals UMO and UMF, who were seeded second and third respectively.

The Bobcats were unable to crack the defense of their opponents. Bates did not gain their initial drive and fought too hard to win. Bates had no problems beating UMF, 10-9 and 15-10. This match placed Bates second in the State in Volleyball.

Time Out

Book Highlights Athletics

by Mary Terp

Richard Denison, Sports Information Director, organized and wrote the 1978-79 Bates College Intercollegiate Athletics booklet. Hired last spring, Denison has assumed full responsibility for the booklet by early January. The booklet has been published regularly for the past seven years. The publication is sent to various high schools and students who are interested in the intercollegiate programs Bates offers. Designed to show the importance of athletics at Bates, the booklet describes the various programs. Denison hopes the booklet will demonstrate to both students and parents that Bates is a school for students and athletics second.

Denison wrote all of the copy which accompanies the photos selected and printed on the inside of the back cover, which was prepared by the Alumni Office. He also did the format and layout of the publication.

When asked if he encountered any problems Denison replied that his only real problems were "not knowing Bates athletics and don't play." Both of these were due to the fact he was new on campus and didn't know many of his associates. Despite these two hardships Denison completed the thirty-four page publication incorporating minor changes from past booklets.

The format follows the basic pattern of previous years. The cover is no longer a collage but rather individual color photographs. The color of the cover has also been darkened to a more garnet shade of red. Denison also used larger photos inside the booklet to display each sport to its best advantage.

Denison is already at work on the upcoming edition of the booklet. He has been working on a new set of color photographs of the coaches as well as a larger photo bank of each sport, especially indoor sports. In the third edition of the booklet there have been four individual photos available to the editor. Denison hopes to solve this problem by using special developing techniques for indoor sports.

Denison has received favorable comments concerning the new publication and hopes to improve upon his work in the 1979-80 booklet.

Gumbel to Speak

NBC Television sportscaster Bryant Gumbel will deliver the keynote address when Bates College athletes and coaches of the past and present attend a fund raising dinner, December 7, at Boston's Park Plaza Hotel.

Proceeds from the night of nostalgia will benefit Bates' new $4.7million athletic facility which, when completed in 1980, will be one of the most complete sporting complexes in New England.

The event is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. Addressing the group in addition to Gumbel will be President Thomas L. Herbst, Athletic Director Robert W. Hatch, Dean of Admissions Ernest C. Linholm and Assistant Dean of Admissions Karen Harris.

Peter Post, executive with the greater Boston YMCA, will deliver the keynote address when Bates College athletes and coaches of the past and present attend a fund raising dinner, December 7, at Boston's Park Plaza Hotel.

Proceeds from the night of nostalgia will benefit Bates' new $4.7million athletic facility which, when completed in 1980, will be one of the most complete sporting complexes in New England.

The event is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. Addressing the group in addition to Gumbel will be President Thomas L. Herbst, Athletic Director Robert W. Hatch, Dean of Admissions Ernest C. Linholm and Assistant Dean of Admissions Karen Harris.

Gumbel to Speak

NBC Television sportscaster Bryant Gumbel will deliver the keynote address when Bates College athletes and coaches of the past and present attend a fund raising dinner, December 7, at Boston's Park Plaza Hotel.

Proceeds from the night of nostalgia will benefit Bates' new $4.7million athletic facility which, when completed in 1980, will be one of the most complete sporting complexes in New England.

The event is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. Addressing the group in addition to Gumbel will be President Thomas L. Herbst, Athletic Director Robert W. Hatch, Dean of Admissions Ernest C. Linholm and Assistant Dean of Admissions Karen Harris.

Peter Post, executive with the greater Boston YMCA, will deliver the keynote address when Bates College athletes and coaches of the past and present attend a fund raising dinner, December 7, at Boston's Park Plaza Hotel.

Proceeds from the night of nostalgia will benefit Bates' new $4.7million athletic facility which, when completed in 1980, will be one of the most complete sporting complexes in New England.

The event is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. Addressing the group in addition to Gumbel will be President Thomas L. Herbst, Athletic Director Robert W. Hatch, Dean of Admissions Ernest C. Linholm and Assistant Dean of Admissions Karen Harris.
Football Wrap-up

Defense Pulls Gridders Through

The 1979 Bates College Football season has ended, and it was a very inconspicuous ending to what otherwise was a somewhat unique season in comparison with past ones. There was a great deal of controversy from the preseason right through to the last game, as most people by now are aware, so the team let its play speak in response to criticism which it received.

The team started off in fine fashion; the defense was young, and their ability to work together as a unit had been questioned. After the first two games no one questioned their ability again, as first Union and then Trinity were held scoreless, while the Bates offense scored 27 points and then 14 more in the two successive games. The Bates fans' confidence was restored; the defense was awesome, and the offense seemed to have the potential to explode at any time.

The following week the Bobcats attained their third victory in as many games by outscoring Hamilton College 20-13. This was followed by their first defeat against Amherst, a team who many considered to be the only legitimate tough team which the Bobcats had faced to date. The final score in that one was Amherst 23, Bates 13, and Bates' record moved to a very respectable 3-1 for the first half of the season.

The second half of the season started off in much the same manner that the first half had, with Bates gaining their third shutout against W.P.I. With their 3-0 victory, Bates improved their record to 5-1, while keeping their opponents scoring at just over 7 points per game.

The following week saw Colby College show up on the Bates campus as surprising favorites. Though some people talked up the fact of Gridders downing Trinity early on.

C.B.B. games being more of an inspiration to win. It seems that Bates was looking for another win, no matter who the opponent. Another win is just what the Bobcats got, downing Colby 39-3. The defense was strong, the running game, led by Tom Denegre, was outstanding, and Bates had a 5-1 record with two tough games left. At this point many people began to look ahead, seeing undefeated Tufts rolling along, and people began wondering if a Bates-Tufts, Harrison-Gatto might be a reality. But it was not to be.

November 3rd proved to be one of those days from any meteorologist's nightmares, and the torrential rains put a damper on Bates' offense. The Bobcats were shut out at Bowdoin 14-0, and the outlook for the Tufts game was dimmed quite a bit during the following week. Injuries to Craig Comins, Al Mandrafino, Mike McCarthy, and Mike Spotts severely limited the Bates chances of pulling out an upset win.

Tufts came in to Lewiston for their November 10 game riding the longest winning streak in New England, and they left with it intact after a 35-7 annihilation of the Bates squad.

Bates finished with a 5-3 record; there were a few bright spots to note, but there were as many question marks. Sophomore Dave Carter led the rushing corps with a hefty 4-5 yards per run, gaining 402 yards in the season. The receivers returning provide a strong group with Larry Di Giammarino, Bob Simmons, and Dave Carter, who combined for 32 receptions throughout the year. One problem next year, as it seemed to be this year, might be getting the ball to these people. Brian Pohli completed only 30% of his passes this year while throwing 19 interceptions. A large part of the offensive line and the defensive secondary are gone to graduation, and these spots will be tough to fill. One of the brightest spots has to be Dan Sarna, who kicked 5 field goals and an amazing 12 extra points in 14 attempts.

All in all, Bates is going to have to rely on dedication by returners and some fine recruiting in order to continue in their winning ways.

---

ADAM & EVE'S hair boutique
Specializing in the latest men's and women's hairstyles.
30 COLLEGE STREET - LEWISTON
(207) 784-3444

Bobcat Checking Accounts at
"The Bank Depositors Trust"
55 Lisbon Street, Lewiston
467 Sabattus Street, Lewiston
Northwood Park Shopping Center
Lewiston

Hours: 11 - 5
Monday thru Saturday
NOW OPEN ON SUNDAYS

Sue Dollin has been chosen athlete of the week. Sue, winner of the Evelyn Dillon Award, will be co-captain of the field hockey team next year.
the college will have to share the arts center.

Conner hopes to help open Schaef-ter, the theater, such as the welder and he would rather see more experimental theater type. The theater department, said Mortimer, a 1976 Bates graduate, "you have a great many things you want to do." He went on to say that committing oneself to writing something makes it possible to write that which one may feel self-incapable of.

Spender identified Worthworth, Kerouac and Byrnes, romantic poems, as all, his early models. He com-mented that they were not, how- ever, necessarily ideal models.

College students.

Spender related how Auden, T.S. Eliot and George Orwell had all made the list of their biogra-phers extremely difficult, fearing such exploitation. He further revealed that he would try to stop a biography of himself in a similar fashion, but felt he was taking on a rather self-important attitude to everyone.

On the subject of Auden, Spender said he was perhaps most im-portant for his high degree of order in the man's life, saying that Auden planned his time down to "when he was going to have a cup of coffee." He identified Auden's early poems, such as "Shield of Achilles," as having a "great deal of meaning for me."

He was unable to project the future of the theater, saying, "What idea of what will come next in En-glish literature, and finding it hard to define which writers are promi-nent today. He commented upon students in the 1970s, finding among them "quiet dropouts," which he defined as non-violent revolutionaries who desire not to be dependent on society. Spender saw these as one of the better things that have evolved from the 1960s. In a more humorous vein, he commented that faculty always seem to find students "either too active or too apathetic."

When asked about writing methodology, Spender responded that a flash of inspiration is not al-ways necessary. He felt that one acquires a certain passion for the writing, but is not to be dependent on society. He also felt that not many of the following writers are among the major things that Andrucki is examining. In the past few years, he explained, the departmen-tal curriculum has been to structure a major with "real coher-ence." He feels that this has led to students being more informed and sophisticated in the area.

Conner expressed a desire that there be less emphasis on specialization in the arts as a whole. He feels that Bates, as a liberal arts school, should have a somewhat more well-rounded liberal major. The theater department, said Mortimer, a 1976 Bates graduate, "has vastly improved since his freshmen year. An act not only greatly upgraded the theater's shop, he said. He went on to explain that provi-dence 1972 there was no technical theater facility, while the fine arts center in the offering characterizes the college should be taking a bigger role in making connections with the Lewiston daily community. Kuritz feels that cooperation bet-ween townpeople and the college occurs relatively slowly. Kuritz did agree with Conner, however, that not many structural modifications can be made in Schaeffer because of its short-term basis. Conner and Mortimer gener-ally concur, desiring only very small changes, such as minor prog-ress, between.

Production Continues Tonight

The Bates College Department of Theater and Rhetoric will present Once in a Lifetime tomorrow, tomor-row. The production is written by the team of George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, and is a farce written of the early days of Hollywood.

Performances tonight (Friday) and tomorrow (Saturday) begin at 8 p.m. and on Sunday a matinee per-formance will be presented at 2 p.m. Tickets are $2.00 for students and $2.50 for general admission. The box office will be open from 7:30 tonight and tomorrow, and in-formation regarding the availability is available by calling 3-8773.

Audio File
Improving Your Sound System

by Scott Elliott
Staff Reporter

Most people are satisfied with what they own and are always haunted with the desire of upgrading their system. Whether it's a system on a laptop or a car, everyone probably thinks that he or she could use a little better, or, even a lot better.

If you currently own a stereo sys-tem, chances are you have bought a stereo store, walked around and drooled over some new re-ciever or some other piece of equipment. If you are not careful, you could end up with a couple of expensive boxes in your back seat and a thank account that reads in the negative numbers. Make sure that no stereo salesman sneak up on you!

There are a number of ways to upgrade if you are offering poten-tially better sound, but some ways are more effective than others in the long run. The key here is to look towards the future.

Ways to upgrade a system are basically the following: Addition of a new component will usually start with a tape deck or an equalizer, specific im-provement of one particular com-ponent or adding an extra set to cre-ate an entire new system.

Addition of an extra component should always be a question of need. It is far better investment to get a system that you won't have to buy a 20 dollar FM an-te-nna. A small high quality system is far better than owning a hodge podge of assorted mediocre com-ponents, no matter how impressive it looks.

(Continued on Page 9)
The Mundane, Exposed, and Great Gallery Exhibitions

by Scott Damon

 Bates College is hosting an exhibit of the art work of Robert Solotaire and Timothy Norris this December 21 in Treat Gallery. Paintings by Robert Solotaire presents scenes of rural and industrial architecture. This exhibition of Solotaire's work includes scenes from Lewiston and Auburn as well as other locations.

Also on display is sculpture in steel by Timothy Norris. A 1979 graduate of the Portland School of Art, Norris has studied under John Ventimiglia and has worked on some huge sculptures of welded steel. Norris is a recent winner of the Albright-Knox National Sculpture Award. He also received the award for sculpture exhibited at the Silvermine Show of Artists' 30th New England Exhibition of Painting and Sculpture in New Canaan, Connecticut.

Solotaire's paintings and Norris' sculptures are as strong with the rough, proletarian, even industrial world. In their realism, and occasionally surrealism, they express the beauty of the mundane.

Norris' sculpture is a fine talent for detail, perhaps most exemplified by the shadows in "West Bath Rock." His skill is not limited to his realistic scenes. He has worked in very few of the works on display.

Norris' sculpture, while expressing the same mundane beauty, is more mellow in its medium of girders, plates and steel. His work combines to produce their exciting background chant that sounds something like a Jamaican yodel. "Walking on the Moon" is slower, funkier sound. The final song on the album, "Message in a Bottle," has increasingly become a jazz standard. Boiling's expertise in diverse musical genres, backed by drums and rock guitar, the album "No Time This Time" is the most powerful and energetic with an irresistible beat, thanks to the explosive drumming of Copeland. "Regatta de Blanc" may not be suited to everyone's taste. Regan's work is a bit more abstruse in the rock and roll appetite. But forthose who can appreciate and digest the reggae feeling, it's easy to get lost in.

Music

Reggae Flavored Rock Energy in Police Latest

Reggae de Blanc, by The Police, A & M Records and Tapes, $6.95.

The Police, an English based rock band, have continued their great success with their debut album "Outlandos d'Amour" last year, have followed up with success with a powerful new work "Regatta de Blanc." The group plays an intriguing blend of reggae flavored rock with an abundance of energy and a striking degree of precision. The new album is one of the hottest entries on American and European charts and is steadily climbing the charts here in the U.S. It is the first album for this band which features such a heavy reggae influence has ever achieved substantial commercial success in the American mainstream of pop music.

In this album and the preceding one, The Police have done some interesting things to their rock bands and have been able to do them. They have created a mostly black form of music audiences without OPCW or sacrificing any of the original rock and reggae music. The music produced by The Police, Andy Simmons, Stewart Copeland on drums, and Sting (that right, Sting) on bass guitar and vocals, is sharp, clean and exuding with feeling. "Regatta de Blanc" is one of the best albums of the year.

The keys to the album are the technical precision of each musician and the way in which they combine to produce their exciting sound. Sting's voice has a high roll appetite. But forthose who can appreciate and digest the reggae feeling, it's easy to get lost in.

Blend of Jazz and Baroque in Bolling's Newest Concerto

by Peter Cummings

Claude Bolling's Concerto for Guitar and Jazz Piano is yet another example of Bolling's mastery of blending jazz and baroque forms. The concerto (RCA FRIL-1495), which contains a "música popular" movement, is performed by classical guitarist Alexandre Lagoya and Bolling himself on piano.

Bolling has won the Grand Prix du Disque six times, and is widely acclaimed as one of the foremost composers of jazz piano. Bolling's American record debut came in 1975 with Suite for Flute and Jazz Piano (with Jean-Pierre Rampal on flute). The album met with immediate international acclaim. One of the movements, "Baroque and Blue, and has increasingly become a jazz standard. Bolling's other works are in jazz and classical guitar technique. The two lead players are in Bolling's other suites, backed by drums and strings.

Bolling's recordings are unique. They are almost the only disc on the market which combines baroque and jazz styles. The concerto for jazz piano and classical guitar will satisfy both jazz and classical audiences.

The best in the Arts Every week in The Bates Student.

Reggae Flavored Rock Energy in Police Latest

Woodwind Quintet Slated for LPL/APL Program

Through a grant received from the New England Foundation for the Arts, the Hancock Woodwind Quintet from New York will be performing in Auburn and Lewiston for four days. Sponored by LPL, the residency will culminate in a Friday evening performance at the United Baptist Church, 201 Main Street, Lewiston at 8 p.m.

The Hancock quintet featured Lee Bell on flute, Stephen Quaint, horn, Arturo Ciomp, clarinet, and Matthew Sullivan, oboe. Ms. Bell is a graduate of the New England Conservatory, she has studied with Paule Robin, Samuel Barlow, Lois Shufert and John Oberbrunner.

Mr. Bauch is a graduate of the southern States Conservatory of Music, he has won the Grand Prix in Boiling's Newest Concerto. Mr. Bauch has had his Bachelor and Masters degree while a member of the faculty in the music department. Mr. Bauch takes his first launch with the New York Philharmonic under the direction of Michael Tilson Thomas. He is presently performing in New York city playing regularly with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Festival Winds, New York Chamber Players, Corclli Ensemble and the Arts Woodwind Quintet.

Mr. Ciomp holds degrees from the North Carolina School of the Arts and the State University of New York at those. He was a graduate of the North Carolina State University and is presently teaching clarinet at Princeton University.

Mr. Sullivan has appeared many times with orchestras and in recitals throughout the San Francisco Bay area and the St. Louis area. He has been oboist for the Symphony of St. Louis. He has appeared with the Symphony of St. Louis. He has appeared in Rodeo at the Festival Orchestra and Festival Symphonies of St. Louis. Fort Lauderdale, and Miami. He attended Southern Illinois University and the University of California at Berkeley. In New York city he most recently appeared in the Ransom Wilson Wind Quartet, his other work includes Mark O'Connor and the United States Operas.

His oboe teachers include Mark O'Connor and the United States Operas. His other work includes Mark O'Connor and the United States Operas. His other work includes Mark O'Connor and the United States Operas. His other work includes Mark O'Connor and the United States Operas. His other work includes Mark O'Connor and the United States Operas.

In addition to the three public performances, the quintet will be offering workshops and performances at six local schools.

LPL Plus APL, the twin city community arts program sponsored by the Lewiston and Auburn Public Libraries and the Maine State Commission on the Arts and Humanities. Further details are available from the LPL Plus APL office, Dimley Building, Lewiston, 785 7228.

The 1980 SED includes national summer jobs available, "she said. "Smart people who con-

Books

Director Takes Legwork out of JobHunting

The 1980 Summer Employment Directory of the United States (SED) is the best source of summer jobs, according to its editor, Richard R. Regan. The guidebook goes a long way toward helping you find a job for the summer, but it helps you look for a job not just this summer, but in the future. If you plan to travel or move to a different state, the summer job listings will help you find a job in your new home. This year it lists 50,000 summer jobs all over the United States. Each listing includes job description, pay rates, working conditions, and other information. Address to write to:

Richard R. Regan

"The year's summer employment directory of the United States (SED) is the best source of summer jobs, according to its editor, Richard R. Regan. The guidebook goes a long way toward helping you find a job for the summer, but it helps you look for a job not just this summer, but in the future. If you plan to travel or move to a different state, the summer job listings will help you find a job in your new home. This year it lists 50,000 summer jobs all over the United States. Each listing includes job description, pay rates, working conditions, and other information. Address to write to:

Richard R. Regan

Director Takes Legwork out of JobHunting

The 1980 Summer Employment Directory of the United States (SED) is the best source of summer jobs, according to its editor, Richard R. Regan. The guidebook goes a long way toward helping you find a job for the summer, but it helps you look for a job not just this summer, but in the future. If you plan to travel or move to a different state, the summer job listings will help you find a job in your new home. This year it lists 50,000 summer jobs all over the United States. Each listing includes job description, pay rates, working conditions, and other information. Address to write to:

Richard R. Regan

"The year's summer employment directory of the United States (SED) is the best source of summer jobs, according to its editor, Richard R. Regan. The guidebook goes a long way toward helping you find a job for the summer, but it helps you look for a job not just this summer, but in the future. If you plan to travel or move to a different state, the summer job listings will help you find a job in your new home. This year it lists 50,000 summer jobs all over the United States. Each listing includes job description, pay rates, working conditions, and other information. Address to write to:

Richard R. Regan
John Updike's latest collection, Problems and Other Stories, is the upper middle class white American's struggle with the pressures of the 20th century. This struggle really proves to be profitless in the long run for the character but Updike's portrayal is usually very perceptive and moving. Many of the stories are about marriages and their breakdowns. Updike deals with the problems of marriage and the situational counterparts of divorce in a realistic fashion. He describes the characters' relationships with humor and pathos. At the reader can glimpse through Updike's words a reflection of remembered hurt and pain in his own life. Through writing, Updike attempts to express his characters the feelings and emotions he himself has experienced. Updike deals with the problems and pressures of 20th century life with clarity and precision. It is at times startling for the reader to realize the depth of Updike's per- sonation. Perhaps it is because he has the ability to show us who we are and what our relationship is to others in this confusing and some- times incomprehensible world we live in.

—Mary Couillard

The Center Street

WINE and CHEESE
Wine chilled request

Shed

• Imported coffees and nuts • Discounted wine/beer

Large selection of imported coffees & teas (bulk supplies available/on the premises grinding)

Lowest prices on assorted nuts (also available in bulk)

Cashews $2.99/lb.; Spanish Peanuts 59/c.

Peanuts with shells 7.79

783-7477

Open 7 days a Week — Monday-Thursday 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.
Friday & Saturday 9 a.m. to 11 p.m., Sunday 12-9 p.m.

Friends Deli

Over 70 sandwiches — Over 500 combinations

Large selection of cold wines and champagnes

Cold imported and Draft Beer by the case

Cor. Walnut & Bartlett St., Lewiston
Tel. 782-3281

35 1/2 St., third floor, downtown Lewiston
Above the Warehouse Restaurant

Now until Dec. 23, Mon.-Sat., 9 a.m. 9 p.m.

LEWISTON TWIN CINEMA
PROMENADE MALL

Nostermathy

(Debit, Visa, MC)

Books

Updike's Stories

John Updike's latest collection of short stories was recently published in the New Yorker magazine. The themes of Problems and Other Stories encompass such topics as the upper middle class white American's struggle with the pressures of the 20th century. This struggle really proves to be profitless in the long run for the character but Updike's portrayal is usually very perceptive and moving. Many of the stories are about marriages and their breakdowns. Updike deals with the problems of marriage and the situational counterparts of divorce in a realistic fashion. He describes the characters' relationships with humor and pathos. At the reader can glimpse through Updike's words a reflection of remembered hurt and pain in his own life. Through writing, Updike attempts to express his characters the feelings and emotions he himself has experienced. Updike deals with the problems and pressures of 20th century life with clarity and precision. It is at times startling for the reader to realize the depth of Updike's per- sonation. Perhaps it is because he has the ability to show us who we are and what our relationship is to others in this confusing and some- times incomprehensible world we live in.
Wyeth Laboratories in Pennsylvania before working for the Department of Psychology and Susan Peldman currently teaches a section of the

And she is interested in the philosophical aspects of building a fire in a wood stove. Joseph Gerrard Pelliccia, currently a biology major at Cornell University and must return to his studies after graduation. He recently attended a lecture on this organism, a fly quite different from all other flies. Mr. Weston of the business office, Hall or sent to box 309, no later than December 2. Not only would we get the lead on the Iranian actions. Young Watson? No, says Sullivan, he is too young and his salary is so "cheap" because he is the last man. Would the Red Sox shell out a lot. Would the Red Sox shell out a lot. Could they afford to grind and achieve every goal we set. This is the translation. It's sort of like the Iranian actions. The best part of the year was the Christmas tree. It was just as difficult if not more so to

Wyeth Laboratories in Pennsylvania before working for the Department of Psychology and Susan Peldman currently teaches a section of the

and sports coverage. The print was both half advertisements and pictures. The best part of the year was the Christmas tree. It was just as difficult if not more so to

Wyeth Laboratories in Pennsylvania before working for the Department of Psychology and Susan Peldman currently teaches a section of the

All in all, it is almost as difficult if not more so to

Wyeth Laboratories in Pennsylvania before working for the Department of Psychology and Susan Peldman currently teaches a section of the

All in all, it is almost as difficult if not more so to

Wyeth Laboratories in Pennsylvania before working for the Department of Psychology and Susan Peldman currently teaches a section of the

All in all, it is almost as difficult if not more so to

Wyeth Laboratories in Pennsylvania before working for the Department of Psychology and Susan Peldman currently teaches a section of the

All in all, it is almost as difficult if not more so to

Wyeth Laboratories in Pennsylvania before working for the Department of Psychology and Susan Peldman currently teaches a section of the

All in all, it is almost as difficult if not more so to

Wyeth Laboratories in Pennsylvania before working for the Department of Psychology and Susan Peldman currently teaches a section of the

All in all, it is almost as difficult if not more so to
Editorials

Students Unaware

An unfortunate facet of life at Bates came to life, at least to me, during the recent visit of Chip Carter to Lewiston. During a brief reception at the home of Bates Political Science Professor and Lewiston Representative John W. Simon, Carter met with Bates students and faculty to discuss current events and issues of the day.

But Bates students seem to be more out of touch with the world than is necessary in an academic environment. In fact, that may even be an understatement. As the crisis in Iran intensified, inflation ran rampant, more candidates entered the presidential primary races and other news screamed from the newspapers, some of the students there could not come up with questions to ask the President's son.

While academic pressures are time-consuming and social activities also take up much of the rest of the slack, there must be some time in a Bates day to catch up on current events. The New York Times and Boston Globe are offered at ridiculously low rates; both are also available outside the CSA office daily and, along with many other newspapers, in the library reading area. Even the Student offers world news weekly, in capsule form.

With very little effort, a great deal more could be done to further the offerings of current events information on campus. News magazines such as Time and Newsweek, which are also, by the way, offered at campus rates, could be made more accessible in the library and at other areas around the campus. At the current time, they are kept behind the main desk at the library and must be requested there if they are even available at all. Dorms could take advantage of funds already available to subscribe to such periodicals to be placed in lounges and conference rooms. Current events seminars could be held periodically and involve both faculty and students in informal discussions. And in these months of political awareness in the face of the upcoming presidential elections, how could the library not become more accessible in the library and at other areas around the campus. At the current time, they are kept behind the main desk at the library and must be requested there if they are even available at all. Dorms could take advantage of funds already available to subscribe to such periodicals to be placed in lounges and conference rooms. Current events seminars could be held periodically and involve both faculty and students in informal discussions. And in these months of political awareness in the face of the upcoming presidential elections, how could the library not become more accessible in the library and at other areas around the campus.

All in all, Bates is an isolated institution, at least geographically. But there is no need for the ignorance about current events which seems to be widespread here. The benefits to be gained are many and the effort small. Students should at least take advantage of existing resources and know what's going on out there.

—Jon Marcus

The Bates Student

Established 1873

Editorial Board

Editor-in-Chief: Tom Vannah
Assistant Editor: Jon Marcus
Photography Editor: Ted Baker
Art Editor: Richard Reagen
Sports Editor: Tim MacNamara
Business Manager: John Elsesser
Circulation Manager: Allen Boyd
Advertising Manager: Steve Marshall

Staff

Staff Reporters: Bill Tyler, Scott Daniels, John Fabian.
Correspondents: Terry Welke, Mary Couilard, Kelly Doublay, Gay Caldwell, Jo-Louis Allen, Linda Wallace, Sue King, Craig Carr, Mike Kradel, David Gaffin, Melanie Spooner

Layout Staff

Photographers: Ken Oh, Jennifer Hite

The views and opinions expressed in the articles printed in this paper are not necessarily concurrent with those of the editors.

Editorials

It's Time to Get Involved

This is the second to last issue of the Bates Student for the first semester. As we move to the end of a publication period, it becomes possible to reflect on the achievements and short comings of our newspaper, and to again ask for the further support of the Bates College community in producing a responsible, professional and entertaining publication.

I like to think, although I may be deluded, that the Student is read, with interest, weekly. We have continually worked at improving the graphical display of the newspaper, which, to a large extent, is a matter of personal taste, reflecting the preferences of those who work on the layout. It may be of interest to know that the newspaper is doing well in the areas of advertising and financial affairs. I have also been very pleased with the photography staff, who, collectively, provide clear, interesting pictures weekly.

And in the area of writing there have been improvements. These improvements, occasionally overshadowed by typographical and editing errors, although substantial, do not represent the attainment of a final goal. It is in an effort to attain the goal of clear, literate smooth writing, that I again ask for increased involvement from the Bates Community. As students consider their extracurricular lives for the second semester over the holidays please give serious thought to the prospect of working on the staff of the Bates Student. Try it; you might like it.

Finally I turn to the area of the Student which most concerns me. I saw, several weeks ago, an ad for the New York Times delivery at Bates which portrayed the Student as being rather dry. Although I was amused by the advertising method, it struck me that to some, perhaps to many, the news and features we provide week to week, may seem repetitive and dull.

But any newspaper can be made more interesting. Perhaps the dilemma lies in the fact that we, on the staff, although different in numerous ways, remain bonded by a single common interest, newspapers. The editors hold certain opinions as to what this newspaper should be, and work with those opinions. Our readership may see flaws in those opinions.

The Bates Student is, as any newspaper should be, an attempt to produce the "ideal" publication. In our "cave of darkness," our vision is impaired. Perhaps we are not truly emulating the shadows properly. I urge anyone who has seen the "light" to let us know. A simple hint of what we should be covering, and information concerning stories of interest, is necessary and can make the paper more careful and refreshing.

Tom Vannah

Intramurals

give the younger players more experience. Basketball is the only intercollegiate sport where the Varsity and J.V. practice in the same place at different times. Is it fair to let J.V. V. basketball players use the gym for 2 hours per day while 366 winter intramural participants are allocated only 1 hour per day? Has the J.V. team been useful as a feeder system to the Varsity squad? In a majority of cases, the J.V. team is merely developing players to play in intramurals. Could the men's intramural "A" league basketball division perform the function as a feeder to the Varsity squad? This has happened in a limited number of cases in the past, e.g., Rob Cramer. These are all valid opinions which should be pondered.

Most importantly to all students, should a constantly expanding intramural sports program continue to be allocated an increasingly inadequate proportion of the limited athletic resources at Bates? We all realize that there are too few fields and only one gym at Bates, and it is essential that we evenly share what we do have between our varied interests in intercollegiate, intramural, and club team sports. To that end, the R.A. proposes that some kind of open forum be arranged between the athletic department and the students. The purpose of this forum would be to air and discuss possible solutions to the overcrowding problem.

Respectfully,

The Representative Assembly
Air New England Announces
Winter Schedule Changes

Air New England introduced its winter schedule serving Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, and New York on October 28, with additional schedule changes due on December 1. The December 1 schedule changes remain current until April, 1980, and that one is detailed below.

Edward L. Smick, Senior Vice President - Marketing, in announcing the changes said: “This schedule change reflects the seasonality of our route structure, wherein at this time of year we reduce our flying in the predominantly summer markets and increase it in the winter markets. The demand for our seats is strong in Vermont and New Hampshire and we are increasing our schedules here and offering more seats by substituting the 47-passenger Fairchild 227 for the 16-passenger DeHavilland Otter. A difference this year is the noticeable decline in weekend schedules throughout our system. Saturdays have proven to be particularly low traffic days so Air New England has curtailed its flying on that day.”

The specifics of the final winter schedule effective December 1 in Maine is as follows:

- The cities of Waterville, Augusta and Lewiston-Auburn will receive additional seats to Boston. This is accomplished by Waterville sharing three of its six flights with Lewiston-Auburn. Additional improvement results from dedicating three of Augusta’s six daily trips to only that city. Lewiston-Auburn receives a third daily round trip, with all service nonstop. Air New England is responding to the communities’ request for this added service.
- Portland will have three weekday nonstop round trips to Boston. However it is losing its Bradley New York round trip for the winter.

Putnam Mathematical Competition

For the last forty years there has been an annual Williams Lowell Putnam Mathematical Competition. It started in 1938 to stimulate a healthy rivalry in math studies throughout colleges and universities. Mr. Putnam, a 1823 Harvard graduate believed strongly in organized team competition.

The competition is open to all undergraduates who have not yet received a college degree. No person is allowed to enter the competition more than four times. Although there are three people on a team each individual must work independently.

The exam will be held on Saturday, December 1st, 1979. The exam will consist of two three-hour periods; the first being from nine a.m. to twelve noon, and the second from two p.m. to five p.m.

Rates has been actively involved in this math competition for the past ten years. A few years back a Bates student received an honorable mention award for placing among the top one hundred students. Considering the fact that there were 2,108 individual students participating in 1977 being among the top hundred is quite an honor.

A good score in this competition brings status to both the student and his or her college. It also serves to help provide a good chance for graduate school.

The members of the Bates Team this year are; David Bell, ’80, Allen Parkis, ’90, and Eric Muench, ’80. The alternates are; Douglas White, ’82, Richard Whittem, ’80, Curt Jackson, ’81, Chris Walton, ’80, Fred Reimer, ’81, Scott Hopt, ’82, and Ken Hammond, ’80. The team coach is Mr. Kevin Igge of the Math Department. In the past it would seem that Bates College has always made a good showing for themselves.

Bates Dates

December 2—Quaker Meeting, 10 a.m., Alumni House; Fencing Club, 2 p.m., Campus Ave. Gym; Folk Mass, 7:30 p.m., Gannett Room; College Worship Service, 6:30 p.m., Chapel

December 3—WUJH, 9:30 p.m., Costello Room; Bates College Choir, 6:30 p.m., Gannett Room; Chase Hall Committee, 6:30 p.m., Hirawasa Lounge, 8:00 p.m., St. John’s Lounge; Civilian Lounge, 7:30 p.m., Campus Ave. Gym; Forum on Human Awareness, 8 p.m., Parker Lower Lounge

December 4—Sociology / Anthropology Club, 11:15 a.m., Room 15, Commons Marching Band, 4:00 p.m., Gannett Room; Collegium Musicum, 4:15 p.m., Pettigrew 100, Spanish Table, 5 p.m., Garcelon Room; German Table, 5 p.m., Garcelon Room; Holy Communion (Protestant Tradition), 5:30 p.m., Room 15, Commons; M.I.S.C, 5:30 p.m., Room 10, Commons; New World Coalition, 6:30 p.m., Hirawasa Lounge; Stage Band, 6 p.m.; Gannett Room; Psychology Club, 6:30 p.m., Coram 5, Newman Council, 7:30 p.m., Parker Lower Lounge

December 5—Greek Table, 12 noon, Costello Room; Early Music Ensemble, 3:30 p.m., Pettigrew 100; French Club, 5 p.m., Costello Room; Arts Society, 5:30 p.m., Garcelon Room; CA Dinner Meeting, 5:00 p.m., Room 13, Commons; OC meeting, 6:30 p.m., OC Meeting Room; Economics Help Session, 7:00 p.m., Library 4, Biology Council Volleyball, 8 p.m., Hand Gym; Forum on Human Awareness, 8 p.m., Seminar Room, 2nd floor Coram

December 6—Physics Society, 10 a.m., Costello Room; Race Board Luncheon Seminar, 12 noon, Rowe Room; Russian Table, 12:30 p.m., Room 15, Commons; Early Music Ensemble, 3:30 p.m., Pettigrew 100, Fencing Club, 7:30 p.m., Campus Ave. Gym; M.I.S.C. Intermission, 8 p.m., St. John’s Lounge

December 7—Biology Dept. Luncheon, 11:30 a.m., Rowe Room; Bates Christian Fellowship, 7 p.m., Seiskin Lounge; New World Coalition Dinner Meeting, 5 p.m., Room 10, Commons

Bates Scenes

Air New England Music Co.

New England Music Co. offers a complete range of stereo systems at moderate prices. Some other components include: MONTOSI • YAMAHA • AKAI • KLIPSCH ORTOFON • BANG & OLUFSEN • TANGBERG • GENESIS INFINITY • LUX AUDIO • ADVENT